Baker Row Threatens To Shut Supermarkets

The threat of closed supermarkets hung over Vancouver Island today as bakers went on strike at the Vancouver plant of Weston Bakeries Ltd.

A spokesman for the B.C. Food Industry Labor Relations Council said it is probable that the major supermarkets will be shut down by the middle of next week.

The council announced the lockout notice on three bakeries after 100 members of the Bakery and Confectionery Workers Union went on strike at 8 a.m. at Weston. The council followed by serving strike notice on Mother Hubbard Bakery Ltd., Mrs. Willman's Baking Ltd. and Empress Foods Ltd.

In Kelowna, Labor Minister Bill King said today that the provincial government will not intervene in the strike. He said he would be making a statement later in the day on the mediator's report.

Hugh Comber, secretary-manager of the Bakery and Confectionery Workers Union, Local 468, told the Times from Vancouver that customers of Weston will be supplied today "but after that I just don't know."

Joe Burns, manager of Weston's distribution depot in Victoria, confirmed the Vancouver plant's products arrived today and will be distributed.

Pickets went up at the Vancouver plant at 8 a.m., hard on the heels of a report to Labor Minister Bill King filed by industrial inquiry commissioner Clive McKee.

Comber said the strike is against Weston's only at the moment and he doesn't know when it will be expanded or if it will be expanded by company lockouts.

The B.C. Food Council last month indicated a strike against Weston Bakeries Ltd. would have been answered with a lockout of union members generally.

The food industry council, in addition to representing Weston Bakeries Ltd., consists of Canada Safeway, Empress Foods, High Low Foods Ltd., H. Y. Louie Co. Ltd., Independent Super-Valu Stores, Kelly Douglas and Co., McGavin's Toastmaster, Mrs. Willman's Baking, Overwaitea Foods and Stongs Market.

The council was formed with the intention that none of its members would be singled out for strike action without an industry-wide lockout.

The immediate effects of a shutdown at the Weston plant could be that bread will be in shorter supply. The bakery is estimated to produce more than a third of the bread consumed in the Lower Mainland.

A supermarket shutdown was averted a month ago with McKee's appointment and since then he received two extensions. McKee said Thursday his report would go to King that day.

FIREMEN IN TORONTO were on the spot when fire broke out in this car crushed by a pumper truck which was on its way to another fire when its brakes locked and it skidded more than a block before ending up on the other vehicle which was parked and empty.

RCMP For Quadra

The RCMP is planning to open a summer detachment on Quadra Island.

The move follows violent flareups of bad feeling between local residents of the island off Campbell River and a larger number of young newcomers.

The latest manifestation was Aug. 2 when a group of vigilantes smashed the home of Allen McLaughlin, 22, a musician who has been living for two years in a makeshift log cabin on crown land.

McLaughlin makes a subsistence living working a few months each year in logging camps, on fishing boats or a survey team, and collecting unemployment insurance or welfare the rest of the time.

He said RCMP from Campbell River checked out the property two years ago but did not tell him to leave.

He said friends who parked their cars on the highway leading to his home had their windows smashed and young people on motorcycles fired small-calibre rifles to scare him.

Other young people said several of their animals have been shot and killed.

McLaughlin said two friends were staying with him and living in two wood-frame shelters covered with plastic sheeting. He said Aug. 1 they returned to meadow where he lives to find one of the shelters engulfed in flames.

He said the next morning the flames started up again, and then a group of about 30 people with rakes, shovels and a front-end loader emerged from the forest and started to tear down his cabin. He said they gave him 30 minutes to clear out his belongings.

McLaughlin said he believes the fire which destroyed the plastic shelter was deliberately set and he is seekng legal advice. He said he found three hangman's nooses hanging from a tree in the meadow a few days later. (See picture on Page 2.)

Danny Charlton, 21, said he tied the nooses the day of the fire as a joke and meant no malice towards McLaughlin and his two friends.

RCMP Staff Sgt. Major Norm Sharpe said the Victoria office has already asked the Campbell River detachment to find a suitable site on the island for the detachment.

An RCMP officer from Campbell River normally goes over to the island to keep an eye on things, said Sharpe but the new detachment would mean one full time man there, at least during the summer months.

Approval has not come from Ottawa yet and Sharpe said he didn't know if they would get authorization in time for next summer.

The RCMP will ask for an additional man for the new post but Sharpe said he may have to be taken from existing staff in the province.

REPORT REALLY HASHED CASE

WINNIPEG (CP)—A judge "spent a week" looking up the dictionary meaning of words in a pre-sentence report, but only ended up "more confused".

"Einstein couldn't figure it out," Judge Lawrie Mitchell said of the probation officer's report on Jonathan Brownstone, 25, of Winnipeg, who pleaded guilty to possessing five grams of hashish.

The judge quoted this passage from the six-page report:

"Mr. Brownstone presents a rather anxious, overly-dependent, passive-aggressive, slightly inadequate individual who has a low self-concept but is relatively well-motivated to achieve and appears to be above average in intellectual functioning ability.

"Basically, Mr. Brownstone appears to present himself in two distinct but related perspectives, the division of which seems based on a combination of multiple factors, such as psycho-social development maturity, motivation to achieve in an appropriate employment setting and sex-role identity stabilization."

The judge asked, "Now what's all that garbage?"

Crown counsel Bruce Macfarlane said, "I admit I have some difficulty grasping the thrust of the report myself."

Defence counsel Jeffrey Gindin said, "in all its confusion, I think it's a favorable report," a sentiment with which the judge agreed.

Judge Mitchell said he had intended to give a jail term to Brownstone, who had two previous drug convictions.

But because "the couple of lines you can read" in the report were favorable, he imposed a $500 fine instead.

Anti-Israel Command Formed

Times News Services

DAMASCUS, Syria — Syria and Jordan announced today they had established a joint command to co-ordinate their armies against Israel and called on the Arab world to reject any compromise settlement worked out by U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

The two countries issued a joint communique in which they asked all Arab nations to marshal their military machine against and reject partial peace settlements.

They sharply criticized Kissinger's attempt to negotiate a Sinai agreement between Egypt and Israel and said "events have shown there is no alternative military force and preparedness" in confronting Israel.

The announcement of the Jordanian-Syrian supreme command council, as it will be named, and the sharp criticism of Kissinger's current shuttle mission came at the end of a four-day visit to Syria by King Hussein of Jordan.

Hussein and Syrian president Hafez Assad rejected the notion that the Sinai settlement Kissinger is now trying to seal between Egypt and Israel will help promote peace in the Middle East.

They said only an Israeli withdrawal from occupied Arab territories on their fronts as well as Egypt's could do that. They said only "a militarily strong Arab nation" could guarantee such a withdrawal.

Kissinger meanwhile kicked off his new Middle East peace shuttle today with nearly five hours of talks in Jerusalem, and the Israelis reported progress was made. He then flew by helicopter to Ben-Gurion airport and boarded his United States Air Force jet for Alexandria, Egypt, and talks with President Anwar Sadat.

The U.S. state secretary said he would return to Jerusalem Saturday night after a stopover in Damascus "to continue the talks with an attitude of hope."

Shortly before dawn, several hundred demonstrators drove by Kissinger's hotel, shouting anti-American slogans through loudspeakers. Police drove them away.

AND, IT CAME TO PASS . . .

RIO DE JANEIRO (Reuter) — More than 700 prisoners at Rio de Janiero's Holy Water Prison stormed the toilets early Thursday after prison cooks succeeded in producing the third case of mass diarrhea in a month. Doctors were called to administer injections and pills as the prisoners rushed for the toilets, which they outnumbered 20 to one.

BCR Readies For Strike

Man Found Stabbed

VANCOUVER (CP) — A man believed in his 70s was found fatally stabbed Thursday in his downtown hotel room. Police say robbery was probably the motive for the killing. The man's name was withheld.

Tremor Hits Alaska

PALMER, Alaska (UPI) — A moderate earthquake rocked the Kenai Peninsula of Alaska Thursday, shaking residents from Homer to Anchorage. No damage or injuries were reported.

8,000 to Strike?

MONTREAL (CP) — Within the next few weeks 8,000 Quebec pulp and paper workers may be on strike, a spokesman for the Canadian Paperworkers' Union said today. About 16,000 workers now are on strike in British Columbia and Ontario.

Communism in Class?

LONDON (Reuter)—A government - backed foundation has recommended that communism be taught in British schools as part of a syllabus to replace religious education. The National Foundation for Educational Research said in a report that schools should continue to teach religion, but not concentrate solely on Christianity.

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Railway has placed an embargo on perishable goods, livestock and explosives after strike notice was served by two unions.

Spokesman Hugh Armstrong said the unions, two locals of the United Transportation Union, representing trainmen, and a local of the Canadian Union of Transportation Employees, representing enginemen, served notice Tuesday.

The embargo accounts for less than one per cent of normal traffic, he said.

The unions are asking for a total of 250 per cent over one year while the company is offering 23.5 per cent over two years.

The 250 per cent includes 107 per cent increase in wages and the rest in fringe benefits, according to Armstrong.

Glen Bowles, UTU representative said the 72-hour strike notice against the railway expires today, but the unions cannot take action until mediator Clark Gilmour completes his report.

Bowles said the 250 per cent figure came from a meeting some time ago at which the company asked for the union's hourly wage expectations.

He said the union did not consider the company was serious and said they wanted $14.02 an hour, which would work out to 250 per cent.

"However, we made it quite clear all along we were serious and would name a figure when they were prepared to be serious," he said.

Bowles said the problem came up because the union wants to switch from a mileage rate to an hourly rate.

FISHERMEN ACCEPT

VANCOUVER (CP) — Salmon ffishermen, casting their fourth ballots since they went on strike July 25, Thursday accepted a new contract with the Fisheries Association of British Columbia.

"I don't think any of the fishermen are happy about the kind of contract terms," Homer Stevens, United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union president, said in announcing the 3,800 fishermen had voted 58.9 per cent for the one-year contract.

The fishermen, who will resume fishing at 6 p.m., Sunday, have also missed on much of the season for sockeye, the tasty, red salmon most sought by consumers.

"This has been a very tragic year and I'm not sure it was necessary," said Jerry Spitz, fishing association president.

The association offer will increase the price of sockeye to 62 cents a pound from 52 cents, pinks to 24 cents from 22, chums to 30 from 24 to 27 cents and large red springs to 68 cents from 65 cents.

Argentine Frigate Blasted

Times News Services

LA PLATA — Leftist terrorists set off an explosive charge early today inside an Argentine navy missile frigate being built in La Plata, causing damage but no casualties, the navy said.

The navy at first reported erroneously that the charge blew up the ship and sank it, but later said "the ship showed some damage which did not endanger the vessel."

Other sources, however, said the damage was considerable, and that a three-inch-wide split was left in the hull.

The attack came on the third anniversary of the deaths of 16 guerrillas at a navy base in the Patagonia town of Trelew and security forced were placed on full alert expecting violence.

The frigate, the Santisima Trinidad, was rocked by the explosion at 3 a.m. at the Rio Santiago shipyard, 25 miles south of Buenos Aires.

The navy said an underwater demolition charge went off in the engine room.

Last Gasp for Quit

The Victoria office of the Quit Centre for the Control of Smoking has folded under mysterious circumstances, Victoria Better Business Bureau official Bill Tindall said today.

Tindall said about 400 Victorians have pre-paid for service they now apparently will not receive. Customers up-Island at Nanaimo and Courtenay are also affected.

Tindall said the Quit Centre only one month ago raised its fee to $460 per year from $365 and now has closed, leaving back salaries owing to staff members.

He urged any customers affected by this closure to contact his office.

He said the closure was part of a pattern across the province of travel agencies and health clubs closing in advance of legislation to control pre-paid merchandising schemes.

He said the provincial government has delayed implementation of this legislation until fall, a move he called "very unfortunate."

It appears that customers of the Quit Centre are entitled to a refund of their fees and the Better Business Bureau will attempt to investigate this possibility.

The Vancouver office of the Quit Centre has also closed its doors.

Civil War Bloodies Timor

Times News Services

DARWIN, Australia — Full-scale civil war has broken out in the Portuguese colony of Timor and preparations have been made for the evacuation of Portuguese settlers.

The Lisbon government has admitted that its forces can no longer control the situation and have warned that a "crucial situation" now exists in the colony. Reports received in other Asian Portuguese colony, Macao, Thursday night spoke of mass killings in the Timor countryside and intensified fighting around the capital, Dili.

The governor, Col. Lemos Pires, has warned Lisbon that Portuguese troops now control only a small part of the capital and that widespread military desertions to rival political groups in the colony have taken place.

According to the reports, the pro-Communist supporters of Fretili, one of the waring factions, now have the upper hand and are advancing on Dili and Baucau, the two main cities, which were virtually taken over nine days ago by a coup staged by the rightest Timor Democratic Union (UDT).

In Dili today mortar fire hit the port area where more than 1,000 Portuguese refugees are awaiting evacuation, Portugal's state radio said.

The Dili naval communications centre — the only link with the outside world for Pires — also has been hit by mortar fire, the radio said. One sergeant guarding the centre was wounded.

A Macao government statement said today that at least five persons had been killed and more than 30 wounded in bitter clashes between rival political groups in Dili Thursday.

There was "very intense" gunfire during the battle and

Corrine Gets $100,000 . . . Not $1.1 Million

By ROGER STONEBANKS
Times Staff

Corrine Lissell, a 19-year-old Courtenay girl paralyzed in a traffic accident three years ago, should have received $1,100,000 compensation.

But, her family has learned, all that is available is $100,000 — the minimum liability insurance held by two men found at fault by a B.C. Supreme Court jury last March.

Corrine has received one $50,000 cheque and was cashing the other in Courtenay today.

The supreme court jury awarded her $1,100,000 general damages, believed to be the second highest personal damage award in the Commonwealth. The highest is believed to be 1.5 million for Gary Thornton, 19, of Prince George for paralysis he suffered when he broke his neck in a school gymnasium.

Corrine's father, Robert Lissell, manager of the Courtenay Legion, said today, "what is available and what is ordered are two different things. There is just no way to get blood out of a stone."

Corrine was paralyzed from the waist down and in her left arm after the motorcycle on which she was a passenger collided with a left-turning car June 13, 1972, on the road between Courtenay and Comox. She was 15.

The jury found negligence on the part of both the motorcyclist, Randy David Cox, now a 23-year-old sawmill worker in Williams Lake, and car driver Henry Paul, now a 39-year-old logger living near Alert Bay. Cox was assessed 95 per cent at fault and Paul 5 per cent.

Both persons, Lissell said, turned out to have held only the minimum $50,000 liability insurance.

Asked if he felt bitter that his daughter would receive only a fraction of the jury's award, Lissell said "I don't think so. Things have happened this way. I would have liked to see her get more. It is still very poor consolation for her."

Lissell doubted he would be pressing the two men for the remaining $1 million. "They are just working men, the same as you and I," he said.

One result of the award was his decision to increase his liability insurance to $1 million from $200,000 "and I have talked to others who have done the same."

Corrine, confined to a wheelchair and not expected to recover from her paralysis, attended the three-day B.C. Supreme Court trial of her damage action in Victoria last March. She was represented by Victoria lawyer Rodney Taylor.

Timor Violence

grenades and mortars were used, the statement said, quoting a message received from Dili.

"The exact number of victims is not know yet since there were many bodies and wounded people in the streets," the statement said.

Meanwhile, Australian defence minister Bill Morrison said today he has ordered two Australian destroyers to help with the evacuation of refugees from Dili.

Morrison said he had acted in response to a request from the Portuguese government.

In Portugal, President Francisco da Costa Gomes has made an agreement with moderate officers that he will replace pro-Communist Premier Vasco Goncalves in the next few days, a high military source said Thursday night.

The premier, who is aware of the agreement, appeared prepared to resist ouster, however. Navy units supporting Gen Goncalves were reported in their barracks Thursday night, prepared to take a stand in case of a military confrontation.

The premier's office also denied reports that Goncalves has resigned.

No Fire Instructions Hotel Manager Testifies

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

Royal Olympic Hotel manager Nicholas Renard told a coroner's jury Thursday night that in 40 years he had "never been approached by city officials about fire instruction in that building."

"I've never been given any (fire safety instruction), never been counselled," he told the six-man jury.

Renard, of 111 Homer, was the last of 39 witnesses called to testify into the deaths of Mae Towers, 20 of Trail, Lorna Anne Minnes, 57, of Vancouver, and Charles James MacDonald, 90, a resident of the hotel at 642 Johnson.

The three were killed when fire swept through the interior of the seven-storey, 63-year-old hotel June 21.

Coroner Edmond St. Jorre has presided over the inquest which began June 24. There have been six sessions during which more than 15 hours of testimony were heard. It is expected to conclude tonight.

Renard said at no time had there been fire drills in the hotel but that every staff member had been given the time and opportunity to note the fire exits and equipment.

He said there had been fires before — he couldn't recall the exact number but estimated it would be less than 10 — and added all had been relatively minor and were caused by careless smoking.

Marcia Engleman, daughter of the hotel owner, Maurice Engleman of Portland, Oregan, testified she'd had a small fire in her room about a year ago when a cigarette fell into a garbage can. She put out the fire herself.

Fire officials have determined the fatal June 21 fire originated in Room 210 and was caused by a cigarette left smoldering on a bed.

Renard said there was a fire station complete with stirrup pump, hose, and fire alarm, only 12 feet away from the room which was occupied by Walter Stanley of Resolute Bay, N.W.T.

The manager said the hose could have easily reached the room but apparently was never used.

He said the hotel was subject to inspections by the Victoria fire department once every two months, and that he had promptly complied with whatever the inspectors recommended to improve fire safety in the building. An inspection had been due at about the time of the fire, he said.

Renard said there were no fire alarm bell sin the lobby, bar or kitchen but there were alarms on all floors from the second to the seventh. However, the alarm system could not be activated from the lobby.

He noted also that each floor was equipped with emergency lighting operating on a separate power source.

A juror asked him if he felt the fire protection facilities in the building were adequate and he replied, "Yes."

Under questioning by lawyer Richard Law, representing the Towers and Minnis families, Renard said some of the hotel stationery and advertisements had referred to the building as "fireproof."

Hotel janitor Jeffrey Rosenfeld of 2622 Prior testified he was cleaning in the beer parlor at about 1:45 a.m. the night of the fire when he heard a commotion in the lobby.

He opened the door to investigate and saw smoke pouring out of a doorway leading to the secod floor. He said a man told him he had just paid for a room for the night when the report of fire was received by the desk clerk, Albert Martell.

Rosenfeld said the man told him Martell phoned the fire department immediately and then went up to the second floor by elevator.

FOOD PRICES DIP

OTTAWA (CP) — While food prices rose about 1.5 per cent in the month ending the first week of August, the food prices review board said today that the prices dipped slightly in the second week of the month.

The decline — the first after four months of continually increasing food prices — was attributed primarily to substantial seasonal decreases in fresh vegetable prices.

A board spokesman said, however, it is not possible to determine whether the dip represents a temporary trend or a general downturn in the average price of food.

The over-all increase in food prices results primarily from continuing increases in the price of pork and eggs.

The only city with a decrease was Vancouver, where the weekly cost of the board's nutritious diet for a family of four dropped by 10 cents to $47.20. However the Vancouver cost of the diet remained the highest in the country.

SQUATTER Allen McLaughlin, 22, looks at hangman's nooses hung as "a joke" on the Quadra Island crown land where McLaughlin had built a cabin two years ago. The home was wrecked by a mob earlier this month in an apparent expression of hard feelings existing between newcomers to the island and local residents.

the weather

Showers and a few thundershowers persisted in the central and northern interior overnight while southern and coastal regions remained mainly cloudy with isolated sprinkles of rain occurring. A low pressure area in the Pacific will move rapidly southeast and pass over Washington State on Saturday. Rain will spread into the south coast late today and change to showers on Saturday. Cool unstable air will persist over the interior regions giving rise to numerous showers and some thundershowers.

Caught With His Pants Down

HONOLULU (UPI) — Moving portable chemical toilets is usually a rather drab business, but not this week at a Waikiki building project.

Honolulu Advertiser columnist Tom Horton reports a crane snatched one of the chemical johns and was winging it skyward when there was a sudden outburst of angry yells — from inside the toilet.

The crane operator set it down gingerly. After several anxious moments an unidentified man stepped out and hurried away, uninjured as far as anyone could tell.

Cuba Trade Nod Still Sore Spot

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — Canadian subsidiaries of United States companies can expect "automatic" approval of most applications to trade with Cuba, a U.S. official said Thursday.

Between 10 and 20 such applications are pending, and the official said that he knew of no compelling reason why they should not be approved.

However, the subsidiaries involved will still have to get a licence from the U.S. government before any deal can go ahead.

This eases, but does not eliminate, an extremely sore issue between Canada and the U.S.

The move is part of a new U.S. policy announced by the state department.

The policy will permit third-country subsidiaries to sell non-strategic goods to Cuba and is regarded as the first step in an over-all revision of U.S. relations with Cuba.

Eventually it is expected to lead to lifting the U.S. embargo on Cuba trade which has been in effect since 1964.

A senior trade department official said Thursday in Ottawa that the easing of trade restrictions on Cuba is "a useful step" for Canada.

The official suggested the move did not surprise him.

Canada had been pressing for removal of the trade barriers for several years.

The situation came to a head last year when two Canadian subsidiaries of American companies signed contracts with Cuba. MLW Worthington of Montreal contracted to sell the Castro regime railway locomotives and a Scarboro, Ont., firm agreed to sell office equipment to Cuba.

Reaction in the United States was that the companies were violating American legislation prohibiting trade with "the enemy," but the deals went through anyway.

Canada has always insisted that it is none of the business of the U.S. to dictate whether firms located in Canada can sell goods to Cuba and has regarded the licensing procedure as interference with Canadian sovereignty.

The licensing involves an application to the U.S. treasury department, which in turn consults the state department before issuing a decision.

Under the new policy, in most cases a licence will be granted to a Canadian subsidiary, but the U.S. wants to retain the right of scrutiny for two reasons.

One reason is to ensure that no "strategic" goods — relating to weapons or security — are involved.

The other reason is to ensure that U.S. subsidiaries do not take advantage of the new policy by faking what amount to direct sales to Cuba.

The U.S. plans to limit the amount of U.S. content in any goods marketed by subsidiaries and although no firm guidelines have yet been drawn up, "obviously if it was just a shell requiring 90 per cent parts made in the U.S., we wouldn't approve it," one official said.

The official said the U.S. wanted to guard against "export of goods and capital" to a third country just to facilitate sales to Cuba.

White House press secretary Ron Nessen said lifting the ban on sales to Cuba by American firms operating in third countries "really doesn't relate to bilateral relations with Cuba — it relates more to American relations with other inter-American countries."

Asked about President Ford's view of U.S. relations with Cuba, Nessen said there would be no advantage to permanent antogonism between the two countries but that any change in bilateral relations would depend on Cuba's attitude.

The state department announcement brought expressions of criticism from Cuban exiles in the Miami area.

Juanita Castro, sister and avowed enemy of Cuba Prime Minister Fidel Castro, said: "It is disappointing that the leaders of the free world cannot learn from history when dealing with the Communists. We feel betrayed by the United States once again."

FERNWOOD FOLK DANCE IN STREET

Dancing in the street will be one of the features of the Fernwood's annual Fernwood Days Saturday in Stevenson Park on Gladstone.

Starting at 11 with a pet contest and the official opening at 1 with the crowning of the king and queen, here will be a beer garden along with games and contests for children and adults alike.

Also there will be an end to a lot of itching for some men as soon as the beard-growing champ is named.

Factory Girls Watch Slaying

BELFAST (AP) — Rival assassination gangs shot and killed a Roman Catholic and a Protestant and wounded two other men Thursday as political leaders made new efforts to bring peace to Northern Ireland.

Horrified factory girls saw two gunmen step from a side street and fire four shots into the head of Roman Catholic John Finlay during the height of Belfast's morning rush hour.

Three hours later a Protestant, David Davidson, was shot to death at a gas station outside the city. Finlay's co-workers in a timber yard stopped work at lunch time as a mark of respect and decided to donate their morning's earnings to his widow.

Meanwhile, political leaders made fresh efforts to break the deadlock between the Protestant Unionist party and the largely Catholic Social Democratic and Labor party on power sharing in the future regional government of Northern Ireland.

A series of meetings was planned over the weekend and talks were set between the individual parties and Sir Robert Lowry, chairman of the convention set up by the British government to find a constitution acceptable to the province.

"We are hoping that Lowry may have suggestions which can break the gap between the two major blocs," said an official of the moderate Alliance party.

Officer Suspended After Shooting

CALGARY (CP) — A police constable was suspended from duty following a shooting incident in southwest Calgary Thursday morning in which a juvenile was hit by a bullet.

A police spokesman said the constable fired three shots at an automobile which was stolen from a reported break-and-enter case.

He said a police patrol car tried to stop the vehicle for investigation shortly before 4 a.m.

The vehicle, with four juveniles inside, sped away.

Following a high-speed chase, the vehicle was stopped after colliding with the cruiser.

The four were arrested after the three bullets were fired, the spokesman added.

"One of the juveniles received minor back injuries resulting from a ricocheting bullet. He was treated at hospital and released."

The juveniles were in custody and the constable was suspended pending the outcome of further investigations, he said.

$2 Million For Indian Loggers

OTTAWA (CP) — A $2.15-million grant to establish a logging operation on northwest Vancouver Island was announced Thursday by the Department of Regional Economic Expansion.

The largest single grant to date under the Agricultural and Rural Development Act, it is for Ehattesaht Co-Operative Enterprises Ltd., which will provide 75 jobs, two-thirds of which will be for Indians.

The co-operative is owned by members of the Ehattesaht Indian Band and will cut timber on land made available by the B.C. government.

As well as the grant, interim and long-term financing for the project is to be provided by the Indian Affairs Department and training funds by the Manpower Department.

Strikers Charged

EDMONTON (CP) — Charges of taking part in an illegal strike have been laid against 60 federal government employees, all members of the Public Service Alliance of Canada.

Appearing in provincial court, defence counsels for the workers reserved plea on behalf of some, while others entered pleas of not guilty.

The charges were laid by RCMP acting on orders from the federal justice department in connection with a study session held by the workers in December.

All of those charged are members of the General Laborers and Trades section of PSAC and include post office, hospital and transport department workers.

If found guilty, the employees face maximum fines of $100.

The Agony of Portugal

The upheaval in Portugal is nearing a climax in a scenario remarkably similar to the Russian revolution. In 1917, a cross-section of Russian people revolted against the right-wing autocracy of the czars, forming a provisional government that lasted eight months, when Lenin's ultra-leftist Bolsheviks seized power.

In the case of Portugal, the interregnum has lasted 16 months, but the days of the provisional government are clearly numbered. In Russia, Kerensky was the moderate who briefly held power. In Portugal, Spinola lasted seven months before being forced out of office last September.

The Lenin figure has yet to emerge in Portugal. Leading candidates, until Thursday, were Communist party boss Alvaro Cunhal, internal security forces commander Otelo Caryalho and the political front man for Portugal's Communists, Vasco Goncalves.

Now, apparently, there are two. The continuing strikes by anti-Communist pro-socialist workers has brought disrepute to Goncalves and his resignation is expected.

Meanwhile, the disorders continue across Portugal and the outcome is by no means certain. The majority of Portuguese want moderate socialism but whether they can withstand the combined military strength of Communist soldiers and workers remains to be seen. In Russia they could not.

As chance would have it, there was a test of popular will in both revolutions in the form of a parliament of the same name, the constituent assembly. In 1917 Russia, 58 per cent of the people voted (in their only completely free election ever) for a moderate agrarian socialism. The Communists got only 25 per cent of the vote. Lenin quickly closed the constituent assembly as soon as he had consolidated his power.

In Portugal the constituent assembly has not yet been summoned by the provisional government and it may never be. But the election results are an excellent reading of the popular will. Moderate socialists won 38 per cent of the vote while a middle-of-the-road party, the Popular Democrats, got 26 per cent. The Communists polled only 12.5 per cent.

The real power, however, continues to be in the hands of the provisional government, a loose coalition of Communists, socialists and the military. The coalition is so unwieldy that the army is looking for some sort of order to support. The Communists are in the strongest position at the moment because they are a small but united force without the internal dissent of more moderate groups.

The army, ultimately, will decide the issue, supporting the Communists or some moderate leader who emerges from the present disarray. Socialist leader Mario Soares is the most popular of the moderates but strength, not popularity, will decide the final outcome. Another moderate, Ernesto Antunes, who has led the battle to oust Communist Premier Goncalves, may become a compromise candidate from the moderate ranks.

If the mass of workers wearies of the battles in the street, however, there will be no one left to opopse the determined onslaught of ultra-left-wing power, led by either of the two remaining Communist strongmen, Cunhal or Carvalho.

Whether Portugal becomes western Europe's first Communist country before year's end appears to be no better or worse than a 50-50 proposition. It would be no less than tragic, however, if after a brief interlude of ferment and free play of ideas, Portugal traded a fascist dictatorship for an extreme left-wing totalitarianism.

". . . then figure it this way . . . you caught a four-pound salmon, you paid $45 for gas to get here, $25 you laid out for the trailer park, another $25 to rent this boat, $8 to rent the fishing rods . . . you lost three flashers and lures so far and I lost two — that's $25 . . . $45 for gas to get home again . . . add it all up and so far you've paid $43.25 a pound for that little fish . . ."

Boneyard of Broken Dreams

Senator Keith Davey, who's supposed to have the ear of Prime Minister Trudeau after his successful job a year ago in co-ordinating his re-election campaign, once said that the upper chamber (to which he was summoned in 1966) had an "incredibly bad image . . . a credibility gap that's getting wider every day."

The image has crumbled a bit more and the gap has widened by at least several feet with Trudeau's appointment of Jack Austin, his discredited principal secretary, to the red chamber. What's happened to the brave new Trudeau of 1968 who promised to reform the senate from top to bottom?

There have been some worthwhile initiatives from the senate in recent years — Davey's inquiry into the mass media, Senator David Croll's poverty report — but they are the few exceptions. Rather than a place of "sober second thought," as the traditional phrase describes the place, a better description might be found in a pungent line from Davey's mass media report, "a boneyard of broken dreams."

He used it to describe newspaper editorial offices, but it applies to the somnolent senate equally as well. What does the senate do for the several million dollars a year it costs to operate? Except as a dumping ground for political embarrassment, defeated government candidates, superannuated cabinet ministers and a nest of conflicts of interest, can the senate be said to be doing much for the public good?

If Austin's appointment is evidence of the campaign promised three years ago by Davey to push for younger, harder-working and more capable senators, more women and measures to "dramatically upgrade and improve the senate's public image," then campaign no further. Put away the cosmetics and turn the senate into office space for the elected members of parliament.

FRANK RUTTER

Test for Reagan and Ford

WASHINGTON — The much-courted voters of New Hampshire, the most Canadian state, who usually get first say about who should be president of the United States, are getting an extra ballot in an unusual electoral test next month.

In normal circumstances New Hampshire's hardy souls (thirteen per cent of Canadian stock) would next have gone to the polls in March, when presidential hopefuls of both the Republican and Democratic parties will mush through snow and sleet in a primary election campaign.

But politics decree otherwise, and a special election will be held Sept. 16 to choose a senator for New Hampshire with the bonus of some early presidential campaigning on the side.

The results will prove significant to presidential aspirants as well as the major parties because they can be analysed as a test score for the Democrat-controlled Congress and for Republican President Gerald Ford, giving a preview of next year's presidential election.

First Year

This is the Congress elected last November as a reaction to Watergate, and the president, not elected but appointed because of Watergate, each unable to get along with the other during their first year of office.

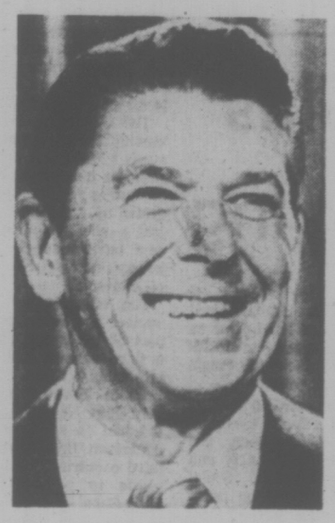
The election is a rerun of last year's New Hampshire race, the tightest in the nation, in which the voters were unable to make a clear decision.

First count gave the senate to Democrat John A. Durkin, but a recount favored Republican Louis C. Wyman by two votes, and when this was challenged the matter was thrown to the senate, which spent seven months wrangling before the two candidates agreed to the new election.

The wrangling was symptomatic of the immobility of the legislative body on issues of genuine national importance. The huge Democratic majority in the Congress proved to be undisciplined and ill-led, provoking a series of inconclusive confrontations with President Ford, vetoes and overrides, which resulted in little legislative accomplishment by the time of the summer recess.

A Wyman-Durkin decision was frustrated by filibuster, rule-squabbling, procedural manoeuvring. Six times — a record for any one issue — votes were held to cut off debate, but all failed to secure a sufficient majority. Eight attempts to call a new election were defeated.

Wyman may be the main beneficiary of all this, because he advocated a new election from the start, charging the Democrats with trying to "steal" his victory. It was only three days before the



RONALD REAGAN
. . . visible candidate

August recess that Durkin agreed to the election.

Meanwhile, the conservative Republican Governor Meldrim Thomson exercised his right to appoint an interim Senator to serve the unrepresented electorate, and chose the previous incumbent, Republican Norris Cotton, who had retired at age 75, a move expected to help Wyman.

But one of the reasons last year's election was unexpectedly close was Wyman's previous record, while a member of the House of Representatives, as a strong supporter of Richard Nixon and his possible involvement in clandestine campaign fund activities. Wyman's role in the alleged "purchase" of the post of ambassador to Luxemburg by Ruth Farkas is still under investigation.

The two candidates are off to a flying start of colorful campaigning, exchanging mudballs of strong language, and the contest is a good test of partisan strength.

It should disclose whether the Republicans are able to come back from the thrashing they got last November across the country, whether Watergate is forgotten, and whether the Democrats have capitalized or lost on their majority.

But it is something more than that.

President Ford is putting his prestige on the line by campaigning on Wyman's behalf.

This ensures that the president vs. Congress issue gets into the campaign, with the result potentially indicating which side rates the most public sympathy.

Primary Campaign

It is also an opportunity for Ford to test his personal popularity on ground he will be trudging again next March in the primary campaign.

By coincidence, the only visible rival to Ford's nomination as Republican presidential candidate, former California governor Ronald Reagan, will also be campaigning in the gold of autumn.

Reagan has declared his intention to arrive in New Hampshire six days before the election. Ford has not yet announced a date, and it will be amusing to see who gets there first and whether they campaign on the same platform.

Such a remarkable display of high-level enthusiasm cannot be unrelated to next year's primary and the efforts of both Ford and Reagan to line up support in New Hampshire, a state which has traditionally exercised harsh and trend-setting judgments on presidential candidates.

Among past victims have been Nelson Rockefeller, Barry Goldwater, Lyndon Johnson and Edmund Muskie.

If Wyman should win the Senate election it will be interesting to see who claims the most credit for it — Ford or Reagan.

Moscow Meddling in China

STOCKHOLM — The most significant commitment of the European summit participants — and the least noticed — was the pledge that "all one another's frontiers" shall be "inviolable."

This specifically includes the Soviet-Chinese border and, since the United States signed, it cannot help but alter the diplomatic balance affecting the neighboring Communist behemoths.

I have talked with several leaders who autographed the document involved and none of them had been aware of its Asian implications. One prime minister said: "At least the Chinese should be pleased that we also agreed there can be no territorial changes except by peaceful means." I doubt if Peking is delighted. It certainly is more acutely aware of what was done than any other capital save Moscow.

'Unjust' Treaties

Against this background, one must look at what now is happening in China. The Chinese aren't concerned about Russia laying claims to areas on Peking's side of the border. It is the other way around, with China insisting that the present frontier was unfairly imposed by "unjust" treaties and must be modified at Moscow's expense.

For the past several years few observers have worried about earlier speculation that Russia was about to launch a preventive war on China to eliminate its nuclear capacity. Opinion has swung about to a suspicion the Kremlin instead now secretly backs forces that might make trouble during a political succession struggle after the deaths of Mao Tse-tung and Chou En-lai — forces that could turn back to a pro-Soviet line in exchange for such help. It is useful to recall that former Defence Minister Lin Piao (killed in 1971) and other leaders have been accused of such tendencies.

As Mao's energies drain and Chou remains hospitalized most of the time, there are new reports of trouble inside China. Workers have been officially criticized for demanding higher wages and causing industrial "troubles." There have also been physical clashes between militia units and gangs in provincial cities.

In ancient Hangchow disturbances were so serious that Wang Hung-wen, a young activist and number three in the present party hierarchy, was sent to restore order. He failed. Subsequently Teng Hsiao-ping, Chief of Staff and Deputy Premier, who increasingly shoulders the burdens of Chou, went to Hangchow with a brigade of infantry from Nanking and tranquilized the situation.

LIN PIAO
. . . was he Russia's man?

The People's Liberation Army (Teng is its senior officer) has sought to stay out of the Hangchow clashes. However, when militia factions began fighting each other with mortars and automatic rifles while Peking only implored those involved to calm things, a crisis threatened. Train-drivers refused to cross the "dangerous area" which is near Shanghai.

The central government was forced to act. It ordered the militia to disband and give up its arms. This was accomplished with difficulty. An army security unit from Peking (far to the north) was sent to patrol Hangchow's streets and safeguard trains traversing the region.

What all this seems to indicate is that competition has already begun in the struggle for the post-Maoist succession. Wang has lost face in an important test while Teng, with Chou's overt support, has gained.

This interpretation would seem confirmed by the official announcement of a high-level dinner party July 31 in Peking's Great Hall of the People. The guests of honor included the new Minister of Defence and the entire High Command, featuring Deputy Premier Teng. Wang and his sponsor, Madame Mao (Chiang Ching) were absent.

Going to Russia

Since the Lin Piao conspiracy four years ago, the army has been staying out of the public eye. Lin had been Defence Minister when he died in a plane crash on his way to Russia. Since then many of his associates and military appointees have been purged. Lin was fleeing toward the U.S.S.R. and there is no saying how deeply Moscow may have been involved in Chinese plotting.

But China's Army leadership seems to have been entirely "purified." Now, through Teng, it has gained prestige by showing it could achieve results that radical party leaders like Wang were unable to accomplish.

And the army is not only a vital factor as the post-Mao political kaleidoscope pattern emerges. It is nationalist, not inclined to be pro-Russian, determined to straighten out the Soviet frontier in a more favorable sense, and in no way bound by promises made at Helsinki in the name of "European security."

Some Story Ideas

A local newspaper publisher recently found himself swimming in the printer's ink vat in the back shop. The end result, though a bit blackish, came out readable. If the ink stains ever wear off, maybe the publisher would like to try his skill as a news-chasing legman.

Here are a few assignments for a start:

Needle national defence into herding every work-shy, trouble-bent military-ager into the infantry.

Red-ink major oil company gougers until they add a new, power-packed additive to their petroleum products, GXPN "government expropriation."

Black-ink thousands of dollars savings in medicare costs by telling medical labs to tell diabetics their blood-sugar counts. As it is now, hundreds of diabetics are sent back to their doctors, who in less than 30 seconds tell the patients the sugar-level, then bill Medicare at least $7.50.

Mayor Peter Pullen is soon assigning himself out the exit door at city hall. Pester him to tell the people about the reported $25,000-per-day savings during the garbage-collection strike.

Rake Transport Minister Robert Strachan until he explains why Vancouver Island commuters cannot get aboard B.C. ferries until all U.S. campers and other foreign vehicles are loaded.

Help the police in their efforts to smarten up drunk drivers. Put every drunk driver's name in bold caps, thence within bold, black-bordered display space on the front page of every newspaper and charge the space rate to ICBC. — Ernie R. Smith, 3968 Bear Street.

Portuguese Crisis

It is indeed pathetic to read of the deep concern of the Roman Catholic church for the preservation of democracy in Portugal when for some 50 years it supported a ruthless right-wing dictatorship in that country. Of course the same applies to neighboring Spain and countless other military and civilian right-wing dictatorships in Latin America and other parts of the world.

I have never been able to receive an answer to why a right-wing dictatorship of a small minority is good whereas a left-wing dictatorship in the interests of the many is evil. I am not in favor of dictatorships of the right or the left but surely the Roman Catholic church should treat both types of dictatorships as evil. I know after living in many countries that all people are not ready for democracy such as we knew it in Canada.

But I also know that if we continue to back right-wing dictatorships which favor just the few, the day of reckoning will be sure to dawn and many Castros will be born. Surely no thinking person would try to maintain that the Russia of the czars, Cuba of Batista and China of Chiang Kai-shek were preferable to the present regimes regardless of their obvious shortcomings?—M. P. B. Wrixon, 301-1701 Cedar Hill X Road.

60 YEARS AGO

From the Times of August 22, 1915

Acting under the delusions induced by religious mania extending over a year or more and while in the insane state of mind so brought about, Mrs. Cora Maude Anderson murdered her husband George with their wood chopping axe as he lay asleep in their home about 1 a.m. yesterday. Some seven hours later, having spent the intervening time in what might be considered sane acts about her home and her children, she ended her own life in the sea off Holland Point, a few hundred yards away from their Lewis Street home. The terrible double tragedy is traceable to one cause — the hallucination that her husband was not as good as she was and that she was called upon to end his life.

There's Still A Hope For India

By GAVIN YOUNG
London Observer

"God save the Queen" is the new Indian National Anthem, according to a joke — probably the only one — doing the rounds of Delhi today. Mrs. Indira Gandhi is the "Queen," of course, since her suppression of democracy this summer. But, in this stunned and apathetic capital, few people feel like laughing.

Distinctly unfunny things are now facts of life. Last week, for instance, a man suddenly sprang up in a Delhi bus, whipped out a badge and snapped to two gossiping passengers: "I'm a police officer, and I heard you criticizing the government. Come along with me."

No one laughed then. Nor, I am told, did a gathering of Indian newspaper editors laugh when Mrs. Gandhi's suave new minister of information, V. C. Shukla, burst out at them: "I'll have the likes of you horsewhipped in the street."

Democracy Failed

There is a familiar lesson for us all in the way Mrs. Gandhi's emergency regulations have given, as such things do, every aspiring official bully-boy his head. In a moment of high drama last month, just before the vote was announced in which Mrs. Gandhi's men overwhelmingly approved the state of emergency, a brave Opposition member stood up and began a countdown to the "death of Indian democracy" ("Two minutes . . . one minute, . . . eight seconds, seven, six, five, four . . .").

Nevertheless, a vital question persists: Can a great good come out of all this repression and grief? After 25 years of democracy have signally failed to alleviate the appalling economic and social misery of India's masses, can authoritarian rule do so?

From the level of the Calcutta streets, for example, as you step through the sprawling skeletal bodies and the entreating stumps of the mutilated poor in this City of Dreadful Night, you begin to wonder. I found students in Gujarat, who had violently demonstrated against Mrs. Gandhi's rule in January 1974, wondering too. So are a number of well-intentioned Indian intellectuals in Delhi and elsewhere.

Mrs. Gandhi herself now projects "national discipline" as the justification for her coup. She is eager to show Indians that even at a month's remove from it, things are better. And everyone agrees that civil servants amazingly, are getting to work on time, smugglers and foreign currency offenders are being rounded up, prices are coming down.

But in fact, her own past weakness seems the likeliest reason for her suppression of democracy. Since 1972, a tidal wave of troubles has plagued her: a deteriorating economy, three years of appalling droughts, humiliating charges of personal electoral malpractice, the stunning defeat of the Congress Party in Gujarat State in June despite her energetic campaigning, and the activities of the Opposition Front under widely respected leaders like the 73-year-old incorruptible Jayaprakash Narayan, and Nehru's former colleague, Morarji Desai.

Instead of reforms, she resorted to "Rent-a-Crowd" at least once: Delhi was deprived of its public transport while her organizers commandeered the buses to bring "spontaneous supporters" to hear four-hour speeches. But the final straw seems to have been a threat from within Mrs. Gandhi's own party to replace her with the mountainous Untouchable leader, Jagjivan Ram, now minister of food.

Her lightning coup scotched that — a fact she shrewdly underlined by getting Jagjivan Ram to make "obeisance" by defending her actions before Parliament.

But might not Mrs. Gandhi's new political departure — whether she acted though altruism or sheer self-interest — work wonders for the 85 per cent of Indians who live on crumbs, not uncensored newspapers?

The slums of Calcutta, the hovels of Bihar are not likely to mourn the death of democracy, or the expulsion of foreign journalists. Indian politics, both in Delhi and in the States, long ago deteriorated into a naked struggle for power with the masses its miserable victims. A wretchedly poor nation like this cannot afford such a state of affairs.

Opposition Failed

Yet, where did salvation lie? From Mrs. Gandhi's Opposition? In Delhi, last month, I could find no one to tell me what coherent set of policies the now banned Opposition was offering. (This is a point Mrs. Gandhi is plugging, understandably, for all she's worth. And that is the Opposition's unforgivable failing, not its alleged threat to law and order, or even the undoubted corruption of some of its component parties.)

But what has Mrs. Gandhi herself done since she came to power?

It's not that she has done nothing, as opponents say, but far too little. After years in power, Mrs. Gandhi's achievements have been to give educated Indians a more confident and far less dependent attitude vis-a-vis the Western world. There's less talk of importing foreign "experts," a new national pride among Indian technologists. Her severing of Bangladesh from Yahya Khan's Pakistan in 1971 was a brilliant piece of political surgery.

Since then, it has been downhill nearly all the way. The masses are probably worse off than before, and that cannot be entirely blamed on world recession and disastrous droughts. One brave editor in Delhi — repression brings out the best qualities in some as well as the worst in others — says: "She hasn't failed heroically; she hasn't really tried. She has been all political tactics, no strategy. And you can't win the war against India's problems like that."

One undoubted reason for Mrs. Gandhi's failure is the company she keeps. It isn't just that by almost universal consent — Indian as well as foreign — some of her closest colleagues are a distinctly unsavory lot. One doesn't have to believe all the ugly rumors in Delhi to wonder with so many others why Mrs. Gandhi tolerated for so long her late railway minister, L. N. Mishra — in fact until she was deprived of him by a bomb.

Why, when his name has become increasingly connected with the formulation of her domestic policies, including the current repression, as well as a much-bruited commercial scandal, does not Mrs. Gandhi put — in public at least — a discreet step or two between her and her son, Sanjay?

In fact, Congress politics and many Congress personalities have for years recalled the ugliest side of Big Boss-style politics in America. West Bengal, for instance, is controlled less through the ballot box than by strong-arm tactics in the streets and through patronage by Mrs. Gandhi's appointee, Siddartha Shankar Roy, a clever and charming man, who it is true was obliged to resort to unorthodox measures in a place where the left-wing Communists, too, use street gangs, and where extreme Left Naxalite terrorists throw bombs.

But in other places Mrs. Gandhi has less excusable "enforcers." Will she now dispense with them and turn to untainted and talented new blood?

Mrs. Gandhi's critics also point to her exaggerated concern with central government control; her terror of Congress losing even a few State governments; her intolerance of regional aspirations.

The major sign that Mrs. Gandhi is after India's good and not just avid for personal power would be a complete overhaul of the ugly, elephantine bulk of the Congress Party.

She May Fail Too

Has she a master plan for the overhaul of the party? Flicking at the barnacles and rust with a feather duster will not do.

She used to think in idealistic terms of young, honest Congress cadres really seeking out the needs and desires of the grassroot masses. The image today of Mrs. Gandhi's party in the villages and townships is of an empty shack with a telephone off the hook because the local Congress agent has not bothered to pay the bill — except, of course, at election time when the fat men from the city waddle in handing out rupee notes to the faithful. Will she now enlist those young men and women with a mission she once dreamed of?

The skeptics — not necessarily her enemies — are naturally extremely pessimistic. "You just cannot run such a huge, diverse, irradicably corrupt place like India with authoritarian rule," I was told. "The Civil Service — all those dead-beat babus — is just a great, blundering, chaotic Circumlocution Office. The police, too, are struggling with red-tape and can't cope with regional disaffection on a large scale."

And such disaffection, many said, must eventually emerge. "The old democratic way did at least make people all over India feel they were part of a whole national system. This defused a great deal of potential regional discontent." In other words, Mrs. Gandhi's success depends on finding the perfect ratio between Repression and Participation.

Mrs. Gandhi's rule today makes the flesh creep with the aloof ruthlessness of its application. The human warmth of India still peeps out cautiously at the lower official levels. At higher levels, a malign, inflexible arrogance is suddenly apparent.

The Indian government's grotesquely churlish treatment of the Western press may be due to inexperience, muddle, fear or sheer bloody-mindedness; who can tell? Certainly, I have never seen such impossibly tough censorship rules in any dictatorship.

But India's miserable millions are the ones who count. Jayaprakash Narayan, the imprisoned, adored apostle of non-violence and government rooted in the village community, has said: "There are only two ways" — ours and Mao Tse-tung's. His unworldly way has not caught on. Mrs. Gandhi could now purge and rejuvenate her party. Then, conceivably, her way will work and Mao's will prove unnecessary.

Mrs. Gandhi . . . much to be done

Democracy on Trial Where it All Began

By HERBERT MITGANG
New York Times

ATHENS — In the city-state where it first flourished, democracy is on trial in the streets and in the courtrooms. A year after the downfall of the military junta, following seven tongueless years under colonels and nightsticks, the dictatorship has been dismantled, elections have been held, a new, albeit imperfect, constitution has been adopted and, symbolically, the goddess Athena has replaced the king's face on the coins of the republic.

But democracy after tyranny is a delicate form of government, and nowhere more so than along the Mediterranean.

Sipping coffee the other day at Zonor's, hard by Constitution Square, an observer watched a group of building workers and students as they attempted to assemble and air various grievances before parliament and ministry officers. Phalanxes of police blocked their way.

A long-time resident of Athens said that this peaceful demonstration was a test of the new constitution which significantly limits the right of public assembly and even empowers the government to banish persons considered a threat to public order.

The gray-uniformed police strolled toward the trouble spots, casually trying to conceal their billy clubs. Several carried batons in rolled-up newspapers.

One police officer, wearing a rinkydink sidearm in a canvas holster, placed his club inside an attache case, like a commuter carrying his lunch. Another rambled with his billy in a plastic grocery bag, its bulge clearly outlined. The bag was appropriately decorated with drawings of Pluto and Mickey Mouse.

Suddenly, the demonstrators broke out of the bounds set by the Athens director of police. The police retaliated by firing canisters of tear gas. Crowds scattered, eyes smarting. With the form of an Olympic sprinter, head high and elbows pumping, a student leader raced past the emptied outdoor tables in the square, pursued by an armored car. Sirens wailed.

Experienced demonstrators applied salve under eyelids to assuage the sting of reddened eyes. Outsiders blinked back tears and rubbed their eyes in pain and astonishment.

Afterwards, some government spokesmen admitted that the police may have overreacted. Old habits die hard. Opposition parties claimed that junta elements had instigated the violence. An admirer of the government said, "They are trying to put banana peels in the path of Premier Caramanlis so that the Communists can take over in the chaos, Portugal-style."

Reassuringly, a young Greek woman said that, in contrast to the suppression by the junta, this was an example of democracy in action. To an observer, it did not quite look like a return to the golden age of Pericles.

CARAMANLIS
. . . banana peels

A far more admirable example of the constitutional government is on display, not in the torture chambers of the military police's "special interrogation branch" or on some remote island in the Aegean, but in military and civilian tribunals in and near Athens. Judicial inquiries precede indictments, defendants are permitted counsel, and a genuine effort is being made to achieve fair trial.

There are, in fact, four different trials aimed at reaching the very top of the conspiracy and crimes committed by the military junta in the name of law and order and national security. The major trial — of former President George Papadopoulos and 20 leaders of the military coup and ensuing dictatorship — is for high treason. It is taking place inside a prison near Piraeus, where the defendants are being held, before a five-member Court of Magistrates.

What the defendants have not been permitted to do is simply to plead "no contest" — a Greek journalist remarked, "like your former vice-president, Mr. Agnew" — because this is a show trial, as well as a trial of retribution for heinous crimes. It is designed to convince the Greek people and the world that justice has been restored and that it is worth the risk of candor. There can be an important end-result: to discourage future political activity by military officers.

All this is being thoroughly reported in the press — speaking for the spectrum of political parties and views from left to right — and broadcast in highlight summaries at the end of each day.

For the Greek and foreign journalists who want to watch the trials in air-conditioned comfort, 15 closed-circuit TV monitors have been set up in the Grand Bretagne Hotel and other communications facilities have been placed at the disposal of reporters. White-jacketed waiters circulate below the chandeliers, proving that justice and ouzo can be served uncensored.

Although the Caramanlis government faces serious economic problems at home and the Cyprus situation remains a thorn in relations with Turkey and a source of disenchantment with the United States, the restoration of freedom is a visible fact.

In one year, the government has been changed without bloodshed, open trials have begun and banned political parties are now represented in parliament.

To mythologically-minded Greeks, the new hydra-headed serpent is Henry Kissinger and the C.I.A. It is disturbing to see anti-American and anti-NATO signs scrawled in the streets but this is one of the prices of liberty which, in the long run, makes for stronger allies.

An agent of an outfit known as the Gamma Project has been quietly plumbing the minds of knowledgeable Maritimers in recent weeks, and I suspect other Gamma men are slipping in and out of the cities of central Canada and the West as well. No, Gamma is not an international spy ring though, in some respects, it is every bit as trendy as James Bond was a few years back.

Gamma is an all-Canadian "futures study group". It says it "aims at promoting interdisciplinary, interuniversity and intercultural studies on subjects related to long-term explorations and forecasting". Naturally, it is bilingual.

The Gamma Project is among the most fascinating items in my secret file of little-known but highly imaginative ways in which the federal government spends your dollar and mine. It may be ironic that funds for the project come from an institution of government whose very name suggests no-nonsense, feet-on-the-ground, decision-making: the Department of Supply and Services.

Gamma is a bunch of Canadian academics, mostly from McGill and the University of Montreal. Their promotional literature disarmingly acknowledges that studying the future can be "an immense fraud" but then hastens to assure everyone their own effort is serious, unfraudulent, disdainful of faddish "pop futurology".

Gamma was born in 1974 and promptly won an 18-month contract from Supply and Services to describe something called the conserver society as an alternative to the consumer society (in which we now wallow) and to test its feasibility in a Canadian context, or something.

Watch that "conserver society". The great society is a bad, old Yankee joke. The just society is a bad, old Canadian joke. The conserver society has just made her move, and she's coming up fast on the outside. (Actually, the dark-horse favourite is the broke society.)

Anyway, Gamma starts by asking, "is indiscriminate, uncontrolled economic growth still desirable as a high-order goal for society in the 1970s?" (Jeers, boos, hisses, cries of "no. Never. Absolutely not. Death to the growthmongers.") The conserver society is one in which growth is controlled, and one of Gamma's jobs is to define "alternative blueprints for a Canadian conserver society."

Gamma defines its "problematique," produces "horizon scenarios," considers "fully detailed scenarios of conservation" (probably from many "foci") and generally engages in interaction, interdisciplinary synthesis and cross-impact analysis, if you get the picture.

To do all this properly, it requires expertise from an economist, management economist, theoretical economist, urban specialist, regional specialist, resource specialist, energy engineer, marketing expert, political scientist, anthropologist, psychologist, ecologist, demographer and philosopher. Then there's the project director, a couple of assistant directors, and maybe a half-a-dozen graduate students to do research.

And what happens when the contract expires next spring? Fear not. Futures study groups never die; they just move on to Phase 2. Gamma expects assorted government agencies will want to fund "the appropriate sequel to Phase 1."

Indeed, 14 public servants from 12 departments and agencies of the federal government have already joined Gamma's 16 research associates in the effort to define the conserver society. Their participation heightened Gamma's problem in internal communication. Its experts don't dig one another's jargon.

A Gamma bulletin says "the forbidding vocabulary" of different "intellectual languages" would "discourage interdisciplinarity." It was bad enough that not all the future-ponderers were bilingual. It was worse that each spoke his or her own professional language:

"In the Gamma team and federal core group between 15 and 20 disciplines were represented, each jealously guarding its linguistic and methodological traditions. To have attempted an unprepared face-to-face seminar involving 35 people was to court disaster."

Gamma, in its early stages, therefore resorted to a "Delphi-type" research technique. This enabled the futurists to "play together in harmony," as it were. Delphi-type research is an exchange of ideas and opinions by mail. (Its chief flaw for futurists is that, if a mail strike occurs, the future is upon them before they know what their cohorts think about it.)

But now that the Gamma Project is under way, I hope it all works. The experts have such difficulty understanding one another I'm not confident they'll ever be able to make the rest of us understand the perfect Canadian conserver society, but I wish them well. Heaven knows, somebody's got to worry full-time about where we're all going.

And wouldn't it be wonderful if the conserver society caught on? Why, one distant day we might even have a government that would pay more than lip service to the idea of conserving the taxpayer's dollar. Here's to the next federal government. A conserver government. Long may she reign over us!

Moderate Gains At Toronto

Prices at Toronto continued to climb moderately higher in light mid-afternoon trading today.

Volume by 2 p.m. shrank to 772,000 shares from 924,000 at the same time Thursday.

Advances outnumbered declines 158 to 119 with 197 issues unchanged.

Lacroix Inc. rose 2 to 18. Alberta Natural Gas 1½ to $23. Occidental Pete ⅜ to $18¼. Peoples Department Stores ⅝ to $5⅞ and Federal Pioneer A ⅜ to $22¼.

Simpsons, which reported lower net earnings for the first half of the fiscal year, fell ⅝ to $8⅜. Westburne International A ⅜ to $9¼. Imperial Oil A ¼ to $24¾ and Canadian Industries ⅛ to $21¼.

Cyprus Anvil was up ¼ to $8. Sherritt Gordon A ⅛ to $7¼ and Cassiar Asbestos ⅛ to $7⅛.

Camflo lost ¼ to $12⅝ and Canada Tungsten 15 cents to $3.10.

Pan Ocean rose ⅜ to $10⅜, Numac ⅜ to $10½ and Pan-Canadian Pete ¼ to $15⅜.

New York

The market put together a broad gain today in bargain hunting stimulated by hopes for a break in the recent rise of interest rates.

Gainers outpaced losers by about a 2-to-1 margin in light trading at New York.

Brokers noted a favorable response to the substantial drop in the United State's money supply shown in weekly statistics issued by the Federal Reserve Board after Thursday's close.

Foreign Exchange

MONTREAL (CP) — Today's mid-day foreign exchange rates supplied by the Bank of Montreal in Canadian funds: Australia dollar 1.3680, Austria schilling .0580, Belgium convertible franc .0282, Bermuda dollar 1.0450, Brazil cruzeiro .1289, Bulgaria lev .9815, China renminbi .5900, Czechoslovakia crown .1925, Denmark krone .1770, France franc .2430, Germany mark .4100, Greece drachma .0342, Hungary orint .0195, India rupee .1225, Italy lira .001595, Japan yen .003535, Mexico peso .0840, Netherlands guilder .4005, New Zealand dollar 1.1350, Norway krone .1930, Poland zloty .0468, Romania leu .1963, South Africa rand 1.48, Spain peseta .0194, Sweden krona .2440, Switzerland franc .3935, United Kingdom pound 2.22, United States dollar 1.0395, U.S.S.R. ruble 1.4140, Venezuela bolivar free .2413.

$ EXCHANGE

In Victoria today purchase of U.S. funds in terms of Canadian dollars at the Royal Bank was 1.0320 for cash, 1.0325 for cheques and 1.0420 for coins. Selling rates were 1.0425 for cheques and 1.0490 for cash.

MONTREAL (CP) — U.S. dollar in terms of Canadian funds at noon Friday was down .50 at $1.0341. Pound sterling was up 4-9 at $2.1820.

In New York, the Canadian dollar was up 4-50 at $0.9667. Pound sterling was up 4-5 at $2.1095.

The decline gave rise to hopes that the Fed, in its anti-inflation efforts, would not need to take more credit-tightening steps of the kind that contributed to the rise of interest rates this summer.

Another evident plus was the decision by New York's First National City Bank to hold its prime lending rate for the coming week.

There had been talk that Citibank, a frequent trendsetter on the prime, might raise the key rate on corporate loans to eight per cent.

Travelers Corp. was the NYSE volume leader, up ⅛ at $22⅛. A 211,800-share block traded at $22.

Among the big-name growth stocks, IBM was up 2¼ at $179¾, Eastman Kodak 1⅜ at $89, Proctor and Gamble 1⅝ at $85⅝ and Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing 1 at $53.

London

The London market recorded a moderate advance in light trading today.

The Financial Times index gained 9.4 to 313.9 in mid-session trading.

Canadian issues were fractionally lower in quiet activity.

PRODUCTION DOWNSLIDE ENDS—NOW STABLE

OTTAWA (CP) — The level of production in the economy stabilized during the three months ended June 30, after sliding downward during the first quarter, figures released Thursday by Statistics Canada indicate.

The index of real domestic product — a measure of productivity that discounts for the effects of price increases — held steady during the second quarter at 201.7.

The index had declined seven-tenths of one per cent during the first three months of the year.

Second-quarter gross national product figures, which measure the value of all goods and services produced in the economy, are due out Wednesday.

The GNP figures completed a four-quarter declining cycle during the first three months of the year.

Most economists feel the recession is ending in Canada and that there may be some real economic growth during the second half of 1975, although unemployment will continue to be high. The jobless rate currently is about 7.2 per cent of the work force.

However, even though the over-all real domestic product index stabilized in the second quarter, its industrial production components were lower. Industrial production accounts for about 30 per cent of real domestic product, and it registered a fifth consecutive quarterly decline in the three months ended June 30.

In the industrial sector, strikes affected iron ore and asbestos production, while reduced exports affected crude petroleum and natural gas output. Canada gradually is eliminating oil exports to United States markets by the early 1980s.

Generally weak export markets for Canadian products and a slow pace of residential construction affected forestry output.

For the first time since the second quarter of 1974, residential building showed a small advance in the second three months this year. It still is below the pace of a year ago, however, and the government has said its target of 210,000 starts for this year cannot be met.

Productivity in the service sector was disrupted by strikes that affected federal administration. Wholesale trade increased because of more sales of auto products, textiles and household electrical appliances. Among retail industries, department and food stores, motor vehicle dealers and variety stores posted gains.

'BEST HALF YET' FOR OK COPTERS

VANCOUVER (CP) — Okanagan Helicopters Ltd. showed record revenues, earnings and cash flow in the six-month period ended July 31, 1975.

John W. Pitts, chairman and president, in his report to shareholders said revenues of the Vancouver-based firm in the first half of the year climbed to $16,320,505 compared with $9,799,643 for the same period a year ago.

Earnings before taxes rose by 77 per cent to $1,042,085 and cash flow from operations by 61 per cent to $3,034,602. Net earnings were $637,450 compared with $309,107 in the first half of last year.

Net earnings were 67 cents per share compared with 34 cents in the same period in 1974 and, on a fully diluted basis, the comparison was 61 cents against 31 cents. Cash flow per share increased from $2.12 to $3.40.

Pitts said the first-half performance is by far the best achieved in the company's history and that "the outlook for the second half is equally excellent."

The results for the six-month period include the activities of Dominion-Pegasus Helicopters Ltd., a company operating in Ontario and Quebec which was acquired by Okanagan earlier this year. The acquisition still is subject to approval by the Air Transport Committee, he said.

"As indicated in my comments at the last annual meeting in June, market trends in Canada this year favor activities in eastern Canada and show a decline in the West as a result of the misguided resource taxation policies of both the provincial and federal governments," Pitts said.

He said that foreign contracts accounted for about 20 per cent of revenue in the first half of this year and are expected to exceed this figure in the second half.

Okanagan, Canada's largest helicopter operating company, has current contracts for work in Africa, Thailand, Burma, the Philippines and South America.

Tapin Trading Resumes

VANCOUVER (CP) — Tapin Copper Mines Ltd. returned to the Vancouver Stock Exchange Thursday after being suspended since last December.

The stock was the volume leader in the curbs, closing at .30 on 335,6000 shares, down sharply from its price of $1.90 at suspension.

Trading was halted Dec. 10 after drilling results were disputed in several court actions against the company and some of its promoters.

Shares had traded heavily in November on the basis of a drill core with a high gold content from the company property in Baker County, Ore.

Exports from B.C. Up 7% In First Four Months

By AL FORREST
Times Business Editor

Exports from British Columbia during the first four months were worth $2 billion, up 7 per cent from $1.8 billion in the same period of 1974, according to a report released toda yby the provincial department of economic development.

Most of the increase was due to inflation.

Exports of crude petroleum and natural gas accounted for $478 million of the total, up from $279 million a year earlier. Exports of pulp, paper and coal were also up while lumber and other products were down sharply.

Pulp exports totalled $278 million, up from $198 million and paper exports were worth $145 million, up from $108 million. Coal shipments totalled $100 million, up from $56 million.

On the other side of the ledger, lumber shipments totalled only $167 million, down more than $100 million from $271 million a year ago.

Exports of copper and other concentrates were also down more than $100 million. Total export was $177 million, down from $219 million. Exports of grains and other cereals through B.C. ports were worth $275 million during the four-month period, down from $320 million.

In the same four months, B.C. imports rose to $881 million, up from $785 million. Major imports were transportation and communications equipment worth $247 million, down from $260 million, machinery $108 million, up from $85 million and food and beverages $104 million, up from $96 million.

Despite the generally weak economic performance, Economic Development Minister Gary Lauk said his department remains confident a resumption of economic growth will be under way across the continent before year's end.

In January the department had said a recovery was expected by July of this year.

Lauk warned that even the revised forecast could require a further revision if there is a prolonged work stoppage in the forest industry. Pulp workers have been out since July 16 putting about 13,000 workers on the picket line but the 30,000 coastal International Woodworkers of America are at work, although their contract expired in June.

Lauk said April exports were encouraging at $536 million, up from $412 million but this was mainly the backlog from March when dock activity was down for most of the month because of a longshoreman's strike. During the two months exports totalled $900 million, down slightly from $925 million in the corresponding 1974 period.

For the first four months, factory shipments were worth $2.38 billion, up two per cent from $2.33 billion. The increase was due to inflation and there was a slight decrease in volume.

Paper production continued to be ahead of 1974 in the first four months of this year but lumber production was down more than 25 per cent.

Back-to-Work Law Opposed

VANCOUVER (CP) — Any attempt by the government to legislate B.C. forest industry workers back to work will be opposed, Len Guy the secretary-treasurer of the B.C. Federation of Labor, said Thursday.

Guy said in an interview the International Woodworkers of America and the two pulp unions oppose any use of legislation to end the dispute and the federation supports their position.

Asked if the federation would refuse to comply with back-to-work legislation if it were enacted, Guy said: "You can make your own conclusions. We would take whatever action was necessary to oppose such legislation.

But Labor Minister Bill King said in an interview the government "would have to let collective bargaining take its course."

Guy's statement followed separate announcements by Forest Industrial Relations and the Pulp, Paper and Woodworkers of Canada and the Canadian Paperworkers Union.

FIR president Don Lanskail said the 140 coastal companies in the management group reluctantly accepted a non-binding report by Mr. Justice Henry Hutcheon of the B.C. Supreme Court.

The two pulp unions, after a meeting with labor federation officers, said they would not increase picketing at forest industry sites until the larger IAW membership has completed voting on the report, probably by Tuesday.

The report proposes a two-year contract that would increase base rates of $5.10 an hour by a $1.55 and cost-of-living adjustments.

The IWA negotiating committee has recommended its members accept the contract, although many local executives have recommended rejection.

Pulp unions members have rejected the proposal, as their executives asked.

$10,650 GRANT TO START COLLEGE OF GENETICISTS

VANCOUVER (CP) — James Miller, head of the medical genetics department at the University of British Columbia, has been awarded a $10,650 grant from the Hospital for Sick Children Foundation in Toronto to help start the Canadian College of Medical Geneticists.

The college hopes to be the sole accrediting agent for genetic counsellors, doctors and people on matters such as hereditary birth defects.

VANCOUVER (CP) — John Sexton, B.C. Hydro information officer, said Wednesday the company will resume spraying herbicides in the Squamish-Lillooet area because complaints were untrue that the spraying was dangerous.

He said Resources Minister Bob Williams approved the spraying, halted after complaints it was polluting spawning grounds of the Birkenhead River and was a possible hazard to people picking berries along the powerline right-of-way.

VANCOUVER (CP) — George Arnold Armstrong, a city lawyer and former chairman of the International Hydrodynamics Company Ltd., will stand trial March 15, charged with wilfully evading payment of income tax.

He is charged with evading taxes on an income of $576,815 earned between Dec. 31, 1965 and May 1, 1969.

He was released on his own recognizance awaiting trial.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Four members of the Kitsilano Community Resources Board resigned Thursday because, in the words of board chairman Jacques Khouri, "No programs (within the human resources department) existed to solve the specific problems caused by redevelopment."

WHITE SPOT WORKERS SETTLE

VANCOUVER (CP) — White Spot workers voted 84 per cent Thursday to accept a company contract offer and should be back on the job by the weekend.

Thomas McGrory, secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Food and Associated Services Union, said the 1,400 workers will receive an immediate 50-cent-an-hour increase and another 40 cents more in 11 months on an old base rate of $2.80 an hour.

He said other fringe benefits in the contract make it the best ever offered by White Spot.

The union has been on strike since Aug. 12.

Jet Forced To Return

VANCOUVER (CP) — An Air Canada Boeing 747 jet taking off Thursday for London, England, was forced to return by fire in one of its four engines.

An airline spokesman said the plane's crew heard a series of bangs as the jet was taking off and the control tower told them the engine was on fire.

The plane completed its takeoff, circled and then made an emergency landing with the engine shut down, said the spokesman.

He said about 275 passengers were flown out later on another airplane.

Writer Raps Nuclear Waste

CALDER
. . . 'terrible poison'

VANCOUVER (UPI) — Leading British science writer and broadcaster Lord Ritchie Calder lashed out at nuclear power development Thursday for producing growing amounts of plutonium—"the most terrible poison among all substances of practical importance to man."

He warned that the United States alone would produce 500 tons of plutonium a year, corresponding to 100,000 Hiroshima-size atomic bombs, under official projections of fission power capacity by the year 2000.

"No means are known to science, or likely to be found, by which plutonium lodged in the body can ever be removed," he said.

"(Also) there are other dangerous fission products remaining as waste from power reactors."

Calder called for greater development of other sources of energy including the sun, ocean trides, geothermal power and the conversion of domestic and agricultural waste to fuel.

He told a Pacific Science Congress attended by delegates from 44 countries that scientists who once sought to promote peaceful uses of nuclear energy are now opposed to the spread of nuclear reactors.

"With thousands of megaton warheads already in military arsenals, they contemplate with misgiving the operational risks but even more the accumulation of dangerous radioactive wastes which is inevitable in the fission process," he said.

Calder also warned that the world was warming up, with possible severe economic consequences, because of a "greenhouse effect" as factories and automobiles pump more carbon dioxide into the atmosphere.

He stimated that 360 billion tons of fossil carbon in excess of natural amounts has been released into the atmosphere in the past 100 years. The carbon dioxide content of the atmosphere has increased 17 per cent since 1900.

Heyerdahl Theories Deplored

VANCOUVER (CP) — A group of scientists at the 13th Pacific Science Congress don't like Thor Heyerdahl's theories on how Polynesia was settled.

After hearing the Norwegian explorer Wednesday, a group headed by Peter White, an Australian archeologist, sent a letter to the president of the organization, Dr. Ian McTaggart Cowan deploring that "the good name of science was prostituted."

Heyerdahl had said Polynesia was populated by Asians who travelled across the Pacific in primitive craft, using prevalent currents and winds to go to the Aleutians and Queen Charlotte Islands off Alaska and B.C.

He said they then went south to Hawaii and Polynesia.

Heyerdahl said the Haida Indians of the Queen Charlottes are of the same stock as native Polynesians.

Masked Man and $2.3 Million ...Bronfman Ride Revealed

NEW YORK (UPI) — A man wearing a ski mask slipped into Edgar Bronfman's car the night the whisky magnate delivered the $2.3 million ransom for his son, and forced him to drive through the darkened New York streets until the money could be transferred to a second car.

The chilling story of the late night meeting was described in FBI affidavits for search warrants unsealed Thursday.

Shortly after the statements became public, a federal judge imposed a gag order to stop lawyers from discussing the case with reporters as a grand jury began reviewing the evidence.

A court-ordered psychiatrist's report was expected to be returned today for Mel Patrick Lynch, 37, a city fireman, one of two kidnap suspects charged with mail extortion in connection with the abduction of Samuel Bronfman II.

Lynch today confessed to his role in the kidnapping.

Lynch's lawyer has called the abduction "two amateurs on a lark."

The attorney for Dominic Byrne, 53, a limousine service operator, the second suspect, has maintained the victim himself can clear his client.

The Bronfman youth ws reseued by officers last Sunday after Byrne revealed the plot and the location of the victim.

The affidavit for the search of Lynch's apartment said the elder Bronfman identified his son's voice on the two tape recordings in which the son told his father to go to a pay phone at Kennedy Airport last Friday night.

The affidavit said he was directed to go to other phones at the airport until, at 2 a.m. last Saturday, one call sent him to the meeting beneath an underpass in the borough of Queens.

There, the affidavit said, "a white male wearing a mask" got in his car and made the elder Bronfman drive around until he was told to stop. The man then transferred the money to a car the FBI identified as Lynch's.

The FBI then described spotting Lynch's car when it was parked in Brooklyn and of following the driver when he got out. It said he soon "stopped and did a 360-degree turn, appearing to look to see if someone might be following him."

The statement said the man resumed walking and "he was lost from view" at a location two blocks from where young Bronfman was being held.

The affidavit said Byrne, through his wife, sent his daughter to police that night and—the next morning—used a key he had to let the FBI and police into Lynch's apartment where Bronfman was found unharmed.

BOTTLED IN BOND

YAKIMA, Wash. (UPI) — Police said they caught a beer truck thief because he stopped to sample the loot.

The truck was stolen Thursday while driver Bill Jefferies was making a tavern delivery and was spotted by another driver in a nearby town two hours later.

Police said they arrived at the scene, found the culprit inside the truck guzzling the beer, and locked the vehicle's refrigerator doors on him before taking the rig to the police station.

The unidentified truck hijacker would be questioned after he thawed out, police said.

Police, Firemen Back in Frisco

Times News Services

SAN FRANCISCO — Police and firemen were back on the job today after Mayor Joseph Alioto invoked emergency powers and granted their salary demands, sfunning the city's board of supervisors.

Strikers began reporting for work Thursday night only hours after the supervisors rejected a strike settlement.

Alioto ignored the supervisors, suspended the city charter and ordered a 13-percent wage increase, twice what the supervisors wanted to grant.

"All the pickets are removed," the mayor said. "everyone is back to work even earlier than we anticipated."

The mayor's action ended a four-day-old police walkout. Firemen joined the strike Wednesday.

The settlement will not take effect until Oct. 15.

The annual base rate of each man would be $18,816. With fringe benefits, his annual cost to the city would be. $29,540.

The board of supervisors had offered the same 6.5 per cent being given other city employees.

By winning 13.05 per cent, the strikers achieved traditional parity with Los Angeles. Some also had complained they were earning less than street sweepers.

The settlement, hammered out during early mornisg negotiations between Alioto and strike leaders, was approved overwhelmingly by members of the Police Officers Association and Fire Fighters Local 798.

The supervisors, who administer San Francisco's combined city-county government, turned the agreement down in a 9-to-0 vote.

They complained that Alioto was usurping the board's power and pushing through an agreement the city could not afford. The supervisors normally set salaries for all city employees.

"It's a sad day for San Francisco when its mayor becomes the first dictator in the United States," said supervisor John Barbagelata.

Meanwhile, two women picketed a station in North Beach Thursday night with signs saying it was "immoral" for policemen to earn such high salaries.

On Thursday a class-action suit was filed challenging constitutionality of the settlement.

Arctic Gas Pipeline Cost Underestimated: Expert

By FRANK RUTTER
Times Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Rival proposals for an Arctic natural gas pipeline could be so expensive that neither will be financially possible without government assistance, according to a United States economist.

The projects could cost more than twice as much as their backers have claimed, said Dr. Arlon Tussing, a private economic consultant who specializes in energy matters and acts as a congressional adviser.

"My private estimate is that either could cost $20 billion," he said in an interview.

Tussing said this raises the question of whether the U.S. government would be willing to provide financial assistance for a pipeline system, either through Canada or across Alaska, where the bulk of known Arctic gas reserves are located.

The Arctic Gas consortium of Canadian and U.S. companies, which proposes a system including a Mackenzie valley pipeline, has estimated the cost at $9.6 billion.

The El Paso company, which advocates a trans-Alaska route, has come up with a figure of $6.7 billion.

Even these "are figures the like of which industry has never seen before," according to El Paso Chairman Howard Boyd.

Neither company has been able to show where or how it could raise so much money.

But Tussing believes both are underestimating.

"There is increasing concern as to whether either is viable on its own," he said.

That concern, he predicted, will be raised when a congressional committee conducts hearings on the pipeline proposals.

Tussing is an adviser to the Senate interior committee, which expects to hold hearings this fall.

He is also a member of Alaska's state royalty board, a body which is examining how much the state can get out of such a project.

Action in Congress is expected to lead to eventual legislation to speed a decision on the gas route.

"In addition to looking at the merits of the two routes and the possibility of procedural delay, you can say that the committee would want to look at the possibility that neither is financially viable and that federal assistance might be required," Tussing said.

His concern about the escalation of the expense is mainly based on two factors — inflation of material and labor costs and the relative cost of gas produced elsewhere as well as other energy prices.

U.S. DEFENDS GRAIN SALES

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — The department of agriculture Thursday predicted that recent U.S. grain sales to the Soviet Union, now totalling 10.2 million metric tons, would raise food prices at home by no more than 1.5 per cent this year.

The assurances were the highlights of a vigorous effort at the agency to absolve the grain deals of blame for last month's food price inflation, and to persuade consumers that the exports are only one of many factors in higher food costs in months ahead.

A federal judge in Texas has ordered balky longshoremen, meanwhile, to load two more ships with U.S. grain destined for Russia, and Labor Secretary John Dunlop arranged to meet with AFL-CIO president George Meany to work out a settlement of the grain boycott.

Peking Story Bombs Out

Times News Services

OTTAWA — A report in Peking's People's Daily that Soviet bombers are penetrating Canadian air space and flying within 800 miles of Toronto, Montreal and Vancouver has been denied by defence department officials.

A department spokesman says that he feels the Peking paper is reporting a 10-month old rumor that was proved untrue at the time.

The Peking report links Canada's closure of Atlantic ports to Soviet fishing vessels as reaction to the bomber overflights.

In dismissing the story, the defence department spokesman said it was "probably just a Chinese dig at the Soviets

Before the Judge

An exchange between Judge Fred Green and a defendant in Victoria provincial court Thursday sounded more like a marriage counselling session than a court proceeding.

"I can't think of a worse way to start off married life, Mr. Bannister," Green said.

"I was married before. I blew that one and I don't want to blow this one," Russell Irving Bannister replied.

Bannister, 26, of 3929 Glanford, pleaded guilty to passing a worthless cheque and stealing from a gas station to pay for his honeymoon.

Bannister was employed at Carey Home Service, 3896 Carey Rd., until his marriage Aug. 16, and the day before cashed a worthless cheque there for $150.

He stole anothr $54.50 cash from the station Aug. 17.

Prosecutor Peter Birkett said the accused had said he needed the money for his honeymoon.

Green remanded the accused to Sept. 10 for a presentence report and released him on his own recognizance in the sum of $500.

A man who pleaded guilty to making false unemployment insurance claims was fined $350 and ordered to repay $118 to the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

Peter Highfield, of 232 Superior was charged April 12 after he claimed he had not worked, but was employed.

Green said a jail sentence would have been included if Highfield was not waiting to re-enter the armed forces.

"You seem determined to come to Canada even if it gives you nothing but trouble," Green told 18-year-old John Bartly Power of Detroit who pleaded guilty to contravening Canadian Immigration law.

He was sentenced to five days in prison concurrent with a sentence he is serving at Wilkinson Road.

Deported Feb. 14, he re-entered illegally at Windsor, Ont., on July 25 and came to Victoria.

He was convicted of obtaining food and lodging by fraud here July 31 and sentenced to 30 days.

He told the judge he was heading to California and found it cheaper to travel through Canada.

A yiuth who broke a Sidney bank window with a "kung fu" kick Aug. 8 pleaded guilty to causing the $108.32 damage and was remanded to today for a probation officer's report.

Terry Allan, 17, of Sidney, admitted he drank 16 or 17 glasses of beer before the incident at the Bank of Montreal, 2461 Beacon, said Prosecutor Birkett.

Two youths were fined $50 each for causing a disturbance by fighting in a Victoria gas station about 3:30 a.m. July 17.

"A fine pair you are. You're both a couple of chumps. I don't want to see you in this courtroom again for this kind of stupidity," said Judge Green.

Michael James O'Hanlon, 23, of 1639 Hampshire Rd. and Donald Allan Kerr. 21, of 6243 Durban Rd., Sooke, were found fighting after police had suspended their driving privileges for a day and left them at a Tillicum and Trans-Canada Highway service station to get home.

Gary Norman Brunt, 31, of 1291 Verdier in Brentwood, received 14 days in jail after pleading guilty to impaired driving July 25.

Judge Edmond St. Jorre sentenced Brunt who was picked up after drinking a bottle of wine.

Brunt had previously been convicted for impaired driving.

St. Jorre also gave $350 fines for impaired driving to Jody Harry Walker, 19, of 2729 Spencer Rd.; William Michael Newsome, 20, of 2839 Gosworth St.; and Archibald Stewart, 29, of 1615 Belmont Ave.

Joseph Oliva Dupuis, 64, of 1666 Derby Rd., was fined $250 for driving with a blood alcohol level over .08 per cent.

Blacks Rally in Protest

WILLMINGTON, Del. (AP) — Policemen using tear gas and nightsticks turned back an angry crowd of black demonstrators protesting the release on bail of a white man charged with shooting a black girl.

Sheila Farrell, 13, was in critical condition today with a bullet wound in the back. She apparently was shot after raiding a peach tree.

State police said demonstrators broke some shop windows on streets adjacent to a downtown pedestrian shopping mall where the protest began shortly after noon Thursday.

Mounted and foot patrolmen initially restrained the 200 to 300 protestors as they tried to rally on the mall. All stores were closed during the demonstration.

The confrontation came when 70 to 100 demonstrators tried a second time to march on the mall.

Two arrests were reported, and state police were placed on standby alert.

Bailey, 24, who was charged with attempted first-degree murder, was first released on $25,000 bail. But black leaders said the bail was too low and began organizing demonstrations Monday in the downtown area and at the Bailey home.

Judge Carl Goldstein raised Bailey's bail to $130,000 Thursday evening, because the girl's condition had worsened. The hospital said Miss Farrell was unconscious and in critical condition.

Bakers Unveil Bench Strength

Victoria McDonalds applied a little of their often-under-estimated bench strength Thursday night to trip Richmond Roadrunners 14-7 and take a 3-2 lead in the best-of-seven Western Canada Junior Lacrosse League semi-final series before 1,596 fans at Esquimalt Sports Centre.

The sixth game of the series is scheduled for Saturday in Richmond and if a seventh game is necessary, it will be played Sunday night at the Sports Centre.

Kevin Alexander and Norm Baker have carried the Bakers through earlier playoff encounters but Bob Cool, Leigh Hegan and backup-goalie Mick Michaux came up with some outstanding efforts Thursday.

Cool contributed three important goals, Hegan fired a key shorthanded goal which gave Victoria a 9-6 edge at the end of the second period and Michaux came up with a steady effort after replacing Al Radley, who gave up the first two goals of the game.

Alexander emerged as the high scorer of the game with four goals and four assists while Steve Hepburn (2), Charlie Randle, Ken King, Mike Bryson and Baker finished off Victoria's scoring list.

Ray Durante led Richmond with two goals and singles were added by Ron Burton, Rico Bellusci, Tim Kelly, Dave Cochrane and Bob Karl.

Michaux finished with 31 saves, many a true test, but John Lewis again came up with an outstanding performance in the Roadrunner net for 38 stops.

Only Lewis kept the score respectable as Victoria outshot Richmond for the fifth straight game.

The winner of the series advances to play Burnaby Cablevision in a best-of-seven final series which will be set up after the current semi-final is completed.

And the final must be over by Sept. 3, when the western representative is due to travel east for the Canadian championship Minto Cup.

Harper Refuses To Join Detroit

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — When Los Angeles Kings were successful in signing free agent Marcel Dionne earlier this year, Detroit Red Wings appeared relatively satisfied with their compensation — forward Dan Maloney and defenceman Terry Harper.

It might be a different story when training camp opens net month.

Harper, captain of the Kings last season, says that it's "doubtful, very doubtful that I'll ever report to training camp."

The 35-year-old native of Regina, in the NHL 13 years, said he was shocked at the trade and has no desire to play for the Red Wings. "There are two or three things that are upsetting about all of this," said Harper. "First . . . the Kings signed me to a new three-year contract at the end of last season. They said I was set and an integral part of the team.

"Then when the trade was made they didn't really talk to me about it. It was just made."

Both the Red Wings and the city itself have literally turned Harper off.

"Look at their record, at their organization and finally the city itself and I think you can understand my reluctance."

Veteran Traded

CHARLESTON, Ill. (AP) — Veteran wide receiver Marlin Briscoe, who had seen only limited action in two exhibition games with St. Louis Cardinals, was traded Wednesday to San Diego Chargers.

JETS TO EUROPE

WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg Jets of the World Hockey Association are to leave Sept. 6 for a 21-day training camp tour of Sweden, Finland and Czechoslovakia.

The Jets have nine players from Finland and Sweden on their roster.

The European teams are picking up all expenses — travel, hotel and food — incurred by the Jets. The Winnipeg club will get a portion of the gate receipts.

NO PROBLEM WITH CROWD IN A VACANT STADIUM

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Soccer Association has ordered Serbian White Eagles to play a National Soccer League game Aug. 28 in an empty stadium, Eric King, executive-director of the CSA, said Thursday.

King said the action stems from an incident on July 13 at CNE Stadium in which an international match between Serbian White Eagles and Monterey of Mexico had to be abandoned in the second half when spectators invaded the field.

The Aug. 28 game against Toronto Italia at Lamport Stadium will be played with only the two teams and officials in attendance, King said. The White Eagles will also lose the gate receipts from the game and will be responsible for all game expenses.

King said the NSL, at the expense of the White Eagles, is responsible for ensuring that the CSA's order is carried out.

"The problem of crowd behaviour in soccer in Canada — and the NSL in particular — has become so grave that steps have to be taken by the CSA to let soccer fans know that their misconduct will not be tolerated," King said.

Hearing Sought For the Actors

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP) — The Association of Tennis Professionals said Thursday they want a hearing in New York next week for Ilie Nastase and Bjorn Borg on a complaint of unsportsmanlike conduct during the Canadian Open tennis championships.

Tournament officials, in a protest to the Men's International Professional Tennis Council last Sunday, requested that Nastase and Borg be suspended and Jan Kodes and Guillermo Vilas be disciplined prior to the start of the United States Open championships in New York next Wednesday.

Vilas is seeded No. 2 for the U.S. Open, Borg No. 5, Nastase No. 8 and Kodes No. 15. However, Stan Malless, president of the U.S. Tennis Association and member of the MIPTC before which the players would appear, said from Indianapolis that if any action were taken against the players it was doubtful that it would affect the U.S. Open.

The ATP, after an executive meeting during the U.S. professional championships being played here, issued a statement requesting a hearing for the two players before the MIPTC. It said the ATP "feels only after a fair hearing can a proper disposition of this matter be made."

Organizers of the Canadian Open said Nastase gave up in his final against Manuel Orantes, that Borg purposely double-faulted three times to run out his third-round loss, that Kodes walked off the court rather than finish his second-round match and Vilas, the defending champion, withdrew before the tournament began.

Quebec Steps Into Fifth Spot

PHILADELPHIA (CP) — Quebec Caribous moved into fifth place in the National Lacrosse League with an 11-10 upset win over Philadelphia Wings Thursday night before 4075 fans.

Travis Cook scored three goals to pace the Caribous, while Dave Durante set up five goals. Brian Wilson had a goal and three assists and Jimmy Higgs scored a goal and set up two.

District Clubs Suffer Setbacks In Peewee Play

BURNABY — St. Catharines, Southern Etobicoke and Brampton, all of Ontario, joined host Burnaby Norburns in the semi-finals of the "A" division in the national peewee lacrosse championship tournament here Thursday.

St. Catharines was scheduled to meet Southern Etobicoke and Brampton was to play Norburns earlier today.

Both Greater Victoria teams lost "A" division games Thursday. Esquimalt bowed 14-3 to Mississauga-Clarkson, Ont., while Saanich was tripped 13-5 by Peterborough, Ont.

Stamps Toy With Riders

CALGARY (CP) — Calgary Stampeders made it look easy Thursday night as they struck for 17 points in the first quarter and toyed with Ottawa Rough Riders for the remainder of the game en route to a 23-6 win in their Canadian Football League interlocking game.

Quarterback Joe Pisarcik, recovered from a string of early season injuries, sparked the early burst with pinpoint passing, including a strike to flanker Tom Forzani that went for the opening 32-yard touchdown.

Just more than a minute later, Vern Roberson picked off a pass by rookie Condredge Holloway and ran 22 yards for Calgary's second touchdown. From that point on, a rugged Calgary defence gave Holloway and Tom Clements, who played briefly in the second quarter, little opportunity.

Cyril McFall completed Calgary's first-quarter burst with a 49-yard field goal on the final play and later added two more. Gerry Organ kicked two field goals for all Ottawa's points.

The result moved Calgary into a tie with Edmonton Eskimos and Winnipeg Blue Bombers for second place in the Western Conference. Ottawa has two wins and three defeats in the Eastern Conference.

The Rough Riders, who lost fullback John Bledsoe in the first half due to an ankle injury, meet Saskatchewan Roughriders Sunday in Regina in the second half of their Western swing.

Clements looked impressive during his brief performance — in which he hit Jim Foley for a 56-yard pass-and-run play, longest in the game—but Holloway went all the way in the last half.

After the Stampeder superiority was established, Pisarcik concentrated on ball control.

He got excellent support from running back Willie Burden who gained 103 yards in 20 carries. It was his fourth successive game this season in which he has surpassed the 100-yard mark.

Including Burden's production, Calgary gained only 118 yards rushing, compared with 120 for Ottawa, which was led by Art Green's total of 65 yards in 13 carries. Calgary had 16 first downs to three for Ottawa.

Pisarcik hit on 15 of 6 attempts for 175 yards while Clements and Holloway teamed for 11 completions in 23 attempts for 163 yards. So impressive was Calgary's offensive line that no Stampeder play resulted in a loss.

A large part of Ottawa's problem was its failure to establish field position, primarily due to no-yards and rough-play penalties on punts. One apparent single point was called back when Rudy Linterman lured a rival lineman inside the restraining area on Dick Adams' punt into the end zone.

Even Coach Is Surprised By Dolphins' Enthusiasm

By D'ARCY KAVANAGH
Times Staff

Four losses this year and a winless streak that extends back three seasons would be enough to demoralize almost any football club.

But not the buoyant Victoria Dolphins.

"The kids' enthusiasm is just great," said Dolphins' head coach Ken Werrun Wednesday. "I'm actually surprised by it."

Werrun figures the reasons for the Dolphins' high spirits are threefold. One is the new blood on the club. Of the team's 43 registered players, only eight are returnees from last season.

Another is the fact that those 43 players represent the most bodies the club has had in any of its previous four seasons.

"Our problem now is to juggle who will play and who won't," said Werrun. "That's a good problem to have, because competition for spots has helped create enthusiasm."

The third reason is the club's performances in recent weeks and last Sunday's at Royal Athletic Park in particular.

In that one, the Dolphins put on their best offensive showing of their Big Four Football Conference season so far as they bowed 22-15 to Vancouver Blue Bombers.

"Sunday's game was one of the hardest-hitting ball games I've seen anywhere in a long time," added Werrun.

Prior to the Blue Bombers, the Dolphins lost 20-3 to perenial powerhouse Vancouver Meralomas, 29-7 to North Shore Cougars and, in an exhibition game, 9-0 to Renfrew Trojans.

It's the Trojans, surprise 21-19 winners over the Meralomas last week, who will provide the Dolphins with their next competition — on Sunday at 6 p.m. in Royal Athletic Park.

Renfrew will be real tough coming off that win over the 'Lomas, said Werrun.

The Victoria coach has assigned Tom Sullivan to start at quarterback in place of regular Spence Parker, who will dress despite wrist and knee injuries.

However, Werrun isn't worried about Sullivan. Against the Bombers, he combined for an 84-yard pass-and-run touchdown with Brad Tripp and moved the ball well in his one quarter of action.

As for his defence, Werrun figures it has saved the team from "real embarassment" on several occasions.

Even if this doesn't turn out to be the Dolphins' year, the Victoria coach has high hopes for the team's future. Most of his players are one year out of the juvenile ranks and have three more seasons of junior football.

"We could have a national championship team here in three or four years," noted Werrun.

If the Dolphins do take the national title in the not-too-distant future it will be, said Werrun, largely because of the team's source of players.

Right now the Dolphins get juvenile graduates from Farmer Construction, Saanich Vampires, Saanich Hornets and Cowichan Timbermen. To Werrun, it is one of the best junior "feeder systems" in the country.

"All we have to do," he added, "is keep things happy and tiddly between the leagues (juvenile and junior) and we're set."

Refund Demanded

OTTAWA (CP) — Tom Bedecki, director of Sport Canada, said Thursday that the Canadian Masters Association will have to repay a $24,000 federal grant used to stage a track and field meet in Toronto last week.

Bedecki said the association knew that the federal government would not provide financial support for athletic events in Canada that included competitors from supremacist countries.

The government has demanded that the association return the grant because it allowed South Africans and Rhodesians to compete in the meet for athletes over 40 years old.

Masters president Don Farquarson said Wednesday in Toronto the association was not going to return the money. He said "that both morally and legally we don't have to pay the money back." Besides "we definitely don't have the money to pay the grant back" because it had all been spent.

The Masters organization originally agreed to abide by an Aug. 1 government edict that the 13 South African and two Rhodesian athletes not be allowed to enter the tournament. But the organizers changed their mind the day before the meet started.

Farquarson, in refusing to refund the $24,000, said he had not received any official letter saying the government wants the money back.

But Bedecki said that "a letter's on the way."

Super Fishing Forecast Yields Pleasant Puzzle

Salmon fishermen around Vancouver Island will have a tough time deciding where to drop a line whis weekend — returns are great just about everywhere.

Chinooks averaging 20 pounds and tipping the scales to 39 pounds are being caught on plug-cut herring trolled in 30 feet of water near Owen Point at Port Renfrew.

Red-hot catches were reported from Secretary Island waters beginning Saturday and two boats came back to Sooke Harbour with over 100 pounds of fish each on Sunday.

Ron Dumont nailed a 35½ pound chinook Sunday to top fishermen working the area but Randy Musfelt came close with a 34-pounder on Monday. Musfelt also caught a 22¾-pounder the same day.

Coho to 10½ pounds, numerous pinks and a few sockeye round out the catch with everything coming in on anchovies, minnows or red hootchies trolled with four to six ounces of weight.

"Wild" was the word to describe fishing off Becher Bay, where fishermen have been landing chinooks up to the 33½-pounder taken by Phil Hale earlier this week, pinks to 11 pounds, coho to 15 pounds and sockeye to eight pounds.

Strip, minnows and red hootchies are working best when fished from 20 to 60 feet in depth.

★ ★ ★

Killer whales moved through the Becher Bay area Wednesday afternoon and slowed the action down a little. But, barring another visit, the weekend outlook is excellent.

Much the same type of catch was noted in Pedder Bay by fishing fairly deep with strip or anchovies for the chinooks. Minnows, red hootchies and spoons are being used for the coho, pinks and sockeye. Best spots have been the kelp bed and Bentinck Island.

Small chinooks, with the odd one reaching 30 pounds, form the main return off the Victoria waterfront in the vicinity of Brotchie Ledge and Saxe Point.

Deep waters off Trial Island are yielding chinooks to 20 pounds along with a few coho and numerous ling cod nearing the 25 pound mark.

Chinooks to 15 pounds and coho up to seven pounds are providing ever-better catches off Moses Point and Wain Rock. Strip and minnows have been the best trolling gear and some good success was reported by fishermen casting buzz bombs and stingsildas.

★ ★ ★

Ross Halling topped Saanich Inlet fishermen wit a 32 pound chinook taken Wednesday in Coles Bay but most of the chinooks in the middle part of the Inlet are averaging three or four pounds. Bamberton waters are also producing with strip or small spoons and deep lines are the order of the day.

Success has dropped off slightly in Finlayson Arm but some nice chinooks, up to the 30-pounder boated by Bob Caldwell in Misery Bay earlier this week, have been coming in along with the odd coho.

Further up-Island, moochers are picking up chinooks ranging from four to 30 pounds along Bold Bluff, Skinner Point and Separation Point. Coho up to seven pounds are grabbing deep lines around Tent, Thetis and Kuper Islands.

Norm Coughtry of Nanaimo has enjoyed a rather successful run of luck in the past two weeks, landing a total of 47 salmon weighing up to 31 pounds around Jack's Point, Piper's Lagoon and the Fingers.

A few coho nearing the 10 pound mark have also been landed on deep lines in the latter area.

"Spotty" was the word from Port Alberni, although a few tyee are biting near Kirby point, Swale Rock and Franklin River.

Coho fishing dropped off at Bates Beach on Sunday but Times staffer Ernie Fedoruk managed to catch the largest of the few chinooks taken this week near the same spot—a nice 23-pounder.

In contrast, fishing for coho to 13 pounds has turned "red-hot" just about everywhere in Discovery Passage—with all terminal gear seeming to work equally well any depths.

A fair number of pinks are also showing and the odd tyee from 30 to 50 pounds is providing a little excitement in Frenchman's Pool and the mouth of the Campbell River. The usual plugs and large spoons are taking a majority of these over-sized chinooks.

Darkness Interrupts Playdowns

Darkness forced a halt to the action after five innings Thursday during the second game of the best-of-five Victoria Senior Amateur Baseball League final series between Greaves Movers and Gorge Hotel at Lambrick Park.

Greaves hold a 1-0 lead in the series which continues Sunday. The final innings of Thursday's game will be played beginning at noon and the other games will start at 1 and 3 p.m.

Gorge will have a chance to keep in tune by playing an old-timers squad in an exhibition game at 2 p.m., Sunday, at the same site.

Former players from the past 20 years have indicated they'll play on the old-timers team and the league hopes to make the game an annual affair.

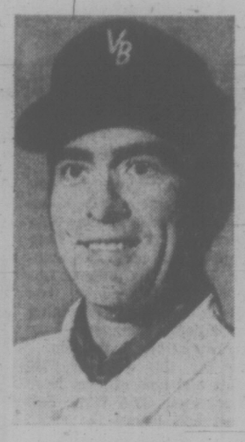
Included among the players are George Heming, Lowell Hodges, John McKeachie, George Brice and Gerry Parker.

Saanich Ready For Boxla Test

The Saanich midget lacrosse team will leave Sunday for the Canadian national midget championships Aug. 27-31 in Calgary.

Saanich, winner of the B.C. title earlier this month in New Westminster, will compete against 15 other clubs from across the country in the double-knockout tournament.

The other B.C. club in the event will be Burnaby Norburns, 14-10 losers to Saanich in the provincial final.



JOE PATTERSON
. . . man in charge

Have a Good Trip, Bates!

The Canadian senior men's softball final is scheduled Aug. 30, and the world championships will be played in New Zealand next year.

Both remain possible stops for Victoria Bates, but the manager of the British Columbia champions doesn't want to look beyond Sunday.

That's when Bates play their first game in the national tournament at Oshawa. Saskatchewan supplies the opposition, and manager Jack Bell feels the Victoria team must concentrate on its opening prospects.

"The biggest game is the first one. You have to win it," Bell said Thursday as Bates went through their final workout before heading east.

The team leaves for Oshawa on Saturday.

Pitcher Stan Kern already is on his way. Not an admirer of aviation, Kern is motoring to Ontario with his wife.

Victoria's other regulars will be joined in Vancouver by pitcher Andy Konopacki and infielder Jim McMillan, the two additions selected by Patterson to bolster the B.C. representatives.

Bell and Patterson both agree that the host Oshawa Tonys, last year's national champions, are the team to beat. Dartmouth Dairy Queen of Nova Scotia and Saskatchewan, the other semi-finalists in 1974 along with Bates, also rate highly.

Ironically, tire top four from last year are bracketed in the red section for the preliminary round-robin.

Dartmouth is stronger than last year because the team acquired pitcher Doug Webster from Ontario.

Rounding out the red division will be Newfoundland, Northwest Territories and the Yukon.

Kitchener Evergreens, the Ontario champions, give the host province a second entry. Kitchener lines up in the blue section with Quebec, Alberta, Manitoba, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island.

Bates will face Saskatchewan in the final game Sunday, and will have to come back bright and early the following morning to tackle Newfoundland. Bates then have to play Dartmouth later Monday.

Victoria will play the Northwest Territories on Tuesday and then, in what may be a key game of the round-robin action, faces Oshawa on Wednesday.

The two top teams from each division advance to the final, double-knockout series.

Royal Oak Finally Ends Lengthy Famine

Royal Oak's famine reached an end Thursday and a Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League semi-final series has to continue tonight.

Royal Oak ended a three-week scoring drought with a bang at Central Park by belting Seaboard Construction 10-0 Thursday.

The Cliff Bate-coached Oaks had managed only two runs in 46 innings heading into Thursday's game.

A 14-hit attack, including three each by Terry Hoy and Rick Bate and catcher Bob Gray's five runs-batted-in, indicates Royal Oak's offensive troubles may have ended.

The outpouring of runs made it easy for pitcher Larry Cole, who allowed only three hits to record the shutout.

Victory cut Seaboard's lead in the best-of-five series to 2-1. The fourth game will be played tonight at Central Park and the fifth, if needed, on Saturday.

Should Seaboard win tonight, the league's final series against Ingraham Hotel will open Saturday at 2 p.m. If Royal Oak forces a deciding game, the final will get under way Sunday at 6:30 p.m.

Meanwhile, Stockers North Americans advanced to the final of the Victoria Senior Women's League playoffs by crushing Esquimalt Combos 17-4 in the deciding game of a best-of-three semi-final series at Hyacinth Park.

Stockers and CJVI Vicettes open the final Tuesday at 6:30 p.m.

Mavis Turner and Lorna McHattie drove in two runs each to pace the Stocker attack while Sharon Ferrill picked up the pitching victory by scattering seven hits.

At Heywood Avenue Park, Capital Builders topped London Boxing Club 3-1 to even their best-of-five Heywood Men's League semi-final series, 1-1.

The third game in the other series, between Eagles and Tony's Holdings, is scheduled for 6:30 tonight.

Kitchener First To Reach Fours

CALGARY — Kitchener Kieswetters, who won the title here in 1971, became the only team assured of a berth in the Canadian senior women's softball championship during round-robin preliminary play Thursday.

The Ontario representatives defeated Manitoba 10-2 and New Brunswick 7-0 to lead the six-team Red section with a 4-0 record

Vancouver Green and Louie, which has taken the title the past three years, posted its third straight shutout by blanking Newfoundland, 8-0. Vancouver, which has yet to allow a run, is now one victory behind Quebec (4-0) in the seven-team Blue Section.

Following the final 12 games of the round-robin competition today, the top two teams in each section will play a criss-cross, double-loss elimination series for the Canadian title.

BOAT SELECTED

TORONTO (CP) — Marauder, owned by David Howard, has been selected as the boat to represent Canada in next month's Canada's Cup yachting series on Lake St. Clair.

BIG SIX STAYING WITH FIVE

The South Vancouver Island Big Six Hockey League will again be made up of five teams this season.

League-president Ivan Temple announced Thursday that Victoria Buckaroos, London Boxing Club, James Bay Athletic Association Gulls, Lake Cowichan Lakers and Chemainus Blues will compete in the intermedite "A" league when the season opens Oct. 1.

London Boxing Club, the only new team in the league, replaces Stockers North Americans.

An exhibition game between league-champion Lakers and an all-star squad has tentatively been scheduled for Sept. 27 at Cowichan Arena.

Boxers Face Edmonton XI

CALGARY — Victoria London Boxing Club and Edmonton Ital-Canadians will clash tonight in the semi-finals of the Canadian senior soccer championship.

Quebec and Newfoundland meet in the other semi-final on Saturday.

The championship final for the Dominion Challenge Cup and the consolation final will be staged Sunday.

Viking's Seek Rep's Ouster

MANKATO, Minn. (AP) — Minnesota Vikings players voted Thursday night to ask for the resignation of National Football League Players Association (NFLPA) executive director Ed Garvey.

Vikings player representative Ed White issued the following statement:

"We, the members of the Minnesota Vikings, have decided by near-unanimous vote to demand the resignation of Garvey.

"By this action, we will not pay dues to the association, nor will we be under the direction of the association until Garvey resigns.

"We feel that Mr. Garvey's objectives and our objectives are in direct conflict.

"We feel further that the association has been out of the hands of the players and we find that unacceptable.

"This is not to be construed as a rejection of the association, but rather as an attempt to bring the association back to the players."

The Vikings are believed to be the first National Football League team to publicly seek the resignation of Garvey.

Players in the NFL are entering their second season without a contract. A year ago, members of the NFLPA went on strike for several weeks but returned to their teams and played the 1974 season without a new contract agreement with club owners.

Easterner Trips Glen

OTTAWA — Bill Rennieof Cambridge, Ont., defeated Glen Bradshaw of Victoria 6-4, 6-5 in the quarter-finals of the under-18 singles competition in Canadian closed junior tennis championships here Thursday.

Rennie advanced to today's semi-finals with Steve Rogul of Toronto, Richard Nakon of Toronto and top-seeded John Picken of Burnaby.

Lise Senn of Toronto downed Sandy Sutherland of Vancouver 1-6, 7-6, 6-4 in a girls' under-18 singles semi-final match and advanced to Saturday's final against Marjorie Blackwood of Ottawa.

BERRA MAY BE BACK AS YANKEES' COACH

NEW YORK (AP) — Yogi Berra, fired 16 days ago as manager of New York Mets, will return to New York Yankees as their first base coach, The Associated Press learned Thursday.

And both current Yankee baseline coaches, Elston Howard at first base and Dick Howser at third, will likely be out of one-the-field jobs when the 1976 season begins. Howard is expected to be moved into the front office while Howser's status is up in the air.

Berra, 50, managed the Yanks in 1974 and was fired after the team lost the World Series in seven games to St. Louis Cardinals. He met with Billy Martin, his former teammate and the Yankees' manager, prior to the Yanks' Thursday night game at Shea Stadium against Chicago White Sox.

A source at the scene said Martin asked Berra if he had decided whether to accept the Yankees' offer of the first base coaching job and Berra replied: "Sure, I'll be there next spring."

Cadets Pass Unpredicted Sea Tests

AROUND OUR SHORES

Earlier this month an unpredicted gale tested the value of training received by sea cadets at HMCS Quadra's summer camp near Comox.

It proved that the cadets — both male and female — can handle themselves in an emergency as well as when the winds are kind and the sea is calm.

The camp, which has earned a good reputation with the Pacific Rescue Co-ordination Centre and others for the efficient marine rescue patrols it carries out, had four groups of cadets out on the waters of Georgia and Malaspina Straits when the 45-knot winds hit.

There were several anxious hours of floor-pacing in the camp's operations room until all were accounted for.

Ten young women officer-cadets were on an Outward Bound expedition in Georgia Strait. The wind was too strong to allow the auxiliary vessels Wolf and Cougar to go in search of them.

★ ★ ★

The women didn't lose their heads. They ran their cutter into the shelter of Stag Bay on Fernando Island. There, through a friendly yachtsman they contacted the PRCC by radio, who, in turn, notified Quadra of their whereabouts.

Another 17 cadets in whalers were out on a 2½-day sail. They beached their whalers at Henry Bay and waited out the storm on shore.

Another two cutters, filled with young female cadets on a two-week course, were caught on an overnight sail. They made it back to Quadra, somewhat shaken but having carried out the instructions they's been given to the letter.

Once ashore, however, their tears flowed freely.

The last party afloat, a cutter-full of Practical Leadership cadets starting out on an Outward Bound trip, sailed their boat cross-wind into a deep trough. The cutter overturned. They were picked up, unharmed, by one of the camp's motor patrol boats.

I've attended this camp many times and occasionally heard criticism that it's too tough on the cadets, working them from 6 in the morning until 10 p.m.

Sure, it can be a traumatic experience for a cadet who's never been away from home before but if Quadra can give them the type of training that brings them through such situations I say it's a challenging experience which more youngsters should have.

At all times this summer the camp has had at least 1,000 cadets from across Canada attending and, truly nationalistic, on alternate days all orders are given in either English or French.

Whether you're an Anglophone or a Francophone you soon learn the problems the other fellow faces in such an environment.

Anxious to have the sea cadet movement adopt national standards in all possible subjects — 21 courses were taught at the camp this summer — training officer Lt.-Cmdr. David Scadding has adoted Canadian Yachting Association's standards for Quadra's sailing instruction.

So far this summer, 110 cadets and nine officers have earned their CYA White Sail award and before the camp ends on Friday several more will have advanced to the Bronze Sail standard.

One of the busiest clubs in that area is the Comox Bay Sailing Club that's organizing a moonlight race this weekend. Boats leave Tree Island at 10 p.m. on Saturday.

Locally, the Esquimalt Squadron, Canadian Forces Sailing Association, has every right to be proud of the husband and wife team of Dennis and Bobbie Carlow.

The Carlows were part of the eight-strong B.C. team that won a gold medal for racing in 470s at the Western Canadian Games in Regina.

CFSA held its seven-race annual Round Robin series for Sailerette Skippers and crews last weekend, the winning skipper being Trevor Hayward. After him came Doc Beaudray, Dennis Reilley, Mike Watton, Brian MacMillan, Rod Newman and Gerry Savage.

The Royal Victoria Yacht Club has another evening of series races planned for Wednesday at Cadboro Bay. Start time is 6:30 p.m.

★ ★ ★

A new dinghy sailing club, the Saanich Peninsula Sailing Association, will be launched next Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in Sanscha Hall at Sidney.

At the public meeting officers will be elected for the group, whose main objectives are the encouragement of sailing, racing and cruising in centreboard dinghies.

Extra-Inning Win Doesn't Help Palmer

By The Associated Press

By the time Baltimore got around to winning the game, it was too late for Jim Palmer.

The Orioles' ace right-hander, aiming to become the major league's first 20-game winner this year, gunned down Texas in masterful fashion for 12 innings Thursday night.

But it took Baltimore two more innings before they pulled out a 4-2 victory.

In the rest of the American League, Oakland A's beat Milwaukee Brewers 5-2, Cleveland Indians defeated Kansas City Royals 7-3 and Chicago White Sox edged New York Yankees 2-1. In the lone National League game, Chicago Cubs shut out Los Angeles Dodgers 7-0.

"Those were the two best pitchers in the league out there," Baltimore's Brooks Robinson said of Palmer and Gaylord Perry. Both Palmer and and Perry allowed two runs and struck out six batters in their stints—but while Palmer allowed only five hits in 12 innings, Perry was bounced around for 13 hits in his 11 innings.

Still, a tie is a tie and nobody's a winner until somebody breaks it. Robinson did that in the 14th with a double off Steve Foucault after Tim Nordbrook had walked. Then Robinson came home with an insurance run on Ellie Hendricks' single. The victory shaved Boston's AL East lead over the Orioles to 6½ games.

Jim Holt drove in two runs and scored two to lead Oakland past Milwaukee, a victory that handed the Brewers their sixth consecutive defeat and enabled the A's to widen their AL West lead over Kansas City to 6½ games.

Jerry Hairston's tie-breaking single for the White Sox in the ninth inning gave Jim Kaat his 18th victory of the year and handed the Yankees their fifth consecutive defeat.

Al Effective, Not Fancy

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Al Geiberger played golf like a duffer Thursday.

He missed greens, visited bunkers, romped through the wilderness, muffed short putts, and explored the boon docks.

And the end result was a four-under-par 66.

He tamed Colonial's terrors with birdies on four of his five closing holes and seized the first-round lead in the $250,000 Tournament Players golf championship.

Geiberger speared an 18-foot putt at the last hole to sweep past Jack Nicklaus, Hale Irwin and Bob Dickson in the race for the $50,000 grand prize.

That trio was in at 67.

Nicklaus, the defending champion, finished four hours before Geiberger and held the lead alone most of the afternoon.

Nicklaus knifed through the par 35-35—70 Colonial course like a killer shark, slashing four shots from par through 16 flawless holes.

He squandered a bit of glory in a jungle at the 17th hole, taking a double bogey six, then struck back with a near eagle at the 434-yard 18th green for a sparkling 67.

Irwin, playing with Geiberger and Arnold Palmer, also committed but one major miscue, and it cost him a share of the lead. He was four under par at the time.

"I tried to play smart golf by hitting a three wood off the tee at No. 6 but I smarted it right into the left rough," he confessed. It cost him a bogey.

A stroke back at 68 were Buddy Allin, Jim Weichers and Mike Wynn.

George Knudson of Toronto had a 76.

The game's superstars meanwhile drifted back in the pack as the 100-plus temperatures, heavy rough and Colonial's deceptive charms commanded a harsh toll.

Palmer and Gary Player remained in contention with one over-par 71s, Billy Casper and British Open champ Tom Watson were at 73, and the 75 list included Lee Trevino and Tom Weiskopf.

Johnny Miller withdrew with a sore wrist.

Quilchena Bows To Visiting Pros

RICHMOND (CP) — Greg Pidlaski of Thornhill, Ont., and John Elliott of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., fired course record 65s Thursday in preparation for today's opening round of the $20,000 British Columbia Open golf tournament.

Pidlaski, a 24-year-old native of Winnipeg, didn't have a bogey on his card in the pro-am event as he toured the 6405-yard, par-72 Quilchena golf and country club course with seven birdies.

Elliott, a 27-year-old Canadian tour veteran, bogeyed only one hole, the 203-yard, par-three eight. He had eight birdies.

Host pro Al Kennedy had earlier predicted that a course record could be set.

Kennedy and two Vancouver golfers, pro Sid Dahl and amateur Bill Mills, shared the former course record of 66.

Panasiuk, of Windsor, Ont., is the leading money-winner on the Canadian pro tour with $9,945, including two victories.

Three former B.C. Open winners are entered — Wayne Vollmer of Prince George, Bill Wakeham of Duncan and Bob Duden of Portland. Vollmer was the last B.C. player to win the Open.

The field also has a strong amateur entry, including 20-year-old Jim Nelford of Burnaby, who won the Canadian amateur title last weekend at Saint John, N.B. He credits attending Brigham Young University in Logan, Utah, for the improvement in his game this year.

Touring pro John Morgan of Victoria will also be competing, along with Victorians Doug Silverberg of Glen Meadows, Cec Ferguson and Bob Beauchemin of Gorge Vale. Mike Gray and Bryan Carbery of Uplands, Terry Tedd Genest of Douglas Golfland.

Victoria Golfers Help B.C. Team

VANCOUVER (CP) — Pat Heisler of Calgary carded an 81 Thursday on the par-74 Beach Grove Golf Club course in nearby Delta to win the Canadian senior women's gold championship by two strokes over Colleen McCulloch of Vancouver.

Heisler's 36-hole total was 161, while first-round leader McCulloch blew to an 84 in the final round on the 6121-yard course and came in with a 163 total, one stroke ahead of Gwen Hibbs of Long Beach, Calif.

Kay Helleur of Toronto, Pam Moir of Delta and Ann Pachan of Winnipeg tied at 167.

British Columbia took the team title with 498 total, four strokes ahead of Ontario. Alberta was third at 515, Manitoba totalled 517, Quebec 520, Prince Edward Island 556, Nova Scotia 565, New Brunswick 566, Saskatchewan 568 and Newfoundland 606.

The three second-day scores which counted for B.C. in team play were McCulloch's 84, an 83 by Margaret Todd of Victoria and 84 by Victoria's Joan Lawson.

THE PARKS AROUND US

Nine Acres of Saanichton Beauty . . .

By HUMPHRY DAVY
Times Staff

The only waterfront park facing Saanichton Inlet on the Saanich peninsula is at Coles Bay.

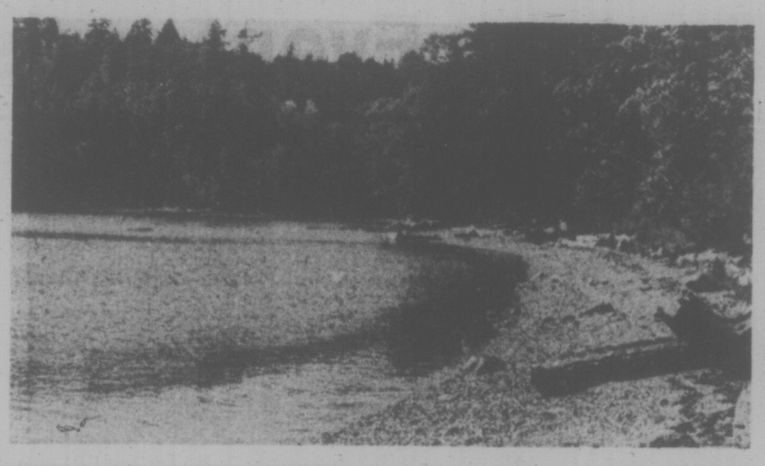
The small nine-acre Capital Regional Park provides access to an attractive beach 600 feet in length. It has about 1,600 feet of nature trails and next year a picnic site will be developed just above the beach.

Coles Bay is a favorite haunt of bird watchers in spring and sunbathers in summer. It's also an ideal place for elderly people. The trails are short and the beach area warm on sunny days.

To get to the park take West Saanich road, turn west on Ardmore and south on Inverness. There is a parking lot at the entrance to the park a short distance down Inverness.

Coles Bay was named after John Coles who served as a midshipman aboard H.M.S. Thetis when the ship was stationed in Pacific northwest waters between 1851-3.

When he retired from the Royal Navy, he returned to Vancouver Island in 1857 and took up land in the neighborhood of the bay named after him. Later he became a member for Saanich for the first legislative assembly in Victoria.



Montreal Transit Strikers Dig In

MONTREAL (CP) — As Montreal's bus and subway strike enters its third day, the only hope for a quick settlement seems to lie with Quebec Labor Minister Gerald Harvey.

Meanwhile, Montrealers face the problem of finding alternative way of getting to work, a problem compounded by massive traffic jams on the city's main arteries.

While the patience of those who take their cars is being seriously tested, other Montrealers are walking, hitchhiking, riding bicycles or simply staying home.

Union and city officials are awaiting expectantly intervention by Harvey, though there has been no indication from the minister's office about what he plans to do to end the strike.

Union president Normand Hamelin, who has requested a meeting with Harvey, said late Thursday he had received a telegram from the minister.

The telegram said Harvey was discussing the situation with government appointed mediator Roger Pilote.

"I am still waiting for Harvey to call or meet with me, and until that happens I am not changing my position and the men will not be going back to work," Hamelin said.

"Unless Harvey intervenes or tells the commission to modify their offers the situation will remain the same."

Tape from Wendy Offered As Proof of Free Will

WASHINGTON (WP) — A 30-minute taped interview with Wendy Helander was offered Thursday as evidence that the Unification Church—which paid a psychiatrist to make the tape—is not holding the 18-year-old girl against her will.

Dr. Harold Kaufman said the tape, part of a three-hour interview he had with Wendy Wendnesday night at the home of her attorney, convinced him that "she is able to exercise her free will more than most people."

Wendy's attorney, Philip Hirschkop, who appeared in court briefly, said the psychiatric evaluation was done at his request as a substitute for bringing her before Judge James Belson.

Wendy' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elton Helander of Guildford, Conn., filed a suit against national officers of the Unification Church, contending that the sect's influence over the girl prevents her from exercising her own will.

Hirschkop said he would continue to resist Judge Belson's urgings that Wendy be produced in court, as another judge ordered earlier.

He cited a "genuine fear on Wendy's part that her parents might try to kidnap her" and seek to have her "deprogrammed" of her religious ideas.

"I know the court would not permit that to happen here, but I know the fervor of the abductors is such that they may well not be controlled" by a court order protecting Wendy, Hirschkop said.

Hirschkop's reference was to Ted Patrick, known for his efforts to retrieve young people from cult groups.

A Patrick associate has already attempted to "deprogram" Wendy, although she returned to the Unification Church afterward.

On tape, Wendy said she was under duress when she signed an affidavit asking that she be forcibly removed from the cult if she returned after being "deprogrammed."

Second Que. Police Group Hints Strike

MONTREAL (CP) — As police in suburban St. Hubert ended a 24-hour strike and returned to work with a new contract, police in nearby St. Lambert warned they too may stage a one-day walkout to protest lagging contract talks.

The St. Lambert policemen, without a contract for nine months, held two meetings Thursday and a union spokesman said a 24-hour study session may come as early as Saturday.

He said the St. Lambert men are seeking wage parity with their counterparts in St. Hubert.

A constable with four years seniority in St Lambert currently earns $12,428 a year.

OFFICER MOURNED

Royal Canadian Sea Cadets from across Canada, attending the summer camp at HMCS Quadra at Comox mourned one of their officers Wednesday.

They came to Victoria to attend the funeral of Lt.-Cmdr. William Klingle, 53, of 762 Hutchinson Place, in Esquimalt.

Klingle, who retired from the navy three years ago, was on special duties at the camp when he colapsed and died on Saturday.

Funeral services took place at St. Andrew's Chapel in Canadian Forces Base, Esquimalt, and he was buried in the Esquimalt veterans cemetary.

The cadets formed a guard for the funeral procession while a gun crew drew the casket atop the tradftional gun carriage.

Klingle is survived by his wife, Norah Madeline; three daughters, Carolyn Sandford of Ottawa, Noreen Dubetz and Deborah Tennant of Victoria; three grandchildren; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Klingle of Edmonton, and two brothers, Rudy of Victoria and Paul H. of Edmonton.

Dunking Ends Balloonist's Second Try

OTIS AIR FORCE BASE, Mass. — Adventurer Bob Sparks of Pottersville, N.J., says he will make a third attempt at a solo transAtlantic crossing in a balloon after his second try ended in another dunking.

The Europe-bound balloon carrying Sparks and a hitchhiking companion sprang a leak Thursday less than 18 hours after it lifted off from a Cape Cod golf course. The helium-supported craft drifted into the ocean 145 miles southeast of Nantucket Island.

"It's a beautiful body of water, and somebody ought to cross it in a balloon," said Sparks, 39, after a United States Coast Guard helicopter plucked him from the bobbing gondola.

"And even after two failures, I still want to do it. I've learned a lot about survival."

SPOKANE, Wash.—A Saskatchewan man who told the judge that he is a "child of the universe" who takes raft trips has been sentenced to jail by United States District Judge Marshall Neill.

Neill gave David Frederick Andrews, 34, of Regina, a one-year sentence, with all but two months suspended, for his guilty plea to a charge of illegally entering the U.S.

Andrews told the court Thursday that he was only floating down the Columbia River, looking for a special cherry tree, when the U.S. border patrol arrested him and confiscated his raft near the boundary.

Andrews said he wanted to lunch by the tree and contemplate "world peace." He said that as a "child of the universe," he doesn't recongize international boundaries.

Neill said Andrews will be deported when he completes his term.

LONDON — The BBC is sending a town-bred reporter to a gale-whipped, uninhabited island off Scotland for two weeks to see whether he can survive.

James Hogg, a 38-year-old father of two who has never even been camping, will be given a three-day Royal Air Force survival course.

He will then be provided by his employers with a four-day food supply, waterproof clothes, a box of matches, a large knife, a length of wire and some water-sterilizing tablets.

The object is to see whether this urban television journalist can survive on the bleak island for at least two weeks in September, a time of notoriously high winds in the area.

He will eat shellfish, berries and any rabbits he can catch with the wire and will have a radio with which to call for help if needed.

"I didn't offer to do this," Hogg complained Thursday. "I was volunteered."

Outstanding Sportsman Dies at 50

A family spokesman said the 50-year-old Prince Albert businessman apparently suffered a heart attack at Yelowga Lake, 150 miles north of the city.

'TARZAN' PLEADS CASE

LONDON (AP) — A naked man up a tree in an east London park did Tarzan impressions Thursday while shouting to police to "Come and get me" in the latest episode of a bizarre campaign to free a jailed cab driver.

Colin Dean, 31, brother-in-law of George Davis who is serving a 20-year prison sentence for armed robbery, evaded capture in the park for nearly two hours.

Dean, who has admitted sabotaging the Headingley cricket pitch at Leeds in the north of England, causing the abandonment Tuesday of the third test match between England and Australia, had promised a "spectacular" surrender to police.

He first stood waist deep in the park lake while police watched.

When police set off in a rowing boat, he fled to an island in the lake, scrambled up a tree and did Tarzan impressions, leaping up and down and shouting to police and reporters: "Why don't you come and get me?" and "I am doing this for George. George is innocent. It is time he was let out."

Dean was taken to a police station where he was charged with insulting behavior, released on bail until Sept. 10.

Scotland Yard has announced it is to open its investigation into the 1974 payroll robbery that resulted in the conviction of Davis.

The Frail Connection

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

Somehow, somewhere, there must have been a tenuous link between the hovel dwellers and homeless wretches of the world, and Ottawa bureaucrats drawing blackboard flow-charts and ladders of responsibility during a crab salad luncheon at the Empress Hotel.

It was just that the reporters present, senses perhaps dulled by a couple of drinks, couldn't quite see the connection . . . or indeed the whole point of the exercise.

★ ★ ★

Purpose of Thursday's luncheon news conference, according to the invitation from a Vancouver public relations firm, was to meet Mr. Luc Sicotte, a gentleman with the imposing, breath-exhausting title of "Director of Communications, Canadian Participation Secretariat, Habitat: United Nations Conference on Human Settlements, Ministry of State for Urban Affairs, Ottawa."

Vancouver is hosting the U.N. conference from May 31 to June 11 next year. Habitat's aim, explains one of Sicotte's press releases, is to "draw together delegates from some 140 U.N. member countries to join in a commitment to improve the quality of their human settlements and exchange information on solutions to settlement problems."

But less time was spent Thursday in discussing the conference itself than in long-winded explanations of the multi-tiered administrative structure which is organizing the event.

There's a host secretariat under the department of external affairs, a participation secretariat under the ministry of urban affairs, an inter-departmental task force, a federal-provincial preparatory committee, a Canadian National Committee . . .

Sicotte and his cohorts drew more and more helpful boxes and chains of command and interconnecting arrows, and the reporters grew more and more confused.

But at least we were assured by public relations co-ordinator Joffre Dechene that Habitat's expected 5,000 delegates will be doing something useful, and the conference itself will have real significance in relation to urban growth, pollution and similar world problems.

"It's going to be a solution-oriented conference rather than a debating society," said Dechene.

A slightly less optimistic forecast, though, came from Dr. Hugh Keenleyside, former co-chairman of B.C. Hydro who is honorary chairman of the Canadian National Committee for Habitat.

In reply to a reporter's question, Keenleyside admitted that international conferences on food, poverty and so on haven't produced any major solutions to world problems, and said any hopes for "sensible, sane" results are always dim.

But then he qualified that by saying: "To the extent that we as human beings are capable of making a serious attempt to solve our problems, I believe these conferences have enlivened the interest that has been taken in the problems and have made at least a start in proposing solutions, or semi-solutions, to many of them."

Sicotte said Ottawa wants Canadians to participate in the planning for Habitat, and to this end a series of 30 public meetings will be held across the country starting next month to discuss various Canadian settlement problems.

The touring Canadian National Committee will hear briefs presented at these meetings, and on the basis of the views represented will report to Urban Affairs Minister Barney Danson, "to ensure that public opinion is reflected in Canada's stand at the Vancouver conference."

The theme for sessions in Victoria Nov. 28 and 29 will be "appropriate use of land."

SEATIME OVER for this trip, PO Smith, at left, and PO Topping are reunited with their two sons, who spent most of the three-week cruise carrying out regular duties with the rest of the crew. The boys now have a healthy respect for navy life but have no plans to sign on in the near future.

Work Afloat Hard—Teens

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

Battle stations will sound when David Topping, 14, and R. Dawson Smith, 15, hear anybody knock the navy.

The two teen-agers returned today after three weeks afloat in one of Her Majesty's ships.

They were part of a group of dependants who shipped out Aug. 5 from Esquimalt aboard the destroyers HMCS Mackenzie, Saskatchewan and Qu'Appelle.

David is the son of PO G. W. Topping and Mrs. Topping of 1298 Derby. Dawson's parents are PO K. R. Smith and Mrs. Smith of 487 Fraser.

Object of the exercise — to give boys an idea of what Dad does in his working hours.

"It's hard work," Dawson said of his dad's duties.

What does he do?

"He's a storesman," Dawson reports. Asked what that entails, he replied, "He looks after food, chocolate bars and other things."

David's father is "buffer" aboard the Qu'Appelle and his son says his father's job of making sure the decks are shipshape at all times is time-consuming.

The boys, like others in the three ships, saw little of their fathers, eating with the men they worked with, standing regular watches.

The only concession to parental ties was that the dependants were bunked in the same messes as their fathers.

David says the most important thing he learned was "how to get along with other guys" in close quarters. "The navy's hard work," said Dawson.

What do they remember most?

David says it was the storm the ships faced all the way from San Diego.

Dawson says, "Disneyland."

If an object of the exercise was to recruit future sailors the navy may have missed its target.

Dawson says he plans to be a conservation officer and David, remembering the storm, is noncommittal.

Increase of 300% In Housing Starts

The Greater Victoria area had 541 housing starts in July, up sharply from 168 the previous July, the local office of central Mortgage and Housing Corporation said today.

The increase of more than 300 per cent is the result of an increasing optimism after a rather slow year, said Ray Pitt, assistant manager of the CMHC office.

The boom is across the board in all categories. There were 255 single family homes started along with 228 apartment units and 58 duplexes and row housing units.

There were 150 starts in Victoria City, all apartment units, the single family homes are mainly being constructed in Saanich and the west country. There were 80 single family homes started in Saanich in July and 143 units in the View royal, Colwood, Metchosin, Langford area.

As well as 80 single family homes, Saanich started 40 apartment units, 36 rowhouses and four duplexes. There were 38 apartment units started in July in Esquimalt plus four duplexes and one single family home. Oak Bay, with little available land, recorded only one single family home start during the month.

Pitt said the July surge would help to remove the gloom from the local construction picture. At the end of June the 1975 performance was 499 starts behind the previous year.

At the end of July, however, the gap had been narrowed to 126.

Total starts after seven months was 1,687, compared with 1,813 at the same time last year. Construction this year was hampered by the munteipal strike-lockout.

Across B.C. housing starts rose 56 per cent in July for a total of 3,409 units. In urban areas most of the starts have been apartment units.

In Victoria a loan of about $1 million and grant of $143,593 have been announced by Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation for a housing complex by the Wildnerness Park Co-Operative Housing Association.

The complex will consist of 30 row housing units and eight apartment units on land leased from the provincial government at Summit and Jackson in Victoria.

The loan is provided under the National Housing Act and is for a term of 40 years at eight percent.

Baggage Trip Costly

A 29-year-old woman moving back to Canada from the U.S. lost the wherewithal to start a new life here—her purse containing $500 cash.

Pat Sandor arrived in Victoria by car Thursday and visited relatives gathered for her sister's wedding Saturday before driving to her father's apartment at 1243 Bay at about 3 a.m.

Mrs. Sandor told city police that while taking some luggage into the apartment she put down her purse to unlock the front door and then forgot to pick it up again. At 8 a.m. today she realized it was missing, rushed downstairs but it was gone.

The purse, a brown leather handbag, contained her driver's licence, personal papers, credit cards and all the savings she had withdrawn from her bank in Salinas, California.

Victoria police said there was little they could do but the situation wasn't hopeless.

"It just depends on who got hold of it," an officer said. "I told her not to lose faith. I had a purse containing about $500 turned into me the other day by an elderly man. The woman who lost it had only reported it missing to Saanich police an hour earlier."

Study Puts $2M Tag On Janitors' Strike

The six-week strike of Victoria school janitors this spring cost the public roughly $2 million, according to a study done this summer by University of Victoria students.

The five students, two of whom quit mid-way through the project, were paid by the labor department's Professions for Tomorrow program to study the social cost and political implications of strikes affecting Victoria schools.

The teachers' wages are a social cost because the public wasn't getting full value for their money during the strike, as children were only at school a few hours a day, Walton said in an interview Thursday.

The loss of six weeks' wages to the striking janitors and locked-out clerical staff is a social cost because employees not getting paid are not spending money in the community, and businesses suffer, he said.

The 278 janitors, members of Local 382 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, went on strike Feb. 24 against Greater Victoria school board, and the 345 clerical workers, CUPE Local 947, honored the picket lines and stayed off work.

Main political cost of the strike was that CUPE's bargaining power has been lessened by the strong public reaction against the strike, said Walton.

Main recommendation of the students' report is that school board non-teaching staff be withdrawn from CUPE, and that compulsory arbitration be introduced.

Surprises Hidden In Nooks and Ivy

Probing behind foot-thick ivy and exploring the nooks and crannies of the old Crystal Garden building is an experience as full of surprises as an archaeological dig, city engineer John Sansom said today.

He was commenting on the detailed study of the building which architects Wagg and Hambleton are preparing for Victoria city council, in readiness for the Crystal's $1.5 million restoration as an arboretum and aviary attraction.

Sansom said probably the biggest surprise of all since the structural and mechanical engineers began their study about a month ago is the discovery that, in many respects, the 50-year-old swimming pool and entertainment centre was not built according to the original plans and drawings in the city's possession.

"We find we have far more room than we thought we had," he added. "The combination of things you can do with the building is really quite exciting."

Some of the departures from the plans came to light when the experts were crawling around in the dark recesses of the southern end of the structure, where the Wax Museum was formerly located.

And there were more surprises when the dense ivy scaling the walls — less than an inch of new growth covering dead encrustations 12 inches thick — was stripped off recently.

SANSOM
. . . prospects 'exciting'

Where the plans merely indicated the presence of "windows," Sansom said the uncovering process revealed "tremendous floor to ceiling windows."

"We were also pleasantly surprised to find that the building was not in as bad shape as we expected," he said.

On the negative side, a "slight settling" of the building's foundations has been noted in one corner, but to date the extent of this isn't known.

What is known, though, is that the cost of repairing the massive glass roof will be "relatively high," said the engineer.

Council set aside $30,000 for the technical study, design and preparation of cost estimates. Sansom said a "positive proposal," including a number of options and alternatives, should be ready for council's Crystal Garden committee by Nov. 15.

Meanwhile, city manager Jim Bramley said names will be selected for the appointment of a special citizens' committee which will be charged with raising funds for the renovation project.

Trusts, foundations and individuals will be asked to contribute to the capital costs, and the city hopes to obtain the maximum $333,333 grant available under the province's community recreational facilities fund.

Earlier, Ald. Sam Bawlf said he expected construction could start early next year, for completion in late 1976.

Uncaptained Now, the Rafts of Summer

PRIMITIVE man on his first marine adventure is splashing his way along the home beach shallows. He is belly-down on a conveniently broad-backed drift slab, a leg hung over each side and hands paddling furiously. At the age of four, he has discovered the basic boat.

Give him a year or two and the little boy on the tippy cedar chunk will carry his seafaring a step farther. He will borrow his dad's hammer, probably without permission, round up some nails and old rope, and achieve a raft.

It will be wobbly and ill-carpentered, the nails bent over and its two or three mismatched logs inclined to part company with their cross-pieces. Its buoyancy will be marginal, its paddle a length of beachcombed driftwood. But it will be a source of pride and a bringer of joy until some night tide steals it away.

The raft-builders were busy all through warm July. In this tag-end of summer, the beach is emptier and quieter. Most of the rafts that we happen upon are uncaptained derelicts.

They lie festooned with seaweed where a mid-August blow deposited them, there to remain until the first rampaging autumn southeaster assaults our shoreline.

Some of the rafts display evidence of adult planning and execution. But most are the sort that kids make for themselves with infinite toil while time stands still in a summer that will go on forever.

It doesn't, of course, except in memory.

We came on a raft the other day and that set me grinning. With its three skinny logs of random length, it could have been the very raft I wacked together on another beach long ago.

For all of a blissful week, it supported me on the face of the waters. It inspired false confidence and encouraged rashness.

Then one day, in water deeper than I was supposed to navigate, its components quietly separated from each other. Even in dissolution, it was faithful to any craft's prime duty, which is not merely to take its master out, but to bring him back. I kicked my way ashore clinging to the wreckage, with ears perked for parental bellowings.

Perhaps one shouldn't waste love on inanimate objects. Even so, I loved that raft, and remembered it fondly when our own children came to their raft-building summers.

Naturally, they left my hammer to rust on the beach, paddled too far out, and got bellowed at from shore. They also came away from their summers that couldn't end with memories they haven't lost.

"Remember that raft you built?" Win asked our son Ron, a well-seasoned teacher up for a visit. "The one we called 'The Floating Outhouse'?"

Ron smiled. "I'll never forget it. We worked on it for weeks."

Spikes by the pound and nails by the fistful went into the building of that raft. Some of its logs took a day to lever and heave from their resting-places above the driftline. Its deck was planked, and the fathers of the builders didn't inquire too closely where those planks came from.

The feature that distinguished it from lesser, hastier rafts was a foursquare cabin with slant roof that rose from its midships. It was the cabin that earned The Floating Outhouse its name.

To the best of my knowledge, its cruises were limited to its home cove. Within those confines, it was dived from and fished from, paddled and poled for a succession of golden days. Among the rafts of summer it was surpassed only by a stately pleasure dome that trundled about Cadboro Bay — a super-raft professionally built for a rich boy at a reputed cost of $100.

The crew of The Floating Outhouse admired that other raft, but didn't covet it. Nor did they mourn their own flagship when the inevitable happened and it went adrift to be seen no more. That's the fate of rafts. Anyway, summer was ending.

It's that way here and now. The little boy on the cedar slab has trotted off home with his brother. The beach is left to the gulls and the fishing herons.

Still, the thing about summer is that it returns. The rafts of next year will be just as labored over, every bit as prized and no less expendable than those of the fleet that served this season.

Stone Boat in New-Fangled Version

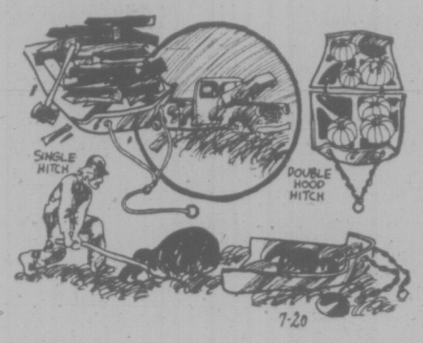
THE MOTHER EARTH NEWS®

A new-fangled version of an old idea:

Nothing beats what the old-timers used to call a stone boat when it comes to moving rocks, firewood, pumpkins around.

You can make an easily fabricated, modern version of this age-old sled-type implement quite easily by equipping a discarded automobile hood with a length of chain. Pull the makeshift carrier behind your tractor, jeep or horse and — when the bottom begins to wear through — take the hood to a junkyard and trade it in on another.

To make a larger stone boat, weld two of the auto engine compartment covers together in a canoe shape.



HELP FOR UNFIT CIVIL SERVANTS

Help for overweight and unfit civil servants is on the way.

The provincial government's occupational health department is setting up several programs for government employees, including fitness groups and a group for people who want to lose weight, Health Minister Dennis Cocke said in a letter to Liberal leader David Anderson's office.

There will also be a Focus on Health group in which experts will speak on different aspects of health and fitness.

Each group will run for 10 weeks at lunch hours or right after work starting in late September, said Cocke's letter, released today.

Plans are being made for menu changes in the legislative dining room, he said.

All government departments will receive a brochure on the program in early September.

Vacation Mishaps: How to Avoid Them

OTTAWA (CP) — Vacations can often be spoiled by mishaps, but a pamphlet put out by the Canada Safety Council suggests how to avoid many common problems.

If you're planning to travel by car, the council advises you to have your vehicle checked and worn parts replaced before they break down and lead to time-consuming, costly repairs that could spoil your trip.

Make sure your spare tire is in good shape and carry a flashlight, flares, first-aid kit, fire extinguisher and tow chain or strap where they are easily reached in case of an emergency.

When loading your car, the council says, distribute the weight evenly to reduce swaying. Take loose objects off the rear window shelf; they may become flying missiles if you stop suddenly.

Also remember that when your car is heavily loaded or towing a trailer you will need more road space to stop or pass.

On long trips take regular rest stops and, if you have been on the road for some time, stop early. The council says most accidents happen between 6 and 9 p.m.

If you stop for refreshment make it coffee, tea or a soft drink. Drinking and driving never mix, the council warns.

When you arrive at your vacation site take it easy with sunbathing. Start with five minutes on each side of your body and work up from there. Remember, you can burn as badly on hazy days as on bright sunny ones.

Use common sense when swimming and never swim alone, or when overtired, overheated or right after eating, the safety council warns. Be aware of water temperature, currents, hidden rocks and other possible dangers.

Children should be watched constantly, the council adds, because water makes them reckless.

If boating is on your holiday agenda, make sure non-swimmers and children always wear lifejackets. Never overload a boat and keep the weight balanced. If the weather looks bad don't go out. Storms and rough water go hand in hand, the council says.

If camping is more to your taste, be careful with fires. Use prepared campfire sites when available; otherwise, dig a shallow pit. Never use gasoline to start or freshen a fire.

The council says it is a good idea to wear long sleeves and pants but, if your skin is exposed to poisonous plants or bushes, wash the exposed area carefully with soap.

Bites from bees, wasps, hornets and other insects can be painful and even fatal for some people. Ice on the bite relieves the pain, but if the swelling is large and persists, get to a doctor.

Avoid hilltops, isolated trees and metal fences during thunderstorms.

If you are caught on open water you should head for shelter immediately.

Lid Substitute Warning

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Agriculture Department has warned home canners not to experiment with canning lid substitutes such as bathroom caulking or aluminum foil during the lid shortage.

USDA consumer affairs chief Nancy Steorts said she is getting reports of homemakers, unable to buy replacement lids for canning jars, "trying some questionable methods for re-using old lids.

"Some people are trying things including rubber cement, sealants, glue, bathroom caulking, aluminum foil and even cellophane;" Mrs. Steorts said.

"These things can have some real potential problems," because they may not protect food properly and could lead to possible spoilage and even botulism in some cases, she said.

Racism 'Excuse'

CHICAGO (AP) — Too many young blacks in the United States are using racism as an excuse for their failure to achieve, Lt.-Gen. Daniel (Chappie) James Jr., the first four-star black general in the U.S. armed forces said Monday. He is vice commander of the Military Airlift Command at Scott air force base, Ill. He will receive his fourth star Aug. 28 and assume command of the North American Air Defence Command.

First TV Next Year For South Africans

JOHANNESBURG (Reuter) — South Africans will be switching on television sets for the first time next January — and their reaction to "the box" is likely to provide some fascinating data for modern sociologists.

The belated introduction of a full-time television service—South Africa is the last developed country to do so — will give scientists the opportunity to study the effects of TV from the gross-roots stage.

Many South Africans fear television may lead to a degeneration of moral standards. They say there is solid evidence from overseas that it is harmful, and the country's radio stations and newspapers have been quick to report its dangers.

Too much violence and sex on television is plaguing other nations, they say, not to mention the anti-social effect it has by keeping people in their homes glued to the screen for hours on end.

To monitor these effects, particularly on children, the South African Human Scientists Research Council has set up a special experimental project in association with the Rand Afrikaans University and University of Stellenbosch.

"We are interested in television's possible effect on people's attitudes and opinions, the effect on stereotypes concerning other people and their effect on the other mass media," said Dr. D. P. Conradie, a senior research officer on the project.

"We will also be watching for possible changes in the way people utilize their leisure hours and their motives in doing so"

Even before last May, when the first test programs started in South Africa, the research project was busy gathering as much information as possible about the conditions prevailing before the introduction of television.

South Africa's many different language and population groups have been involved in the data gathering in sample of 3,000 people at a time.

"Using these results as base-line data, we hope it will be possible to draw more meaningful conclusions later on," said Dr. Conradie.

Hypothetical Marriage

DEAR ABBY: George and I have been married for 32 years, and with so many of his friends dropping dead of heart attacks and my friends dying of cancer, we started talking about what we would do if the other one were to die.

I told George that if he were to die, I'd nevery marry again, and he said I obviously didn't have a very high opinion of our marriage.

Then George told me that if I were to die, he would definitely marry again, which proved that he thought more of our marriage than I did.

I asked him if he had anybody in mind, and he named a women whose husband is still living. I asked him what about her husband, and he said, "Well, if you can die, he can die, too, so I'm just assuming you were both dead."

One word led to another, and now we aren't speaking.

Abby, is it true that people who think highly of their marriage will marry again if a spouse dies, and those who don't, will not?

If that's true, I'll apologize.

GLADYS

DEAR GLADYS: Apologize.

DEAR ABBY: To begin with, from August through December of last year, I had a running battle with the credit department of a large, well-known, high-class, department store. They claimed I owed them $100.

After much correspondence, they finally admitted that due to a computer error, instead of my owing them $100, they owed me 10c!

For the last six months, they have been sending me a monthly notice that I have a credit of 10c.

Abby, so far, it has cost them 60c in postage to call my attention to a 10c credit. Don't you agree that this is absurd? Please pring your comments on this ridiculous situation, and I will gladly spend a dime to mail it to them. — HAD IT

DEAR HAD IT: I agree, it's foolish to spend 10c month after month to inform a customer of a 10c credit. But why indict for the nonsensical business practice of one company?

The heaviness, the sense of constriction and vice-like squeezing felt under the breastbone by some heart patients when they do too much, are emotionally upset or overeat, is called angina pectoris (literally, a choking in the chest). The pain may pass without treatment, but if it does not, it often is relieved by a tiny tablet of nitroglycerine placed under the tongue.

Anginal distress is generally considered to be set off when the amount of oxygen brought to the contracting heart muscle is not sufficient to meet the increased demand for oxygen imposed by stress.

Narrowing of the arterial channels caused by arteriosclerotic thickening of the vessel lining (hardening of the arteries) reduces the blood flow to the muscle, and when stress requires the heart to speed up, there is a relative imbalance between the amount of oxygen needed and the amount that is available.

Nitroglycerine, whose mechanism of action on the heart is still under study, has been for many years and remains to this day the single most effective treatment for an acute attack of angina that will not go away by itself.

There are also other medications not meant for acute attacks but when taken regularly, under a doctor's supervision, are helpful in reducing the frequency of angina or even stopping attacks from occurring.

Measures such as lowering high blood pressure, treating associated gall bladder and stomach problems, supporing the heart action with digitalis, weight reduction, cutting out cigarettes and modifying eating habits may also be effective in reducing the burden of angina.

Sometimes, the best and most meticulous medical management falls short of controlling the symptoms, and the frequency of anginal attacks can become virtually disabling.

Among this group of patients are those who have been considered the most suitable for special X-ray study of the heart arteries to see whether the narrowed areas might be bypassed with a surgically implanted vessel leading from the aorta (the big vessel above the heart), brought down to the heart surface and sewn into the damaged vessel beyond its narrowed area.

Such "jump grafts" fashioned out of veins taken from elsewhere in the body serve as new channels to get needed blood to the deprived and painful muscle. When all the measurable circumstances promise the greatest likelihood of success, such heart surgery is undertaken. Depending on the extent of vascular damage, one vessel or more may be supplied with such jump grafts.

Coronary artery surgery has been on balance highly successful and a great many men and women have been wholly, or almost wholly, relieved of their angina.

But like most types of treatment, it is not perfect; there are pitfalls and failures, along with the good results.

As with any relatively new treatment, especially with one that is so drastic, it is not to be entered into lightly. Opinions of the experts inevitably differ as to exactly who should have surgery and when.

To try to sort out all the perplexities of choosing candue of this kind of surgery, it is necessary to be able to compare the long term results of the operation with comparable men and women who have been treated at the same time by medical means alone, without surgery.

Such a study of the treatment of one type of angina called unstable (because the prospect of a healthy attack seems likely) has been under way for nearly a year under the auspices of the U.S. Heart and Lung Institute's Myocardial Infarction Unit, and is being conducted in nine centres.

It will take at least four years more to have enough evidence to be able to say with certainty in which circumstances heart surgery can be expected to have the most beneficial long term results.

Right now, the preliminary observations suggest that in the treatment of so-called unstable angina, those who are treated surgically are freer of pain but more likely to have a heart attack (myocardial infarction), while those who receive medical treatment are more plagued by angina, but have had considerably fewer heart attacks in the follow-up period.

It will take much more time and study to be sure what the long term advantages and disadvantages, are in these two methods of treatment.

Legal Advice Could Save You Dollars, Years of Aggravation

CAVEAT EMPTOR

By LYNNE GORDON

Many consumers are afraid to hire a lawyer because they fear huge bills. As a result they suffer from the illegal acts of others, fail to protect their own rights or neglect to get legal advice before making major consumer purchases and signing contracts.

Legal advice could save you thousands of dollars or years of aggravation.

Part of the blame rests squarely on the shoulders of the legal profession. For two many years, they have done very little to dispel the high-priced mystique that surrounds them. The legal jargon they use also contributes to poor communication between lawyer and client.

On the other hand, most consumers don't have the faintest idea of the time, effort and knowledge a lawyer invests in a case. They don't understand the charges and are too embarrassed to ask.

Too often people wait until they are in a highly emotional state or have already signed a binding contract; then they choose the first lawyer they can get, pour out all thier problems and order him "to fix it".

Your choice of a lawyer is an important decision. Lawyers differ greatly in ability, experience and conscientious attention to client's affairs . . . and many lawyers specialize in certain types of law.

The best choice for a lawyer is likely to come from friends and relatives who can tell you about a lawyer who gave them satisfactory service.

The provincial law society can also provide you with a list of members.

Sometimes it helps to find a lawyer before you really need one. The longer he knows you and your family, the better he gets to understand your problems. In this way mutual confidence can grow.

Once the decision is made, lay everything on the line. Be completely frank with your lawyer. Spend your first meeting exploring your relationship. Dealing with a lawyer should be a two-way street, a time for dialogue.

Remember you are the boss, you are spending your money, you are hiring him. You should shop for a lawyer with as much thought as you give to any major investment.

One of the first things to do to clear the air is discuss your case in every detail. Ask what he expects to do for you, his chances of success, how long it should take, what litigation (if any) is necessary and how much he estimates the cost will be.

A lawyer is supposed to "get reasonable compensation for his services . . ." That must be one of the most delicate and difficult aspects of the client-lawyer relationship but one that should be aired thoroughly.

You may not be able to get all the answers, not every case fits into a neat package, but you should try to reach some understanding with your lawyer on how you are going to be charged and approximately how much the final account is going to be. This can lessen the chance of some unexpected shocks later on.

Find out if you will be charged by the hour or whether your case falls into the category of a flat fee or a combination of both. Just understand the saw-off point.

Hourly rates can vary — usually anywhere from $25 an hour to $75 and up . . . and that includes telephone conversations. Court costs are separate. The hourly rate depands on the qualificaitons of your lawyer. If a junior partner handles your case it's reasonable to expect the rate to be lower than for the senior partner. An estimated fee can change if the case becomes more complicated than expected. But you should have a prior agreement with your lawyer to warn you of added expense.

The hourly rate or fee does not cover disbursements or out-of-pocket expenses for your lawyer. Certain tarrifs or fee schedules are laid down by the Canadian Bar Associaiton and many county, district (and even city-wide) associations of lawyers have drawn up their own schedules of fees.

These are minimums and do not bind the lawyer. Very rarely do lawyers charge less, usually they charge more. Although, the recent boom in real estate and skyrocketing costs of homes have made some lawyers change their fee for real estate transactios. Since they usually charge a percentage based on the sale price of the house, lawyer's fees have jumped excessively. Many conscientious lawyers are revising their fees in such transactions.

How to hire a lawyer:

A lawyer may ask for a retainer or down payment, before he takes the case, which will be held in trust until the case is finished and your are billed.

And finally, if you think your bill is too high, you can have it "taxed" (that is, checked by the taxing master) at the local courthouse. The rules applying to this procedure vary from province to province but usually the lawyer concerned must be given notice of your intention to "tax", so that he has a chance of defending his charges. You will probably have to pay a small fee to have your bill looked into . . . and notice sent to your lawyer. But in most cases this shouldn't be necessary, if you do all your ground work first and get off to a flying start with your lawyer.

Hopefully, in the future, there will be some kind of insurance or prepayment plan that will give the vast majority of consumers easy access to legal advice.

As an example, with a prepaid plan, you wouldn't hesitate to ask your lawyer for advice before you bought a car, a house or made any large investment.

Prepayment means you plan your legal affairs in advance, in much the same way any business firm does. Having access to legal advice will help in the area of consumer law and give you the opportunity to get counsel on warranties, on the best method to finance a loan, when to sign an offer to purchase . . .

Before you sign a contract, all kinds of protection can be built in to protect you from future trouble. After you sign, you haven't a chance. The case is in your hands — don't gamble.

More Important Work For Husband Than Pacing

EDMONTON (CP) — For the husband instructed in the Lamaze method of childbirth, there's more important work to do than pacing the floor of the waiting room.

"There's an important role for husbands and there are many vital things they can do," says Lesslie Ingledew, president of the Childbirth Education Association of Edmonton.

"A lot of men are under the impression that there isn't anything for them in the birth of their child. It's been passed on in our culture that birth is a woman's job.

"But the husband as a labor coach is totally invaluable."

The Lamaze technique was developed by Russian scientists during the Second World War in an attempt to reduce the discomfort of childbirth and encourage women to have more babies.

It acquired its name from the French obstetrician who adapted the Russian method for use in France. The technique subsequently spread to Europe, North America and South America.

Mrs. Ingledew, who refers to Lamaze as controlled childbirth, says wives are taught how to prepare for labor. The women are told what to expect and how to use relaxation and different levels of breathing to cope with contractions.

"There's less fear among Lamaze-trained mothers," says Gail Smith, a registered nurse who teaches an eight-session pre-natal class. "They know what changes are going on in their bodies."

Husbands help their wives with exercises and labor drills designed to prepare the woman for delivery and play an integral role in the labor and delivery rooms.

"A lot of husbands at the beginning of the classes are reluctant about going into the delivery room," said Mrs. Smith. But by the third week, when they see a film illustrating how important the husband is during labor, "they see a defined role for themselves.

Feminists Demand Pay For Housework Chores

LONDON (Reuter) — British feminists are demanding wages from the government for ironing, cooking, dusting and other chores.

The wages-for-housework campaign is gathering strength here and it wants payment not just for wives who do the cleaning for their husbands.

"Housework is putting on lipstick," Selma James, the New York-born organizer of the movement, said in an interview here.

"We spend time being women instead of living. Women not only slave away doing the housework, they also spend time dressing in certain ways, dieting, tinting their hair and being sympathetic to men. Even sex is part of our duties."

"Our definition of housework includes a man whistling at a woman in the street as well as the housewifely functions we are expected to perform in an office," she said. "And yet we are not paid a penny for this vital contribution to the state."

Mrs. James and several thousand militant supporters are fighting for around $40 a week and held a public meeting here recently to publicize their demands.

"There is a lot of money around," she declared. "Of course the state can afford to pay us. The cash could come from an extra tax on company profits."

Mrs. James argues that because of the present harsh economic climate in Britain, now is the right time to launch the campaign.

"Women are going to be used as shock absorbers for the crisis. We are the ones who will be fired first because they will say we have men to depend on."

A housewife works 24 hours a day for seven days a week. But she gets no recognition, no money she can call her own and is often forced to go out to work and take on a second job as well, according to Mrs. James.

"No myth is farther from the truth than the one which describes so-called working women as 'liberated'—they just have additional work and are never free of household chores. They wear overalls as well as aprons."

SOLAR cooking is demonstrated on the patio of the Ontario Science Centre in Toronto where Kerri Kwinter, 19, pops corn by the heat of the sun.

Vic General Acupuncture In October?

Opening of an acupuncture clinic at Victoria General Hospital has been delayed again and now appears likely in October.

Modifications to equipment to meet new provincial safety standards are expected to take the Canadian manufacturer 30 to 50 days, Dr. D. R. Carlow, assistant executive director (medical), said Wednesday.

The clinic — which will see acupuncture used to treat certain kinds of pain — appeared likely to open in June but provincial approval took longer than expected. It will be the second of its kind in the province, the first opening at Vancouver General Hospital last year.

Patients treated at the clinic will have to be referred by their doctor there and screened by an assessment committee.

Watch Out! Dad's a Killer . . .

OTTAWA (CP)—Federal statisticians hope to publish a detailed study called Murder in Canada this year to equip Parliament for the next debate on capital punishment.

The number of murders jumped 14 per cent last year but Paul Reid, director of the project, says the study "very strongly suports" the government's opposition to the death penalty.

"Murder in Canada will be more than just murder statistics," Mr. Reid said in an interview Thursday.

He said annual statistics, based on police reports, give an inaccurate and unclear picture.

They don't, for instance, take into account plea bargaining — a practice in which a murder charge is placed in order to get a guilty plea on manslaughter.

"Murder in Canada will describe the kind of people who do the killing," says Reid. "They are husbands and wives: Husbands do the murdering, wives are murdered."

Most of the 48 children listed in murder statistics in 1974 were probably slain by their fathers, usually men who also shot their wives, then committed suicide.

The study goes into the relationshp between offender and victim, the place, the weapon used, motive, and the use of drugs or alcohol.

Reid suggests that murder in Canada often is done at home by people who have been drinking. The weapon in half of last year's 545 murders was a gun—most often a rifle or shotgun kept in the home.

Of the other 1974 murder victims, 105 were beaten to death. Fewer than 11 per cent of the deaths occurred during commission of another criminal act—rape, robbery, arson—while 36.3 per cent involved domestic relationships.

British Columbia had 100 murders for a startling rate of about four per 100,000 population. Manitoba approached four per 100,000 with 39 murders and Saskatchewan, with 29, had a rate of about 2.9, an unofficial breakdown based on population and murder figures showed.

By contrast, Quebec's 160 murders gave it a rate of about 2.6 and Ontario's 143 murders gave it a rate of about 1.7. The Alberta rate, based on 38 murders, was 2.2 and that of the Atlantic provinces, which recorded 26 slayings last year, was 1.2.

The government is expected to put a package of Criminal Code amendments before Parliament late this year that will include abolition of capital punishment and new gun controls.

Reid said Statistics Canada had hoped to publish Murder in Canada next month but budget restrictions have washed out the deadline.

"We're working on a shoestring," he said.

Unions, Gov't Row Over Postal Costs

OTTAWA (CP) — Postal union and government negotiators squabbled Thursday over post office figures that set the cost of workers' contract demands at $848 million annually, as bargainers for the Canadian Union of postal Workers argued the government had double-counted some costs and exaggerated others.

The jockeying over figures came at the fourth and final day of conciliation hearings. A three-man board headed by Judge Jean Moisan of the Quebec Superior Court heard arguments from the parties on wage proposals.

E. W. Greenslade, director of staff relations for the post office, said if all the demands of the 22,000-member union were met, the total postal worker payroll cost to the government would rise by 266 per cent.

His figures were challenged by the union negotiators.

John Deverell, research director for the union, said a brief survey of the data showed the government had counted twice increases in vacation pay, paid statutory holidays, rest periods and other items.

By comparison, the total spending of the post office in the fiscal year 1975-76 has been set by the government at $892 million.

The union is asking for a $3.26-an-hour wage increase in a one-year agreement on top of the pay rate of $4.59 for most workers. The postal workers, who include mail handlers and postal clerks, also want a voice in technological change, their workweek reduced to 30 hours from 40 hours, increased shift differentials, overtime and other benefits.

The government has offered a $1.15-an-hour raise spread over 32 months.

BEAVER AND QUADRA GET STAMP HONORS

OTTAWA (CP) — Four eight-cent stamps will be issued Sept. 24 to commemorate 19th-century coastal ships, the post office announced Thursday.

Honored are: The Beaver, a wooden paddle steamer used by the Hudson's Bay Co. on the Pacific Coast; the Neptune, a steamer used in the Newfoundland sealing industry; the Quadra, a steamer used by the fisheries department along the B.C. coast; and the William D. Lawrence, the largest square-rigger sailing ship ever built in Canada.

The post office will issue 26 million of the stamps.

Kingston Cons Continue Strike

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Prison officials said the majority of prisoners at Millhaven Maximum Institution in nearby Bath refused to leave their cells Thursday in the second day of a protest against the segregation of five prisoners who took part in an earlier protest.

Stanley Scrutton, Millhaven's acting director, said Thursday that a small percentage of the 300 prisoners returned to work Thursday, but most refused to leave their cells except to pick up food trays.

Shortly after the protest began Wednesday, prison officials said some prisoners were using threats of violence to enforce the protest against segregation last week of five men alleged to be leaders of an 11-day protest from July 31 to Aug. 10.

Scrutton said one of the segregated prisoners has been deported to England and a second returned to his own cell.

Striking prisoners issued a statement Thursday that said the earlier strike was a "spontaneous action" by all prisoners and "there were no leaders."

The statement, signed by 194 prisoners, said the first protest "was to back up our demands for a recognized prisoners' trade union and to bring to public attention the fact that we are being denied every possible outlet for rehabilitation purposes."

The statement said that J. A. Dowsett, prison director, was doing "his best to embarrass the prison population" when he charged that some leaders of the first protest used threats of violence to enforce that strike.

"This is totally untrue," said the statement. "It is a complete fabrication on the director's part."

Scrutton warned Wednesday that disciplinary action might be taken if the strike continued. He said Thursday that the situation is being assessed but he does not know how long the protest will continue.

Aid to Ethiopia

ROME (AFP) — The UN food and agriculture organization (FAO) headquarters here Thursday announced a new $1-million aid package for Ethiopia's drought-impoverished Ogaden, Wollo, Tigrre and Eritrea provinces. Under the operation about 280,000 persons, most of them too weak to work or grow food for themselves, will receive rations of FAO wheat, vegetable oil and powdered milk.

VALVES RECALLED

OTTAWA (CP) — Only six of more than 200 defective artificial heart valves being recalled on an emergency basis by a U.S. manufacturer were imported into Canada, a health department spokesman said Thursday.

He said five of the valves had been implanted into patients.

The spokesman said the department is in the process of notifying the surgeons involved who will tell their patients.

He stressed that there "is absolutely no reason for users of the valves to panic," because immediate corrective measures will be taken with the users.

Shiley Laboratories Inc. Santa Ana, Calif., is recalling three production lots of the Bjork-Shiley aortic and mitral heart valves have been implicated in two deaths and one severe injury in the United States.

2 Remote Air Strips Re-Opened

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — Two remote Arctic airstrips, banned by the Ministry of Transport after rating among the worst in Canada, have been partially re-opened

The strips at Grise Fiord and Arctic Bay were shut down Aug. 6, to all but emergency landings and take-offs but the decision was amended to allow use of the strips by chartered aircraft, although scheduled flights are still banned.

MOT says twin Otters, or similar aircraft can use the community-operated runways under restricted conditions, in daylight with good visibility, little wind and with runway approaches made in only one direction.

Ship Tragedy Rescuers Die

HALIFAX (CP) — The wreckage of a Canadian Coast Guard helicopter which disappeared late Wednesday while attempting to help rescue the crew of a sinking ship was found Thursday afternoon on a hillside on the northern tip of Quebec-Labrador. Its two crew members were dead.

Their deaths bring to six the number of deaths directly or indirectly caused by the sinking.

The bodies of two crew members of the cargo vessel Aigle d'Ocean were plucked from the sea and two other seamen are presumed dead.

A spokesman for the Air-Sea Search and Rescue Centre in Halifax said the Bell G-2 helicopter had taken off from the Guard Cutter Norman McLeod Rogers after hearing a distress signal from the sinking cargo ship.

The Aigle d'Ocean had struck an iceburg a few miles off Port Burwell, Que. The 141-foot cargo vessel with a displacement of 432 tons, was 56 years od and was registered in St. Joseph de la Rive, Que.

There were still northeast winds in the area and visibilities were down to less than half a mile in rain and mist.

The Rogers managed to reach the sinking ship, saving five of its nine crew members and recovering two bodies from the sea. The two others are presumed dead.

Watchdogs Over British Ales Drive Brewers to Distraction

ANWELL, England (NYT) — The Blue Lion. The Rose and Crown. The Bricklayers Arms. Farmer's Boy Sportsman. Old Greyhound.

Riding shotgun in the speeding blue Volvo, Eric Spragett scanned the roadside pubs of Hertfordshire with narrowed eyes. It was not easy to tell which was friend, which foe.

"Some of them sell both kinds," he said. "Some sell the good stuff. And some sell only gas."

Spragett-who did not fully relax until he was safely inside the Elephant and Castle, sipping his first pint of rich brown Ind Coope bitter—is a director of the Campaign for Real Ale (Camra), a fraternity of some 30,000 irreverent but — dedicated men and women who are noisily driving England's multibillion dollar beer industry to distraction.

"Actually," said Spragett, a serious man with his long hair tied back in a knot, "I just happen to think old fashioned beer tastes better."

Camra surrounds its case with technical argument, but stripped of its subleties it goes something like this:

Bad beer — that is, much of the beer made by the big producers — is watered down, injected with agents to produce artificial foam, filtered and pasteurized to remove yeast solids. When it arrives at the pub in casks and stored in the basement, it is pressurized with carbon dioxide gas which enables the bartender to draw it to the spigot with the simple push of a button.

In the last four years, Camra has mounted a major effort to bring back true-brewed, straight-from-the-cask, non-carbonated draft beer, thereby throwing a lifeline to the British beer drinker who, they believe, is cheerfully but ignorantly drowning in mediocre fizz.

They are clearly one of the more interesting and — judging by scatered evidence — successful consumer groups around. They have been described as adroit exploiters of the "nostalgia movement," bold battlers against corporate monopoly, true symbols of a British middle-class that cannot seem to organize effectively on big issues like inflation but rushes to the barricades to protest threats against environment and tradition.

The result, says Camra, is a frothy concoction "with no guts in it." The beer Camra likes — brewed by small companies, and to a certain extent by some large ones — is made with traditional doses of malt (that's where the "guts" are), allowed to ferment naturally, and hand-pumped at the bar. The result is a smooth brown liquid that produces a benign world view.

Camra's main targets are the so-called "Big Six" — Allied, Bass Charrington, Courage, Scottish and Newcastle, Watney's and Whitebread.

Through merger and acquisition, these six now make three-quarters of the beer and own nearly two-thirds of the nation's 80000 pubs.

FACTORY PLANNED

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AFP) — Seven Islamic countries plan to set up a Volkswagen assembly plant in Saudi Arabia to go into production in 1977, a report said. The factory, to be located at Damman, will be established jointly by Saudi Arabia, Pakistan, Kuwait, Bahrain, Qatar, the United Arab Emirates and Oman. Behind the project are the Automobile Corp. of Pakistan and the private Saudi firm, Jaffali Brothers.

Light Plane Crash Kills Two People

PORT TOWNSEND, Wash. (AP) — Two persons were killed in the crash Thursday of a small plane in the Green Hill area about 30 miles south of here, the Jefferson County sheriff's office said.

The plane, a Cessna 182 believed to be from Florida, was en route from Seattle-Tacoma International airport to Victoria, authorities said. It came down at the 1,000-foot level of the 2,380-foot peak, a deputy said.

There was no immediate identification of those aboard.

Ground crews reached the area Thursday evening and put out a small fire caused by the crash, he said.

The U.S. Coast Guard said it received a report on a downed plane about 4:15 p.m. A helicopter from Port Angeles spotted the plane less than an hour later.

THIS PUP CAN STAND LOSS OF TWO LEGS

DAVIS, Calif. (UPI) — A puppy named Vinnie has had two legs amputated . . . but it's probably just as well. He still has four left.

"We've seen about everything here, but this is the first time we've had a six-legged dog," said Dr. Robert Leighton, head of the surgical team at the University of California veterinary hospital here.

Leighton said the dog had done "very well" with his six legs, but the 3-month-old puppy would now be "much more comfortable, and much less of a freak" with only four legs.

CZECHS SAY COPTER HAD GUN

PRAGUE (AP) — The interior ministry charged Thursday that the helicopter used by United States pilot Barry Meeker to lift East German refugees out of Czechoslovakia was armed with a machine-gun.

The ministry said a Czechoslovak border guard was fired upon.

Meeker, 22, a decorated Vietnam veteran, has said the rented helicopter was unarmed.

The Czechoslovak news agency CTK quotes the official as saying that the helicopter opened fire on a border guard and the guard fired back "only in defence, that is at the time he was shot at from the helicopter."

The ministry said harsher steps were not taken against the helicopter because of the possible danger to vacationers at nearby resorts and "because there were people in the helicopter who would have died in a sharper action," CTK quotes the official as saying.

The agency said investigation of the "gross violation" indicates the flight was "prepared by the military and security bodies of the Federal Republic of Germany (West Germany)."

In Munich, Meeker's lawyer reported the pilot had been transferred from the hospital in Traunstein, 50 miles east of Munich, to an undisclosed location in the Munich area where he was staying with friends. The lawyer, Klaus Goebel, said Meeker had received a threatening letter and had been besieged by reporters at Traunstein.

Meeker flew three East Germans out of Czechoslovakia by helicopter on Sunday under a hail of gunfire from Czechoslovak border guards.

Varied Exhibits at Centre

Continuing its Women's Festival of Arts, the Emily Carr Arts Centre, 207 Government, this week presents a variety of exhibits.

Showing until Saturday are watercolors by Tine Andriessen Booth; appliqued pillows and patchwork by Shirley Fisher; stitchery by Elizabeth Mayne; paintings by Gwen Farquahar; watercolors by Ivy Dezall Taylor; pressed flowers by Claudia Krause, and mixed media by Nancy Pyner.

Women's groups and individual artists who would like to demonstrate and exhibit or set up displays of work should contact the centre by calling Rosalie Bowie or Gloria Gray, 382-4922.

The festival will be extended through September under a B.C. government grant marking International Women's Year.

New Crown Corp. For Two Ferries

The British Columbia government Thursday established a crown corporation to operate two ferries and control the development of crown land at Whistler Mountain, Resources Minister Bob Williams announced.

Williams said the provincial cabinet approved the spending of $2 million to start the crown development corporation but there will probably be a total issue of $4 million in shares in the new company.

The corporation will operate the Princess Marguerite, which runs from Victoria to Seattle and Port Angeles, and the newly-acquired Prince George.

The two ships will be officially chartered to the B.C. Steamship Company, a provincially-owned company which now operates the Princess Marguerite, he said.

The minister said that initially the board of the corporation will be held to a minimum with him as a director. Other directors will include Norman Pearson, deputy minister of resources, and W. K. Paulus, president of Dunhill Development Corporation.

The first $2 million will be used to refurbish the Prince George, purchased last week for $300,000 from Canadian National Railways. Some of the money will also be used to pay outstanding bills on the Marguerite.

Provision for the formation of the corporation was contained in controversial amendments to the Lands, Forests and Water Resources Act introduced during the spring session of the legislature. At that time opposition members said the amendments gave the minister too much power.

Williams said Thursday the corporation hopes to make money out of the services already provided and out of a specialized mapping service which it hopes to sell to such companies as B.C. Telephone.

Shooting Suspect Remanded

LADYSMITH — Twenty-five-year-old William Rosebleff was remanded in custody here Thursday until he appears in Nanaimo provincial court Monday for a bail hearing.

Rosebleff, a native Indian of no fixed address, is charged with two counts of attempted murder resulting from a weekend fight outside a bar in which two white men were shot.

Bradley Lockhart, 23, of Ladysmith is in satisfactory condition in Nanaimo General Hospital, suffering arm and stomach wounds.

Robert Lamontagne, 24, also of Ladysmith, was grazed by a bullet but did not require hospitalization.

50% GAS-RATE JUMP

B.C. Hydro announced today that rates for its gas customers in Greater Victoria will jump 50 per cent after the end of the month.

Sharp increases in the price of butane, a basic component of the liquid petroleum gas-air used by its local customers, has produced the need for the increase, the authority said.

There are about 500 residential gas heating customers and about 4,000 residential non-heating gas customers in Greater Victoria.

Average monthly increases for the first group will range from about $4 to $12 while the second group will face monthly increases from $1 to $5.

Premiers Back 200 Mile Zone

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Canada's premiers will urge the federal government to "act unilaterally" to create a fishing zone extending 200 miles from the coastline, Premier Frank Moores said today.

The decision, reached at the premiers' annual meeting here, was unanimous, Moores said. Ottawa would be asked to declare the zone first "and negotiate later" with the fishing nations concerned.
ing natins concerned.

The Newfoundland premier said the contents of a resolution to be sent to Prime Minister Trudeau later today were to be determined at an afternoon session.

It would be a "very very firm position" that the time has come for the federal government to act unilaterally and "without qualification to ensure that the stock is preserved."

Moores said the premiers represent all the people of Canada as does the federal government and "unless they've gone deaf completely, I hope it will make some difference to Ottawa."

The premiers also appear to be prepared to back Ottawa in efforts to stem inflation through curtailed wages and profits but they want the federal government to stop meddling with cost-shared programs.

The premiers, meeting here for their 16th annual conference, were expected to agree today on resolutions calling for no change in current cost-shared programs, a tough stand against Ottawa's Foreign Investment Review Act legislation and further study of a national electrical grid.

Alberta Reveals $50M Home Plan

EDMONTON (CP) — Plans for a $50 million low and middle-income government housing scheme were released Thursday by Housing Minister Bill Yurko.

The money is an annual sum to be offered to apartment builders in the form of mortgage loans carrying an interest rate of eight per cent.

Builders must agree to make 50 per cent of their units available to people earning less than $12,000 per year. Rents for the subsidized apartments will be established by the Alberta Housing Corporation (AHC), which is to administer the program, Yurko said.

The minister said that between 2,000 and 2,500 units will likely become available in the first year of the 15-year program, with 60 to 80 per cent in Edmonton and Calgary and the remainder in centres including Red Deer, Lethbridge, Medicine Hat and Fort McMurray.

The lowest rents under the plan, which is called the core housing development program, will run about $140 a month while those in higher income brackets would pay about $250.

The eight per cent mortgages to apartment builders will be available to finance up to 95 per cent of a building's cost, with a 15-year term. Builders will have the option of discontinuing the rent ceilings after a 15-year period providing the mortgage principal has been repaid.

The program should come onto the market sometime next summer.

"I expect there will be a great demand for these low-interest loans from builders," Yurko said, adding that discussion of the new program with apartment industry spokesmen has indicated builders are happy with it.

Builders will be required to submit applications to the AHC, outlining the type of project they propose to build and detailing cost.

Girl Poor After Crash

Susan Thompson, 18, of 2783 Penelope in Langford, remains in poor condition at Victoria General Hospital today with injuries received in a single-car accident five days ago.

She was a passenger in a car driven by Ronald Griffiths, 22, of Langford, which hit a utility pole on Jacklin Road early Sunday. Griffiths received only minor injuries.

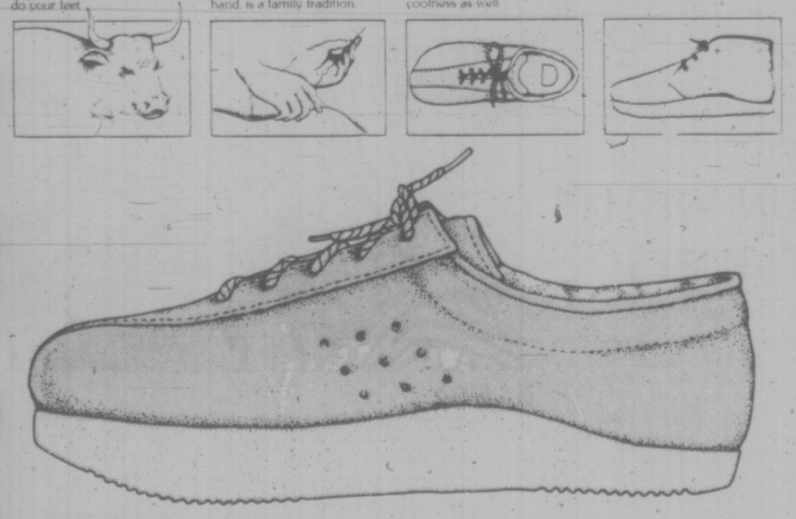
ROOTS

Canadian leathers.
All 10 styles of Roots use top-grain hides, finished naturally with no cosmetic cover-ups. The leather pores breathe freely. So do your feet.

Craftsmanship.
Two generations of Canadian shoemakers (a father and four sons) guide production. Good work, much of it still done by hand, is a family tradition.

Cool leather lining.
Soft skins inside give your feet just a little extra cushioning, and since few materials breathe as well as leather, a little extra coolness as well.

Built-in heel support.
A sturdy counter (hidden by the lining at the back of the shoe) helps hold your ankle and helps your Roots hold their shape.



Naturally shaped toes.
Roots roomy uppers aren't shaped like ordinary shoes. But they are shaped like ordinary feet. Your toes will stay healthfully uncrowded.

Rocker Sole.
Body weight shifts from your heel down the outer side across to the big toe for lift off. Roots sole makes each lift off less work.

Comfortable arch support.
If you spend a lot of time moving around or standing around on hard floors or city sidewalks, your arches need this kind of help.

Gently recessed heel.
Helps your posture as your leg muscles develop a little more strength. With no heel to tilt you forward, Roots give you a more natural walk.

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

In a national championship event some years ago, a deal arose which became the subject of much analysis. The issue was whether the West defender could have diagnosed the true state of affairs. Here is that deal. Neither side vulnerable. West deals.

NORTH
♥ 10 5 3
♦ 9 4 2
♣ 9 3

WEST
♠ J 8 7 2
♥ A K Q 9 8 6
♦ A 10 3

EAST
♠ 10 9 6
♥ 7 4 2
♦ 8 7 5

SOUTH
♠ 3
♥ J
♦ K Q J 6
♣ A K Q 10 6 5 2

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1 ♥	1 ♠	Pass	5 ♣
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of ♥.

On West's opening lead of the king of hearts, East played the deuce and South dropped the jack. West continued with the queen of hearts, which South ruffed. Next came the ace of clubs, West discarding a heart. Declarer then entered dummy via the ace of spades, and on the king of spades he discarded his six of diamonds.

Now the board's nine of clubs was led, South overtaking with his ten-spot (knowing that the ten would win the trick). The king and queen of clubs were then cashed, picking up East's two remaining trumps. South's only loser from here in was a diamond to West's ace. So he fulfilled his contract, losing just one heart and one diamond trick.

Had West led a spade at trick two (intead of a second heart), the contract almost surely would have been defeated. Declarer would have won the trick with the board's ace, and on the spade king he would have discarded his diamond six. Then would come a trump to South's ace, West discarding a heart.

East would now have himself a sure trump trick (with th tripleton J-8-7 remaining), since declarer would be unable to reach dummy to finesse against East's jack. Thus South would incur a one-trick set.

The question was whether West should have been sufficiently clairvoyant to have know to lead a spade at trick two, to remove the sole entry to dummy before declarer found out about the 4-0 division of the adversely held trumps.

West stated that he knew that South had just the singleton jack of hearts, for if East had two hearts he would have initiated a high-low signal at trick one (instead of playing the heart deuce). But, he added, declarer might have been void of spades, and if such were the case, then a spade lead at trick two would give declarer a present of three spade tricks. And so the question remains: Did West misdefend?

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By SYDNEY OMARR

Astrological Forecast for Saturday, August 23

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Look behind the scenes. You may be active now in connection with charity organization, special group, club or hospital. Finish project. Spread influence. Get display, distribution. Cut through red tape. You receive more than usual amount of attention.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Wish can "come true." Friendship is enhanced as you learn of special favor. Make new starts in new directions; stress original approach. Leo, Aquarius could figure prominently. Involvement is indicated — romance is emphasized.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Accent is on ability to climb over obstacles. What appears a setback is actually a challenge — which you can overcome. Know it, be confident. Your hunch pays dividends. You learn and teach. Aquarian is likely to be in picture.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Good lunar aspect coincides now with long-distance communication. You gain insight by answering calls, correspondence. Social contacts prove valuable. Dialogue leads to viable concepts. You solve dilemma "almost without knowing it."

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Taxes, leases, insurance policies could command attention. Legal agreement is favorable, but you should double-check. Take nothing for granted. Delve beneath surface. It is possible to strike pay dirt.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Lie low, emphasize public relations, diplomacy. Refuse to get involved in legal dispute. Wait, observe, make amends for recent misunderstanding which involved partner, mate. Taurus, Libra figure in picture.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Low-key approach brings best results. Study Virgo message. Diplomacy, especially where domestic matters enter picture, is essential. Don't force issues. Be "nice" and what you want arrives at doorstep. You'll see!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Good Moon aspect coincides now with changes, creativity, desire for additional knowledge — and a burst of energy. Romantic involvement is here, too. One who whispers sweet nothings really does care but doesn't know what to do about it.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Home, hearth, security, dealings with older people — these are emphasized. Get organized. Obtain valid appraisal. Check priorities. Relationship intensifies. Stakes are high and for keeps. Know it; don't play games with emotions.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Brother, sister or other close relative wants to discuss idea or short trip. Key now is to expand emotional horizons. You need not be limited. Finish what you start. Cut through paper work. Aries, Libra are in picture.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Accent on what comes in, goes out, amount of energy expended. Evaluate efforts in terms of what you get in return. A new, more direct approach to projects, problems is indicated. Be independent, original. Allow creativity to flow.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Trust judgment, intuition. Your're going places, especially where personal appeal is concerned. One who aided, taught in past in due to make meaningful reappearance. Be direct, specific and independent. Cycle is high — you will win.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY — this is a power year. You go into business, marry, have an addition to family. You are shrewd, analytical and capable of putting ideas into practical, workable form. Gemini, Virgo play important roles in your life. September will be your outstanding month in 1975.

"I wish you'd get your own books," Susan grumbled. "You've lost my place again."

Andy smiled. "But I did notice your page," he told her. "An interesting number too. It's just seven times the square of the total of its three digits."

That's all you'll want to know. Or is it!

JAWS TAKING BIG BITE OF CASH

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. (Reuter) — The shark movie Jaws, released 59 days ago, is within three places of being the most profitable film ever made, its producers said.

Universal Studios said the film was moving up fast to overtake the top three money-making films in movie history —The Godfather, The Sound of Music and Gone with the Wind.

Special thanks to the staff, Nurses at Royal Jubilee Hospital and to Drs. P. M. Wolfe, Dr. Lockyer and Dr. Perry.
Mrs. Mary Mawer, Douglas, Alice and Family.

9 IN MEMORIAM

ANNETT — In loving memory of Marilyn and Jim.
Till all the seas run dry my dear,
And the rocks melt with the sun,
I will love you still my dear
While the sands of life shall run.
Mother

CRISP — In memory of a loving wife and mother Joanna, who passed away August 22, 1974.
"Gone from us, but not forgotten."
—Sadly missed by husband and son.

KARAGIANIS — In loving memory of my dear husband and father John Melvin Karagianis who died August 22nd, 1971.
Its lonely here without you,
We miss your helping hand,
Why you had to go so soon,
We'll never understand,
The golden gates were opened
God knew you needed rest,
His garden was most beautiful
He only takes the best.
Always remembered by his wife Margaret and daughter Linda.

THEY SHALL GROW NOT OLD, AS WE WHO ARE LEFT GROW OLD, AGE SHALL NOT WEARY THEM, NOR THE YEARS CONDEMN. AT THE GOING DOWN OF THE SUN, AND IN THE MORNING, WE WILL REMEMBER THEM.
—WITH GRATITUDE, SANDS.

Frosty Nights Drawing Nearer

The final week of August is still summer but it does bring the need for thinking in terms of cooler nights ahead, especially for those houseplants spending the summer outdoors.

No need to rush them inside yet, for they have achieved a degree of hardiness during their vacation. Growth is stronger than when in dry heat of the house. The plants look healthier too.

Poinsettias especially should now be strong and healthy. Take them indoors by the end of August before the need arises for closed doors and windows, and heating; otherwise the shock will be too much for them. After being cut back in early May, the plants will have grown well branched. The house conditions after September will bring them along to the flowering and bract-coloring stage.

Only from the last week of September is it necessary to put poinsettias in a totally dark place from sunset to sunrise (or from dusk to dawn is an easy way to remember) to simulate the short day length of their native Mexico in winter. In the daytime they need full light and indeed, sunlight.

Cyclamens have been dormant all summer, for these have a cormous rootstock with food storage. Now the pots containing the corms need some water and to be placed in a light window indoors.

Within a week, tiny curled leaves should be visible down at soil level. This is the sign to repot at once into the same size pot, washed, cleaned and dried, using fresh leafmould, compost and a little sand.

Notice the beginning roots on the corm not only on the bottom but around the edges. Don't take off the particles of soil clinging to these roots for you will unavoidably pull off the invisible feeding roots. Note also the amount of corm showing above soil level.

Repot at same level. Leave at least a half inch space between soil surface and rim of pot for watering.

Water is applied at the side of the corm, never over its center, for the concave growth area will soon rot away with collected moisture.

After repotting, give enough water to dampen the soil from top to bottom, then keep the pot in an east or north window indoors to make its growth and later, flower buds.

The Christmas flowering cactus is brought indoors to a similar temperature as poinsettia; an east window is suitable where hot sun does not reach. This plant also needs a short day.

While we don't make a habit of putting it away in darkness, we do attempt to prevent direct artificial light shining on the plant after dusk until the following dawn.

Water this cactus a little once weekly until September 15 (but never water if soil is still damp); then give no water until October 15. After that date, give small amounts of water weekly (a five-inch diameter pot, a half-cup), again remembering never to add more if soil is damp.

Tiny hair clusters at the tip of each leaf should be seen by October 30 as a sign that buds will appear between the hairs. Don't move the plant around from then on or the buds may drop.

Other houseplants outdoors will need care according to their kind, but don't leave them out until a starlit night when someone asks you at 10 p.m. "did you bring in all those pot plants yet? It looks like a frost before morning."

Whale Capture Protest Mounts

Opposition is mounting against the capture by Sealand of the Pacific owner Bob Wright of four killer whales which are destined for export or kept as a mate for Sealand's performing whale Haida.

Dr. Patrick Moore, ecologist with the Vancouver Greenpeace Foundation, said today the whales must be released at all costs.

He said there are only about 100 orcas (killer whales) on the east coast of Vancouver Island and "It is of environmental importance to maintain this population on the coast."

"Only 10 per cent of orcas in captivity have survived," Moore said, "and before the size limits were placed on whaling permits, the death rate was even higher."

Moore said the Greenpeace Foundation does not recognize the legality of the "Killer Whale Harvesting Permit" which is issued at the discretion of the federal fisheries department and allows for the capture of eight whales annually.

"It is a threat to the survival of the orca community," Moore said, adding that the Foundation has "already lodged a protest with the fisheries department.

Similar action was also taken today by 75 Victoria residents who sent a joint letter to the department, Premier Dave Barrett and Bob Wright, demanding the release of the whales from a floating pen in Pedder Bay.

Group spokesman Bob Ikle said "as human beings, we should be above this sort of conduct."

He said the letter reads in part: "The time has come to free the whales ... we appeal to your intelligence and your heart."

SEEING IS BELIEVING

How do you believe something you can't actually look at — such as the audience for your advertising?

You KNOW that some people out there buy and read our paper — but how many? Where do they live? Where do they shop for their copies? How much are they willing to pay for them?

The best way to SEE a circulation audience (and be sure it exists) is through the facts and figures of the reports of the Audit Bureau of Circulations.

It's no problem to look over our circulation audience. Ask to see a copy of our latest ABC audit report.

Soviet Naval Spending Said Agressive Sign

LONDON (UPI) — A leading western naval expert says only one conclusion can be drawn from massive Soviet naval spending—the Kremlin has aggressive intentions.

Capt. John Moore, editor of Jane's Fighting Ships, warned against "emasculation of America's defence" by cuts in the outnumbered U.S. navy.

Moore made his comments in the 1975-76 edition of Jane's, the world's most authoritative guide to navies, warships and naval weaponry.

In the book, published Wednesday, he condemned "the very vocal and sometimes downright dishonest efforts of a number of influential people who see their mission in life as the emasculation of America's defence."

There is no answer to the question of which navy is number one, he said, but the Soviets have spent 50 per cent more than the United States on naval shipbuilding in the past 10 years and are now spending one-third more.

"The ever-growing Soviet navy has outrun the legitimate requirements of national defence and has no logical merchant defence role in time of war," he said.

The naval expert said the North Atlantic Treaty Organization nations "must abide by the lesson of history—unnecessarily large forces are intended for aggressive action."

Jane's said the Soviets outnumber the United States in every kind of naval vessel except aircraft carriers. America has 14 carriers to Russia's three.

The Soviet submarine fleet was put at 120 nuclear and 191 conventionally powered craft, with another 19 nuclear and 77 conventional subs either under construction or in reserve.

U.S. submarine strength was listed at 105 nuclear vessels, with another 28 being built or in reserve and 12 conventional craft, with three under construction or in reserve.

Jane's said the Soviets have 33 cruisers, 106 destroyers and 109 frigates compared with 27, 105 and 65 for the United States.

The French navy is becoming the largest in Western Europe, according to Jane's, and the British navy once the world's mightiest, would be "desperately stretched in the event of a crisis."

It said China has 58 submarines—seven more than a year ago — and has the world's largest fleet of small, fast attack craft. But it said the Chinese navy is primarily a defensive one.

THE HAPPY HOUR ISN'T GOOD FOR YOU: STUDY

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — People who like to wind down from a hard day's work with a cocktail or two might find more relaxation in physical exercise, a University of Maryland study shows.

Alcohol may appear to relieve physical tension but its effect is only mental, report associate health professors Dorothy and Daniel Girdano and graduate assistant Richard Yarian.

"The alcohol, a depressant drug, affects the central nervous system and, psychologically, the drinker feels better and more relaxed after a drink," Dorothy Girano said.

"In actuality, the body may be very tense," she said.

"If relaxation is the goal after a stressful day, it is better for the person to engage in physical exercise than to sit and drink."

20 Lots Sold In Saanich Development

The first 20 lots in Passmore Place, Dunhill Development Corporation's 259-unit development on Interurban at Marigold, have been sold.

Prices for the lots were $18,000 to $21,600, said a housing department spokesman in announcing the sale.

Names of the 20 purchasers were drawn by former Saanich Ald. Les Passmore earlier this month from more than 40 applications.

The lots, averaging 6,000 square feet, have been sold at below the market value with a 99-year lease, and are among 27 single family lots in the development.

Purchasers must build a house on them within 12 months.

Also part of the development will be 14 zero-lot-line houses, 93 townhouses, 45 maisonettes, and 80 back-to-back townhouses.

Baker Row Threatens To Shut Supermarkets

The threat of closed supermarkets hung over Vancouver Island today as bakers went on strike at the Vancouver plant of Weston Bakeries Ltd.

A spokesman for the B.C. Food Industry Labor Relations Council said it is probable that the major supermarkets will be shut down by the middle of next week.

In Kelowna, Labor Minister Bill King said today that the provincial government will not intervene in the strike. He said he would be making a statement later in the day on the mediator's report.

Hugh Comber, secretary-manager of the Bakery and Confectionery Workers Union, Local 468, told the Times from Vancouver that customers of Weston will be supplied today "but after that I just don't know."

Joe Burns, manager of Weston's distribution depot in Victoria, confirmed the Vancouver plant's products arrived today and will be distributed.

Pickets went up at the Vancouver plant at 8 a.m., hard on the heels of a report to Labor Minister Bill King filed by industrial inquiry commissioner Clive McKee.

Comber said the strike is against Weston's only at the moment and he doesn't know when it will be expanded or if it will be expanded by company lockouts.

The B.C. Food Council last month indicated a strike against Weston Bakeries Ltd. would have been answered with a lockout of union members generally.

The food industry council, in addition to representing Weston Bakeries Ltd., consists of Canada Safeway, Empress Foods, High Low Foods Ltd., H. Y. Louie Co. Ltd., Independent Super-Valu Stores, Kelly Douglas and Co., McGavin's Toastmaster, Mrs. Willman's Baking, Overwaitea Foods and Stongs Market.

The council was formed with the intention that none of its members would be singled out for strike action without an industry-wide lockout.

The immediate effects of a shutdown at the Weston plant could be that bread will be in shorter supply. The bakery is estimated to produce more than a third of the bread consumed in the Lower Mainland.

Comber said there are about 40 of the union's over 600 members at in-store bakeries on Vancouver Island. The members are at Safeway and Super-Valu stores.

A supermarket shutdown was averted a month ago with McKee's appointment and since then he received two extensions. McKee said Thursday his report would go to King that day.

The union has been without a contract since June 1 and last month served strike notice against Weston, Mother Hubbard Ltd. and Empress Foods Ltd.

RCMP For Quadra

The RCMP is planning to open a summer detachment on Quadra Island.

The move follows violent flareups of bad feeling between local residents of the island off Campbell River and a larger number of young newcomers.

The latest manifestation was Aug. 2 when a group of vigilantes smashed the home of Allen McLaughlin, 22, a musician who has been living for two years in a makeshift log cabin on crown land.

McLaughlin makes a subsistence living working a few months each year in logging camps, on fishing boats or a survey team, and collecting unemployment insurance or welfare the rest of the time.

He said RCMP from Campbell River checked out the property two years ago but did not tell him to leave.

He said friends who parked their cars on the highway leading to his home had their windows smashed and young people on motorcycles fired small-calibre rifles to scare him.

Other young people said several of their animals have been shot and killed.

McLaughlin said two friends were staying with him and living in two wood-frame shelters covered with plastic sheeting. He said Aug. 1 they returned to meadow where he lives to find one of the shelters engulfed in flames.

He said the next morning the flames started up again, and then a group of about 30 people with rakes, shovels and a front-end loader emerged from the forest and started to tear down his cabin. He said they gave him 30 minutes to clear out his belongings.

McLaughlin said he believes the fire which destroyed the plastic shelter was deliberately set and he is seeking legal advice. He said he found three hangman's nooses hanging from a tree in the meadow a few days later. (See picture on Page 2.)

Danny Charlton, 21, said he tied the nosses the day of the fire as a joke and meant no malice towards McLaughlin and his two friends.

RCMP Staff Sgt. Major Norm Sharpe said the Victoria office has already asked the Campbell River detachment to find a suitable site on the island for the detachment.

An RCMP officer from Campbell River normally goes over to the island to keep an eye on things, said Sharpe but the new detachment would mean one full time man there, at least during the summer months.

Approval has not come from Ottawa yet and Sharpe said he didn't know if they would get authorization in time for next summer.

The RCMP will ask for an additional man for the new post but Sharpe said he may have to be taken from existing staff in the province.

REPORT REALLY HASHED CASE

WINNIPEG (CP) — A judge "spent a week" looking up the dictionary meaning of words in a pre-sentence report, but only ended up "more confused".

"Einstein couldn't figure it out," Judge Lawrie Mitchell said of the probation officer's report on Jonathan Brownstone, 25, of Winnipeg, who pleaded guilty to possessing five grams of hashish.

The judge quoted this passage from the six-page report:

"Mr. Brownstone presents a rather anxious, overly-dependent, passive-aggressive, slightly inadequate individual who has a low self-concept but is relatively well-motivated to achieve and appears to be above average in intellectual functioning ability.

"Basically, Mr. Brownstone appears to present himself in two distinct but related perspectives, the division of which seems based on a combination of multiple factors, such as psycho-socal development maturity, motivation to achieve in an appropriate employment setting and sex-role identity stabilization."

The judge asked, "Now what's all that garbage?"

Crown counsel Bruce Macfarlane said, "I admit I have some difficulty grasping the thrust of the report myself."

Defence counsel Jeffrey Gindin said, "in all its confusion, I think it's a favorable report," a sentiment with which the judge agreed.

Judge Mitchell said he had intended to give a jail term to Brownstone, who had two previous drug convictions.

But because "the couple of lines you can read" in the report were favorable, he imposed a $500 fine instead.

Anti-Israel Command Formed

Times News Services

DAMASCUS, Syria — Syria and Jordan announced today they had established a joint command to co-ordinate their armies against Israel and called on the Arab world to reject any compromise settlement worked out by U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

The two countries issued a joint communique in which they asked all Arab nations to marshal their military machine against and reject partial peace settlements.

They sharply criticized Kissinger's attempt to negotiate a Sinai agreement between Egypt and Israel and said "events have shown there is no alternative military force and preparedness" in confronting Israel.

The announcement of the Jordanian-Syrian supreme command council, as it will be named, and the sharp criticism of Kissinger's current shuttle mission came at the end of a four-day visit to Syria by King Hussein of Jordan.

Hussein and Syrian president Hafez Assad rejected the notion that the Sinai settlement Kissinger is now trying to seal between Egypt and Israel will help promote peace in the Middle East.

They said only an Israeli withdrawal from occupied Arab territories on their fronts as well as Egypt's could do that. They said only "a militarily strong Arab nation" could guarantee such a withdrawal.

Kissinger meanwhile kicked off his new Middle East peace shuttle today with nearly five hours of talks in Jerusalem, and the Israelis reported progress was made. He then flew by helicopter to Ben-Gurion airport and boarded his United States Air Force jet for Alexandria, Egypt, and talks with President Anwar Sadat.

The U.S. state secretary said he would return to Jerusalem Saturday night after a stopover in Damascus "to continue the talks with an attitude of hope."

Shortly before dawn, several hundred demonstrators drove by Kissinger's hotel, shouting anti-American slogans through loudspeakers. Police drove them away.

RIO DE JANEIRO (Reuter) — More than 700 prisoners at Rio de Janiero's Holy Water Prison stormed the toilets early Thursday after prison cooks succeeded in producing the third case of mass diarrhea in a month. Doctors were called to administer injections and pills as the prisoners rushed for the toilets, which they outnumbered 20 to one.

Civil War Bloodies Timor

Times News Services

DARWIN, Australia — Full-scale civil war has broken out in the Portuguese colony of Timor and preparations have been made for the evacuation of Portuguese settlers.

The Lisbon government has admitted that its forces can no longer control the situation and have warned that a "crucial situation" now exists in the colony. Reports received in the other Asian Portguese colony, Macao, Thursday night spoke of mass killings in the Timor countryside and intensified fighting around the capital, Dili.

The governor, Col. Lemos Pires, has warned Lisbon that Portuguese troops now control only a small part of the capital and that widespread military desertions to rival political groups in the colony have taken place.

According to the reports, the pro-Communist supporters of Fretili, one of the waring factions, now have the upper hand and are advancing on Dili and Baucau, the two main cities, which were virtually taken over nine days ago by a coup staged by the rightest Timor Democratic Union (UDT).

In Dili today mortar fire hit the port area where more than 1,000 Portuguese refugees are awaiting evacuation, Portugal's state radio said.

The Dili naval communications centre — the only link with the outside world for Pires — also has been hit by mortar fire, the radio said. One sergeant guarding the centre was wounded.

A Macao government statement said today that at least five persons had been killed and more than 30 wounded in bitter clashes between rival political groups in Dili Thursday.

There was "very intense" gunfire during the battle and

Man Found Stabbed

VANCOUVER (CP) — A man believed in his 70s was found fatally stabbed Thursday in his downtown hotel room. Police say robbery was probably the motive for the killing. The man's name was withheld.

Tremor Hits Alaska

PALMER, Alaska (UPI) — A moderate earthquake rocked the Kenai Peninsula of Alaska Thursday, shaking residents from Homer to Anchorage. No damage or injuries were reported.

8,000 to Strike?

MONTREAL (CP) — Within the next few weeks 8,000 Quebec pulp and paper workers may be on strike, a spokesman for the Canadian Paperworkers' Union said today. About 16,000 workers now are on strike in British Columbia and Ontario.

Communism in Class?

LONDON (Reuter)—A government - backed foundation has recommended that communism be taught in British schools as part of a syllabus to replace religious education. The National Foundation for Educational Research said in a report that schools should continue to teach religion, but not concentrate solely on Christianity.

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Railway has placed an embargo on perishable goods, livestock and explosives after strike notice was served by two unions.

Spokesman Hugh Armstrong said the unions, two locals of the United Transportation Union, representing trainmen, and a local of the Canadian Union of Transportation Employees, representing enginemen, served notice Tuesday.

The embargo accounts for less than one per cent of normal traffic, he said.

The unions are asking for a total of 250 per cent over one year while the company is offering 23.5 per cent over two years.

The 250 per cent includes 107 per cent increase in wages and the rest in fringe benefits, according to Armstrong.

Glen Bowles, UTU representative said the 72-hour strike notice against the railway expires today, but the unions cannot take action until mediator Clark Gilmour completes his report.

Bowles said the 250 per cent figure came from a meeting some time ago at which the company asked for the union's hourly wage expectations.

He said the union did not consider the company was serious and said they wanted $14.02 an hour, which would work out to 250 per cent.

"However, we made it quite clear all along we were serious and would name a figure when they were prepared to be serious," he said.

Bowles said the problem came up because the union wants to switch from a mileage rate to an hourly rate.

FISHERMEN ACCEPT

VANCOUVER (CP) — Salmon ffishermen, casting their fourth ballots since they went on strike July 25, Thursday accepted a new contract with the Fisheries Association of British Columbia.

"I don't think any of the fishermen are happy about the kind of contract terms," Homer Stevens, United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union president, said in announcing the 3,800 fishermen had voted 58.9 per cent for the one-year contract.

The fishermen, who will resume fishing at 6 p.m., Sunday, have also missed on much of the season for sockeye, the tasty, red salmon most sought by consumers.

"This has been a very tragic year and I'm not sure it was necessary," said Jerry Spitz, fishing association president.

The association offer will increase the price of sockeye to 62 cents a pound from 52 cents, pinks to 24 cents from 22, chums to 30 from 24 to 27 cents and large red springs to 68 cents from 65 cents.

Last Gasp for Quit

The Victoria office of the Quit Centre for the Control of Smoking has folded under mysterious circumstances, Victoria Better Business Bureau official Bill Tindall said today.

Tindall said about 400 Victorians have pre-paid for service they now apparently will not receive. Customers up-Island at Nanaimo and Courtenay are also affected.

Tindall said the Quit Centre only one month ago raised its fee to $460 per year from $365 and now has closed, leaving back salaries owing to staff members.

He urged any customers affected by this closure to contact his office.

He said the closure was part of a pattern across the province of travel agencies and health clubs closing in advance of legislation to control pre-paid merchandising schemes.

He said the provincial government has delayed implementation of this legislation until fall, a move he called "very unfortunate."

It appears that customers of the Quit Centre are entitled to a refund of their fees and the Better Business Bureau will attempt to investigate this possibility.

The Vancouver office of the Quit Centre has also closed its doors.

Argentine Frigate Blasted

Times News Services

LA PLATA — Leftist terrorists set off an explosive charge early today inside an Argentine navy missile frigate being built in La Plata, causing damage but no casualties, the navy said.

The navy at first reported erroneously that the charge blew up the ship and sank it, but later said "the ship showed some damage which did not endanger the vessel."

Other sources, however, said the damage was considerable, and that a three-inch-wide split was left in the hull.

The attack came on the third anniversary of the deaths of 16 guerrilllas at a navy base in the Patagonia town of Trelew and security forced were placed on full alert expecting violence.

The frigate, the Santisima Trinidad, was rocked by the explosion at 3 a.m. at the Rio Santiago shipyard, 25 miles south of Buenos Aires.

The navy said an underwater demolition charge went off in the engine room.

The guerrillas abandoned a second explosive charge outside the shipyard, apparently due to a defect in the device, the sources said.

Corrine Gets $100,000 . . . Not $1.1 Million

By ROGER STONEBANKS
Times Staff

Corrine Lissell, a 19-year-old Courtenay girl paralyzed in a traffic accident three years ago, should have received $1,100,000 compensation.

But, her family has learned, all that is available is $100,000 — the minimum liability insurance held by two men found at fault by a B.C. Supreme Court jury last March.

Corrine has received one $50,000 cheque and was cashing the other in Courtenay today.

The supreme court jury awarded her $1,100,000 general damages, believed to be the second highest personal damage award in the Commonwealth. The highest is believed to be 1.5 million for Gary Thornton, 19, of Prince George for paralysis he suffered when he broke his neck in a school gymnasium.

Corrine's father, Robert Lissell, manager of the Courtenay Legion, said today "what is available and what is ordered are two different things. There is just no way to get blood out of a stone."

Corrine was paralyzed from the waist down and in her left arm after the motorcycle on which she was a passenger collided with a left-turning car June 13, 1972, on the road between Courtenay and Comox. She was 15.

The jury found negligence on the part of both the motorcyclist, Randy David Cox, now a 23-year-old sawmill worker in Williams Lake, and car driver Henry Paul, now a 39-year-old logger living near Alert Bay. Cox was assessed 95 per cent at fault and Paul 5 per cent.

Both persons, Lissell said, turned out to have held only the minimum $50,000 liability insurance.

Asked if he felt bitter that his daughter would receive only a fraction of the jury's award, Lissell said "I don't think so. Things have happened this way. I would have liked to see ser get more. It is still very poor consolation for her."

Lissell doubted he would be pressing the two men for the remaining $1 million. "They are just working men, the same as you and I," he said.

One result of the award was his decision to increase his liability insurance to $1 million from $200,000 "and I have talked to others who have done the same."

Corrine, confined to a wheelchair and not expected to recover from her paralysis, attended the three-day B.C. Supreme Court trial of her damage action in Victoria last March. She was represented by Victoria lawyer Rodney Taylor.

Moderate Gains At Toronto

Prices at Toronto continued to climb moderately higher in light mid-afternoon trading today.

Volume by 2 p.m. shrank to 772,000 shares from 924,000 at the same time Thursday.

Advances outnumbered declines 158 to 119 with 197 issues unchanged.

Lacroix Inc. rose 2 to 18, Alberta Natural Gas 1½ to $23, Occidental Pete ¾ to $18¼, Peoples Department Stores ⅝ to $5⅞ and Federal Pioneer A ⅝ to $22¼.

Simpsons, which reported lower net earnings for the first half of the fiscal year, fell ⅝ to $8⅜, Westburne International ⅜ to $9¼, Imperial Oil A ¼ to $24⅜ and Canadian Industries ⅛ to $21⅛.

Cyprus Anvil was up ¼ to $9, Sherritt Gordon A ⅛ to $7¼ and Cassiar Asbestos ⅛ to $7⅛.

Camflo lost ¼ to $12⅝ and Canada Tungsten 15 cents to $3.10.

Pan Ocean rose ⅜ to $10⅝, Numac ⅝ to $10½ and Pan-Canadian Pete ¼ to $15⅝.

New York

The market put together a broad gain today in bargain hunting stimulated by hopes for a break in the recent rise of interest rates.

Gainers outpaced losers by about a 2-to-1 margin in light trading at New York.

Brokers noted a favorable response to the substantial drop in the United State's money supply shown in weekly statistics issued by the Federal Reserve Board after Thursday's close.

The decline gave rise to hopes that the Fed, in its anti-inflation efforts, would not need to take more credit-tightening steps of the kind that contributed to the rise of interest rates this summer.

Another evident plus was the decision by New ork's First National City Bank to hold its prime lending rate for the coming week.

There had been talk that Citibank, a frequent trendsetter on the prime, might raise the key rate on corporate loans to eight per cent.

Travelers Corp. was the NYSE volume leader, up ⅛ at $22¼. A 211,800-share block traded at $22.

Among the big-name growth stocks, IBM was up 2¼ at $179¾, Eastman Kodak 1⅝ at $89, Proctor and Gamble 1⅝ at $85⅝ and Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing 1 at $53.

London

The London market recorded a moderate advance in light trading today.

The Financial Times index gained 9.4 to 313.9 in mid-session trading.

Canadian issues were fractionally lower in quiet activity.

The Frail Connection

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

Somehow, somewhere, there must have been a tenuous link between the hovel dwellers and homeless wretches of the world, and Ottawa bureaucrats drawing blackboard flow-charts and ladders of responsibility during a crab salad luncheon at the Empress Hotel.

It was just that the reporters present, senses perhaps dulled by a couple of drinks, couldn't quite see the connection . ... or indeed the whole point of the exercise.

★ ★ ★

Purpose of Thursday's luncheon news conference, according to the invitation from a Vancouver public relations firm, was to meet Mr. Luc Sicotte, a gentleman with the imposing, breath-exhausting title of "Director of Communications, Canadian Participation Secretariat, Habitat: United Nations Conference on Human Settlements, Ministry of State for Urban Affairs, Ottawa."

Vancouver is hosting the U.N. conference from May 31 to June 11 next year. Habitat's aim, explains one of Sicotte's press releases, is to "draw together delegates from some 140 U.N. member countries to join in a commitment to improve the quality of their human settlements and exchange information on solutions to settlement problems."

But less time was spent Thursday in discussing the conference itself than in long-winded explanations of the multi-tiered administrative structure which is organizing the event.

There's a host secretariat under the department of external affairs, a participation secretariat under the ministry of urban affairs, an inter-departmental task force, a federal-provincial preparatory committee, a Canadian National Committee . . .

Sicotte and his cohorts drew more and more helpful boxes and chains of command and interconnecting arrows, and the reporters grew more and more confused.

But at least we were assured by public relations co-ordinator Joffre Dechene that Habitat's expected 5,000 delegates will be doing something useful, and the conference itself will have real significance in relation to urban growth, pollution and similar world problems.

"It's going to be a solution-oriented conference rather than a debating society," said Dechene.

A slightly less optimistic forecast, though, came from Dr. Hugh Keenleyside, former co-chairman of B.C. Hydro who is honorary chairman of the Canadian National Committee for Habitat.

In reply to a reporter's question, Keenleyside admitted that international conferences on food, poverty and so on haven't produced any major solutions to world problems, and said any hopes for "sensible, sane" results are always dim.

But then he qualified that by saying: "To the extent that we as human beings are capable of making a serious attempt to solve our problems, I believe these conferences have enlivened the interest that has been taken in the problems and have made at least a start in proposing solutions, or semi-solutions, to many of them."

Sicotte said Ottawa wants Canadians to participate in the planning for Habitat, and to this end a series of 30 public meetings will be held across the country starting next month to discuss various Canadian settlement problems.

The touring Canadian National Committee will hear briefs presented at these meetings, and on the basis of the views represented will report to Urban Affairs Minister Barney Danson, "to ensure that public opinion is reflected in Canada's stand at the Vancouver conference."

The theme for sessions in Victoria Nov. 28 and 29 will be "appropriate use of land."

SEATIME OVER for this trip, PO Smith, at left, and PO Topping are reunited with their two sons, who spent most of the three-week cruise carrying out regular duties with the rest of the crew. The boys now have a healthy respect for navy life but have no plans to sign on in the near future.

Work Afloat Hard—Teens

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

Battle stations will sound when David Topping, 14, and R. Dawson Smith, 15, hear anybody knock the navy.

The two teen-agers returned today after three weeks afloat in one of Her Majesty's ships.

They were part of a group of dependants who shipped out Aug. 5 from Esquimalt aboard the destroyers HMCS Mackenzie, Saskatchewan and Qu'Appelle.

David is the son of PO G. W. Topping and Mrs. Topping of 1298 Derby. Dawson's parents are PO K. R. Smith and Mrs. Smith of 487 Fraser.

Object of the exercise — to give boys an idea of what Dad does in his working hours.

"It's hard work," Dawson said of his dad's duties.

What does he do?

"He's a storesman," Dawson reports. Asked what that entails, he replied, "He looks after food, chocolate bars and other things.

David's father is "buffer" aboard the Qu'Appelle and his son says his father's job of making sure the decks are shipshape at all times is time-consuing.

The boys, like others in the three ships, saw little of their fathers, eating with the men they worked with, standing regular watches.

The only concession to parental ties was that the dependants were bunked in the same messes as their fathers.

David says the most important thing he learned was "how to get along with other guys" in close quarters. "The navy's hard work," said Dawson.

What do they remember most?

David says it was the storm the ships faced all the way from San Diego.

Dawson says, "Disneyland."

If an object of the exercise was to recruit future sailors the navy may have missed its target.

Dawson says he plans to be a conservation officer and David, remembering the storm, is noncommittal.

Study Puts $2M Tag On Janitors' Strike

Victoria Times
FRIDAY, AUGUST 22, 1975 17
SECOND SECTION

The six-week strike of Victoria school janitors this spring cost the public roughly $2 million, according to a study done this summer by University of Victoria students.

The five students, two of whom quit mid-way through the project, were paid by the labor department's Professions for Tomorrow program to study the social cost and political implications of strikes affecting Victoria schools.

The teachers' wages are a social cost because the public wasn't getting full value for their money during the strike, as children were only at school a few hours a day, Walton said in an interview Thursday.

The loss of six weeks' wages to the striking janitors and locked-out clerical staff is a social cost because employees not getting paid are not spending money in the community, and businesses suffer, he said.

The 278 janitors, members of Local 382 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, went on strike Feb. 24 against Greater Victoria school board, and the 345 clerical workers, CUPE Local 947, honored the picket lines and stayed off work.

Main political cost of the strike was that CUPE's bargaining power has been lessened by the strong public reaction against the strike, said Walton.

Main recommendation of the students' report is that school board non-teaching staff be withdrawn from CUPE, and that compulsory arbitration be introduced.

Surprises Hidden In Nooks and Ivy

Probing behind foot-thick ivy and exploring the nooks and crannies of the old Crystal Garden building is an experience as full of surprises as an archaeological dig, city engineer John Sansom said today.

He was commenting on the detailed study of the building which architects Wagg and Hambleton are preparing for Victoria city council, in readiness for the Crystal's $1.5 million restoration as an arboretum and aviary attraction.

Sansom said probably the biggest surprise of all since the structural and mechanical engineers began their study about a month ago is the discovery that, in many respects, the 50-year-old swimming pool and entertainment centre was not built according to the original plans and drawings in the city's possession.

"We find we have far more room than we thought we had," he added. "The combination of things you can do with the building is really quite exciting."

Some of the departures from the plans came to light when the experts were crawling around in the dark recesse sof the southern end of the structure, where the Wax Museum was formerly located.

SANSOM
. . . prospects 'exciting'

And there were more surprises when the dense ivy scaling the walls — less than an inch of new growth covering dead encrustations 12 inches thick — was stripped off recently.

Where the plans merely indicated the presence of "windows," Sansom said the uncovering process revealed "tremendous floor to ceiling windows."

"We were also pleasantly surprised to find that the building was not in as bad shape as we expected," he said.

On the negative side, a "slight settling" of the building's foundations has been noted in one corner, but to date the extent of this isn't known.

What is known, though, is that the cost of repairing the massive glass roof will be "relatively high," said the engineer.

Council set aside $30,000 for the technical study, design and preparation of cost estimates. Sansom said a "positive proposal," including a number of options and alternatives, should be ready for council's Crystal Garden committee by Nov. 15.

Meanwhile, city manager Jim Bramley said names will be selected for the appointment of a special citizens' committee which will be charged with raising funds for the renovation project.

Trusts, foundations and individuals will be asked to contribute to the capital costs, and the city hopes to obtain the maximum $333,333 grant available under the province's community recreational facilities fund.

Earleir, Ald. Sam Bawlf said he expected construction could start early next year, for completion in late 1976.

Increase of 300% In Housing Starts

The Greater Victoria area had 541 housing starts in July, up sharply from 168 the previous July, the local office of central Mortgage and Housing Corporation said today.

The increase of more than 300 per cent is the result of an increasing optimism after a rather slow year, said Ray Pitt, assistant manager of the CMHC office.

The boom is across the board in all categories. There were 255 single family homes started along with 228 apartment units and 58 duplexes and row housing units.

There were 150 starts in Victoria City, all apartment units, the single family homes are mainly being constructed in Saanich and the west country. There were 80 single family homes started in Saanich in July and 143 units in the View royal, Colwood, Metchosin, Langford area.

As well as 80 single family homes, Saanich started 40 apartment units, 36 rowhouses and four duplexes. There were 38 apartment units started in July in Esquimalt plus four duplexes and one single family home. Oak Bay, with little available land, recorded only one single family home start during the month.

Pitt said the July surge would help to remove the gloom from the local construction picture. At the end of June the 1975 performance was 499 starts behind the previous year.

At the end of July, however, the gap had been narrowed to 126.

Total starts, after seven months was 1,687, compared with 1,813 at the same time last year. Construction this year was hampered by the municipal strike-lockout.

Across B.C. housing starts rose 56 per cent in July for a total of 3,409 units. In urban areas most of the starts have been apartment units.

In Victoria a loan of about $1 million and grant of $143,593 have been announced by Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation for a housing complex by the Wildnerness Park Co-Operative Housing Association.

The complex will consist of 30 row housing units and eight apartment units on land leased from the provincial government at Summit and Jackson in Victoria.

The loan is provided under the National Housing Act and is for a term of 40 years at eight percent.

Q. How long has Franco been the top man in Spain? — R.U.

A. Fransisco Franco became dictator in 1936, shorily after the Spanish Civil War began. He led the Nationalist Army to victory over the Loyalist (Republican) forces, and adopted the title El Caudillo (the leader).

Baggage Trip Costly

A 29-year-old woman moving back to Canada from the U.S. lost the wherewithal to start a new life here—her purse containing $500 cash.

Pat Sandor arrived in Victoria by car Thursday and visited relatives gathered for her sister's wedding Saturday before driving to her father's apartment at 1243 Bay at about 3 a.m.

Mrs. Sandor told city police that while taking some luggage into the apartment she put down her purse to unlock the front door and then forgot to pick it up again. At 8 a.m. today she realized it was missing, rushed downstairs but it was gone.

The purse, a brown leather handbag, contained her driver's licence, personal papers, credit cards and all the savings she had withdrawn from her bank in Salinas, California.

Victoria police said there was little they could do but the situation wasn't hopeless.

"It just depends on who got hold of it," an officer said. "I told her not to lose faith. I had a purse containing about $500 turned into me the other day by an elderly man. The woman who lost it had only reported it missing to Saanich police an hour earlier."

Uncaptained Now, the Rafts of Summer

PRIMITIVE man on his first marine adventure is splashing his way along the home beach shallows. He is belly-down on a conveniently broad-backed drift slab, a leg hung over each side and hands paddling furiously. At the age of four, he has discovered the basic boat.

Give him a year or two and the little boy on the tippy cedar chunk will carry his seafaring a step farther. He will borrow his dad's hammer, probably without permission, round up some nails and old rope, and achieve a raft.

It will be wobbly and ill-carpentered, the nails bent over and its two or three mismatched logs inclined to part company with their cross-pieces. Its buoyancy will be marginal, its paddle a length of beachcombed driftwood. But it will be a source of pride and a bringer of joy until some night tide steals it away.

The raft-builders were busy all through warm July. In this lag-end of summer, the beach is emptier and quieter. Most of the rafts that we happen upon are uncaptained derelicts.

They lie festooned with seaweed where a mid-August blow deposited them, there to remain until the first rampaging autumn southeaster assaults our shoreline.

Some of the rafts display evidence of adult planning and execution. But most are the sort that kids make for themselves with infinite toil while time stands still in a summer that will go on forever.

It doesn't, of course, except in memory.

We came on a raft the other day and that set me grinning. With its three skinny logs of random length, it could have been the very raft I wacked together on another beach long ago.

For all of a blissful week, it the waters. It inspired false confidence and encouraged rashness.

Then one day, in water deeper than I was supposed to navigate, its components quietly separated from each other. Even in dissolution, it was faithful to any craft's prime duty, which is not merely to take its master out, but to bring him back. I kicked my way ashore clinging to the wreckage, with ears perked for parental bellowings.

Perhaps one shouldn't waste love on inanimate objects. Even so, I loved that raft, and remembered it fondly when our own children came to their raft-building summers.

Naturally, they left my hammer to rust on the beach, paddled too far out, and got bellowed at from shore. They also came away from their summers that couldn't end with memories they haven't lost.

"Remember that raft you built?" Win asked our son Ron, a well-seasoned teacher up for a visit. "The one we called 'The Floating Outhouse'?"

Ron smiled. "I'll never forget it. We worked on it for weeks."

Spikes by the pound and nails by the fistful went into the building of that raft. Some of its logs took a day to lever and heave from their resting-places above the driftline. Its deck was planked, and the fathers of the builders didn't inquire too closely where those planks came from.

The feature that distinguished it from lesser, hastier rafts was a foursquare cabin with slant roof that rose from its midships. It was the cabin that earned The Floating Outhouse its name.

To the best of my knowledge, its cruises were limited to its home cove. Within those confines, it was dived from supported me on the face of and fished from, paddled and poled for a succession of golden days. Among the rafts of summer it was surpassed only by a stately pleasure dome that trundled about Cadboro Bay — a super-raft professionally built for a rich boy at a reputed cost of $100.

The crew of The Floating Outhouse admired that other raft, but didn't covet it. Nor did they mourn their own flagship when the inevitable happened and it went adrift to be seen no more. That's the fate of rafts. Anyway, summer was ending.

It's that way here and now. The little boy on the cedar slab has trotted off home with his brother. The beach is left to the gulls and the fishing herons.

Still, the thing about summer is that it returns. The rafts of next year will be just as labored over, every bit as prized and no less expendable than those of the fleet that served this season.

Moderate Gains At Toronto

Prices at Toronto continued to climb moderately higher in light mid-afternoon trading today.

Volume by 2 p.m. shrank to 772,000 shares from 924,000 at the same time Thursday.

Advances outnumbered declines 158 to 119 with 197 issues unchanged.

Lacroix Inc. rose 2 to 18 ,Alberta Natural Gas 1½ to $23, Occidental Pete ¾ to $18¼, Peoples Department Stores ⅝ to $37⅜ and Federal Pioneer A ⅝ to $22¼.

Simpsons, which reported lower net earnings for the first half of the fiscal year, fell ⅝ to $8⅜, Westburne International ⅜ to $9¼, Imperial Oil A ¼ to $24¾ and Canadian Industries ⅛ to $21⅛.

Cyprus Anvil was up ¼ to $9, Sherritt Gordon A ⅛ to $7¼ and Cassiar Asbestos ⅛ to $7⅛.

Camflo lost ¼ to $12⅝ and Canada Tungsten 15 cents to $3.10.

Pan Ocean rose ⅜ to $10⅜, Numac ⅜ to $10½ and Pan-Canadian Pete ¼ to $15⅜.

New York

The market put together a broad gain today in bargain hunting stimulated by hopes for a break in the recent rise of interest rates.

Gainers outpaced losers by about a 2-to-1 margin in light trading at New York.

Brokers noted a favorable response to the substantial drop in the United State's money supply shown in weekly statistics issued by the Federal Reserve Board after Thursday's close.

The decline gave rise to hopes that the Fed, in its anti-inflation efforts, would not need to take more credit-tightening steps of the kind that contributed to the rise of interest rates this summer.

Another evident plus was the decision by New ork's First National City Bank to hold its prime lending rate for the coming week.

There had been talk that Citibank, a frequent trendsetter on the prime, might raise the key rate on corporate loans to eight per cent.

Travelers Corp. was the NYSE volume leader, up ½ at $22⅛. A 211,800-share block traded at $22.

Among the big-name growth stocks, IBM was up 2¼ at $179¾, Eastman Kodak 1⅝ at $89, Proctor and Gamble 1⅝ at $83⅝ and Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing 1 at $53.

London

The London market recorded a moderate advance in light trading today.

The Financial Times index gained 9.4 to 313.9 in mid-session trading.

Canadian issues were fractionally lower in quiet activity.

Back-to-Work Law Opposed

VANCOUVER (CP) — Any attempt by the government to legislate B.C. forest industry workers back to work will be opposed, Len Guy the secretary-treasurer of the B.C. Federation of Labor, said Thursday.

Guy said in an interview the International Woodworkers of America and the two pulp unions oppose any use of legislation to end the dispute and the federation supports their position.

Asked if the federation would refuse to comply with back-to-work legislation if it were enacted, Guy said: "You can make your own conclusions. We would take whatever action was necessary to oppose such legislation.

But Labor Minister Bill King said in an interview the government "would have to let collective bargaining take its course."

Guy's statement followed separate announcements by Forest Industrial Relations and the Pulp, Paper and Woodworkers of Canada and the Canadian Paperworkers Union.

FIR president Don Lanskail said the 140 coastal companies in the management group reluctantly accepted a non-binding report by Mr. Justice Henry Hutcheon of the B.C. Supreme Court.

The two pulp unions, after a meeting with labor federation officers, said they would not increase picketing at forest industry sites until the larger IAW membership has completed voting on the report, probably by Tuesday.

The report proposes a two-year contract that would increase base rates of $5.10 an hour by a $1.55 and cost-of-living adjustments.

The IWA negotiating committee has recommended its members accept the contract, although many local executives have recommended rejection.

Pulp unions members have rejected the proposal, as their executives asked.

$10,650 GRANT TO START COLLEGE OF GENETICISTS

VANCOUVER (CP) — James Miller, head of the medical genetics department at the University of British Columbia, has been awarded a $10,650 grant from the Hospital for Sick Children Foundation in Toronto to help start the Canadian College of Medical Geneticists.

The college hopes to be the sole accrediting agent for genetic counsellors, doctors and people on matters such as hereditary birth defects.

VANCOUVER (CP) — John Sexton, B.C. Hydro information officer, said Wednesday the company will resume spraying herbicides in the Squamish-Lillooet area because complaints were untrue that the spraying was dangerous.

He said Resources Minister Bob Williams approved the spraying, halted after complaints it was polluting spawning grounds of the Birkenhead River and was a possible hazard to people picking berries along the powerline right-of-way.

VANCOUVER (CP) — George Arnold Armstrong, a city lawyer and former chairman of the International Hydrodynamics Company Ltd., will stand trial March 15, charged with wilfully evading payment of income tax.

He is charged with evading taxes on an income of $576,815 earned between Dec. 31, 1965 and May 1, 1969.

He was released on his own recognizance awaiting trial.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Four members of the Kitsilano Community Resources Board resigned Thursday because, in the words of board chairman Jacques Khouri, "No programs (within the human resources department) existed to solve the specific problems caused by redevelopment."

WHITE SPOT WORKERS SETTLE

VANCOUVER (CP) — White Spot workers voted 84 per cent Thursday to accept a company contract offer and should be back on the job by the weekend.

Thomas McGrory, secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Food and Associated Services Union, said the 1,400 workers will receive an immediate 50-cent-an-hour increase and another 40 cents more in 11 months on an old base rate of $2.80 an hour.

He said other fringe benefits in the contract make it the best ever offered by White Spot.

The union has been on strike since Aug. 12.

Jet Forced To Return

VANCOUVER (CP) — An Air Canada Boeing 747 jet taking off Thursday for London, England, was forced to return by fire in one of its four engines.

An airline spokesman said the plane's crew heard a series of bangs as the jet was taking off and the control tower told them the engine was on fire.

The plane completed its takeoff, circled and then made an emergency landing with the engine shut down, said the spokesman.

He said about 275 passengers were flown out later on another airplane.

Writer Raps Nuclear Waste

CALDER
. . . 'terrible poison'

VANCOUVER (UPI) — Leading British science writer and broadcaster Lord Ritchie Calder lashed out at nuclear power development Thursday for producing growing amounts of plutonium—"the most terrible poison among all substances of practical importance to man."

He warned that the United States alone would produce 500 tons of plutonium a year, corresponding to 100,000 Hiroshima-size atomic bombs, under official projections of fission power capacity by the year 2000.

"No means are known to science, or likely to be found, by which plutonium lodged in the body can ever be removed," he said.

"(Also) there are other dangerous fission products remaining as waste from power reactors."

Calder called for greater development of other sources of energy including the sun, ocean trides, geothermal power and the conversion of domestic and agricultural waste to fuel.

He told a Pacific Science Congress attended by delegates from 44 countries that scientists who once sought to promote peaceful uses of nuclear energy are now opposed to the spread of nuclear reactors.

"With thousands of megaton warheads already in military arsenals, they contemplate with misgiving the operational risks but even more the accumulation of dangerous radioactive wastes which is inevitable in the fission process," he said.

Calder also warned that the world was warming up, with possible severe economic consequences, because of a "greenhouse effect" as factories and automobiles pump more carbon dioxide into the atmosphere.

He stimated that 360 billion tons of fossil carbon in excess of natural amounts has been released into the atmosphere in the past 100 years. The carbon dioxide content of the atmosphere has increased 17 per cent since 1900.

Heyerdahl Theories Deplored

VANCOUVER (CP) — A group of scientists at the 13th Pacific Science Congress don't like Thor Heyerdahl's theories on how Polynesia was settled.

After hearing the Norwegian explorer Wednesday, a group headed by Peter White, an Australian archeologist, sent a letter to the president of the organization, Dr. Ian McTaggart Cowan deploring that "the good name of science was prostituted."

Heyerdahl had said Polynesia was populated by Asians who travelled across the Pacific in primitive craft, using prevalent currents and winds to go to the Aleutians and Queen Charlotte Islands off Alaska and B.C.

He said they then went south to Hawaii and Polynesia.

Heyerdahl said the Haida Indians of the Queen Charlottes are of the same stock as native Polynesians.

Before the Judge

An exchange between Judge Fred Green and a defendant in Victoria provincial court Thursday sounded more like a marriage counselling session than a court proceeding.

"I can't think of a worse way to start off married life, Mr. Bannister," Green said.

"I was married before. I blew that one and I don't want to blow this one," Russell Irving Bannister replied.

Bannister, 26, of 3929 Glanford, pleaded guilty to passing a worthless cheque and stealing from a gas station to pay for his honeymoon.

Bannister was employed at Carey Home Service, 3896 Carey Rd., until his marriage Aug. 16, and the day before cashed a worthless cheque there for $150.

He stole anothr $54.50 cash from the station Aug. 17.

Prosecutor Peter Birkett said the accused had said he needed the money for his honeymoon.

Green remanded the accused to Sept. 10 for a presentence report and released him on his own recognizance in the sum of $500.

A man who pleaded guilty to making false unemployment insurance claims was fined $350 and ordered to repay $118 to the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

Peter Highfield, of 232 Superior was charged April 12 after he claimed he had not worked, but was employed.

Green said a jail sentence would have been included if Highfield was not waiting to re-enter the armed forces..

"You seem determined to come to Canada even if it gives you nothing but trouble," Green told 18-year-old John Bartly Power of Detroit who pleaded guilty to contravening Canadian Immigration law.

He was sentenced to five days in prison concurrent with a sentence he is serving at Wilkinson Road.

Deported Feb. 14, he re-entered illegally at Windsor, Ont., on July 25 and came to Victoria.

He was convicted of obtaining food and lodging by fraud here July 31 and sentenced to 30 days.

He told the judge he was heading to California and found it cheaper to travel through Canada.

A yiuth who broke a Sidney bank window with a "kung fu" kick Aug. 8 pleaded guilty to causing the $108.32 damage and was remanded to today for a probation officer's report.

Terry Allan, 17, of Sidney, admitted he drank 16 or 17 glasses of beer before the incident at the Bank of Montreal, 2461 Beacon, said Prosecutor Birkett.

Two youths were fined $50 each for causing a disturbance by fighting in a Victoria gas station about 3:30 a.m. July 17.

"A fine pair you are. You're both a couple of chumps. I don't want to see you in this courtroom again for this kind of stupidity," said Judge Green.

Michael James O'Hanlon, 23, of 1639 Hampshire Rd. and Donald Allan Kerr, 21, of 6243 Durban Rd., Sooke, were found fighting after police had suspended their driving privileges for a day and left them at a Tillicum and Trans-Canada Highway service station to get home.

Gary Norman Brunt, 31, of 1201 Verdier in Brentwood, received 14 days in jail after pleading guilty to impaired driving July 25.

Judge Edmond St. Jorre sentenced Brunt who was picked up after drinking a bottle of wine.

Brunt had previously been convicted for impaired driving.

St. Jorre also gave $350 fines for impaired driving to Jody Harry Walker, 19, of 2729 Spencer Rd.; William Michael Newsome, 20, of 2839 Gosworth St.; and Archibald Stewart, 29, of 1615 Belmont Ave.

Joseph Oliva Dupuis, 64, of 1666 Derby Rd., was fined $250 for driving with a blood alcohol level over .08 per cent.

Super Fishing Forecast Yields Pleasant Puzzle

Salmon fishermen around Vancouver Island will have a tough time deciding where to drop a line whis weekend — returns are great just about everywhere.

Chinooks averaging 20 pounds and tipping the scales to 39 pounds are being caught on plug-cut herring trolled in 30 feet of water near Owen Point at Port Renfrew.

Red-hot catches were reported from Secretary Island waters beginning Saturday and two boats came back to Sooke Harbour with over 100 pounds of fish each on Sunday.

Ron Dumont nailed a 35½ pound chinook Sunday to top fishermen working the area but Randy Musfelt came close with a 34-pounder on Monday. Musfelt also caught a 22¾-pounder the same day.

Coho to 10½ pounds, numerous pinks and a few sockeye round out the catch with everything coming in on anchovies, minnows or red hootchies trolled with four to six ounces of weight.

"Wild" was the word to describe fishing off Becher Bay, where fishermen have been landing chinooks up to the 33½-pounder taken by Phil Hale earlier this week, pinks to 11 pounds, coho to 15 pounds and sockeye to eight pounds.

Strip, minnows and red hootchies are working best when fished from 20 to 60 feet in depth.

★ ★ ★

Killer whales moved through the Becher Bay area Wednesday afternoon and slowed the action down a little. But, barring another visit, the weekend outlook is excellent.

Much the same type of catch was noted in Pedder Bay by fishing fairly deep with strip or anchovies for the chinooks. Minnows, red hootchies and spoons are being used for the coho, pinks and sockeye. Best spots have been the kelp bed and Bentinck Island.

Small chinooks, with the odd one reaching 30 pounds, form the main return off the Victoria waterfront in the vicinity of Brotchie Ledge and Saxe Point.

Deep waters off Trial Island are yielding chinooks to 20 pounds along with a few coho and numerous ling cod nearing the 25 pound mark.

Chinooks to 15 pounds and coho up to seven pounds are providing ever-better catches off Moses Point and Wain Rock. Strip and minnows have been the best trolling gear and some good success was reported by fishermen casting buzz bombs and stingsildas.

★ ★ ★

Ross Halling topped Saanich Inlet fishermen wit a 32 pound chinook taken Wednesday in Coles Bay but most of the chinooks in the middle part of the Inlet are averaging three or four pounds. Bamberton waters are also producing with strip or small spoons and deep lines are the order of the day.

Success has dropped off slightly in Finlayson Arm but some nice chinooks, up to the 30-pounder boated by Bob Caldwell in Misery Bay earlier this week, have been coming in along with the odd coho.

Further up-Island, moochers are picking up chinooks ranging from four to 30 pounds along Bold Bluff, Skinner Point and Separation Point. Coho up to seven pounds are grabbing deep lines around Tent, Thetis and Kuper Islands.

Norm Coughtry of Nanaimo has enjoyed a rather successful run of luck in the past two weeks, landing a total of 47 salmon weighing up to 31 pounds around Jack's Point, Piper's Lagoon and the Fingers.

A few coho nearing the 10 pound mark have also been landed on deep lines in the latter area.

"Spotty" was the word from Port Alberni, although a few tyee are biting near Kirby point, Swale Rock and Franklin River.

Coho fishing dropped off at Bates Beach on Sunday but Times staffer Ernie Fedoruk managed to catch the largest of the few chinooks taken this week near the same spot—a nice 23-pounder.

In contrast, fishing for coho to 13 pounds has turned "red-hot" just about everywhere in Discovery Passage—with all terminal gear seeming to work equally well any depths.

A fair number of pinks are also showing and the odd tyee from 30 to 50 pounds is providing a little excitement in Frenchman's Pool and the mouth of the Campbell River. The usual plugs and large spoons are taking a majority of these over-sized chinooks.

Darkness Interrupts Playdowns

Darkness forced a halt to the action after five innings Thursday during the second game of the best-of-five Victoria Senior Amateur Baseball League final series between Greaves Movers and Gorge Hotel at Lambrick Park.

Greaves hold a 1-0 lead in the series which continues Sunday. The final innings of Thursday's game will be played beginning at noon and the other games will start at 1 and 3 p.m.

Gorge will have a chance to keep in tune by playing an old-timers squad in an exhibition game at 2 p.m. Saturday, at the same site.

Former players from the past 20 years have indicated they'll play on the old-timers team and the league hopes to make the game an annual affair.

Included among the players are George Heming, Lowell Hodges, John McKeachie, George Brice and Gerry Parker.

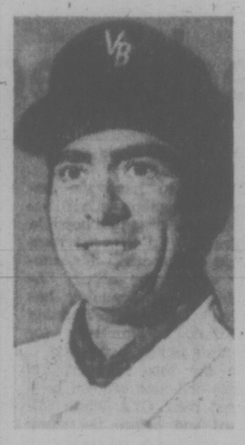
Saanich Ready For Boxla Test

The Saanich midget lacrosse team will leave Sunday for the Canadian national midget championships Aug. 27-31 in Calgary.

Saanich, winner of the B.C. title earlier this month in New Westminster, will compete against 15 other clubs from across the country in the double-knockout tournament.

The other B.C. club in the event will be Burnaby Norburns, 14-10 losers to Saanich in the provincial final.

Have a Good Trip, Bates!



JOE PATTERSON
. . . man in charge

The Canadian senior men's softball final is scheduled Aug. 30, and the world championships will be played in New Zealand next year.

Both remain possible stops for Victoria Bates, but the manager of the British Columbia champions doesn't want to look beyond Sunday.

That's when Bates play their first game in the national tournament at Oshawa. Saskatchewan supplies the opposition, and manager Jack Bell feels the Victoria team must concentrate on its opening prospects.

"The biggest game is the first one. You have to win it," Bell said Thursday as Bates went through their final workout before heading east.

The team leaves for Oshawa on Saturday.

The official Victoria party includes 17 players, coach Joe Patterson, sponsor Herb Bate, trainer Jack Bates, equipment manager John Gallo, statitician Bob Sears and publicist Dave (Bunker) Hill.

Pitcher Stan Kern already is on his way. Not an admirer of aviation, Kern is motoring to Ontario with his wife.

Victoria's other regulars will be joined in Vancouver by pitcher Andy Konopacki and infielder Jim McMillan, the two additions selected by Patterson to bolster the B.C. representatives.

Bell and Patterson both agree that the host Oshawa Tonys, last year's national champions, are the team to beat. Dartmouth Dairy Queen of Nova Scotia and Saskatchewan, the other semi-finalists in 1974 along with Bates, also rate highly.

Ironically, the top four from last year are bracketed in the red section for the preliminary round-robin.

Dartmouth is stronger than last year because the team acquired pitcher Doug Webster from Ontario.

Rounding out the red division will be Newfoundland, Northwest Territories and the Yukon.

Kitchener Evergreens, the Ontario champions, give the host province a second entry. Kitchener lines up in the blue section with Quebec, Alberta, Manitoba, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island.

Bates will face Saskatchewan in the final game Sunday, and will have to come back bright and early the following morning to tackle Newfoundland. Bates then have to play Dartmouth later Monday.

Victoria will play the Northwest Territories on Tuesday and then, in what may be a key game of the round-robin action, faces Oshawa on Wednesday.

The two top teams from each division advance to the final, double-knockout series.

Royal Oak Finally Ends Lengthy Famine

Royal Oak's famine reached an end Thursday and a Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League semi-final series has to continue tonight.

Royal Oak ended a three-week scoring drought with a bang at Central Park by belting Seaboard Construction 10-0 Thursday.

The Cliff Bate-coached Oaks had managed only two runs in 46 innings heading into Thursday's game.

A 14-hit attack, including three each by Terry Hoy and Rick Bate and catcher Bob Gray's five runs-batted-in, indicates Royal Oak's offensive troubles may have ended.

The outpouring of runs made it easy for pitcher Larry Cole, who allowed only three hits to record the shutout.

Victory cut Seaboard's lead in the best-of-five series to 2-1. The fourth game will be played tonight at Central Park and the fifth, if needed, on Saturday.

Should Seaboard win tonight, the league's final series against Ingraham Hotel will open Saturday at 2 p.m. If Royal Oak forces a deciding game, the final will get under way Sunday at 6:30 p.m.

Meanwhile, Stockers North Americans advanced to the final of the Victoria Senior Women's League playoffs by crushing Esquimalt Combos 17-4 in the deciding game of a best-of-three semi-final series at Hyacinth Park.

Stockers and CJVI Vicettes open the final Tuesday at 6:30 p.m.

Mavis Turner and Lorna McHattie drove in two runs each to pace the Stocker attack while Sharon Ferrill picked up the pitching victory by scattering seven hits.

At Heywood Avenue Park, Capital Builders topped London Boxing Club 3-1 to even their best-of-five Heywood Men's League semi-final series, 1-1.

The third game in the other series, between Eagles and Tony's Holdings, is scheduled for 6:30 tonight.

Royal Oak	330	130	0	—	10	14	0
Seaboard	000	000	0	—	0	3	1

Larry Cole and Bob Gray; Barry Wilkin, Phil Berry (1) and Tom Robertson.

Kitchener First To Reach Fours

CALGARY — Kitchener Kieswetters, who won the title here in 1971, became the only team assured of a berth in the Canadian senior women's softball championship during round-robin preliminary play Thursday.

The Ontario representatives defeated Manitoba 10-2 and New Brunswick 7-0 to lead the six-team Red section with a 4-0 record

Vancouver Green and Louie, which has taken the title the past three years, posted its third straight shutout by blanking Newfoundland, 8-0. Vancouver, which has yet to allow a run, is now one victory behind Quebec (4-0) in the seven-team Blue Section.

Following the final 12 games of the round-robin competition today, the top two teams in each section will play a criss-cross, double-loss elimination series for the Canadian title.

BOAT SELECTED

TORONTO (CP) — Marauder, owned by David Howard, has been selected as the boat to represent Canada in next month's Canada's Cup yachting series on Lake St. Clair.

BIG SIX STAYING WITH FIVE

The South Vancouver Island Big Six Hockey League will again be made up of five teams this season.

League-president Ivan Temple announced Thursday that Victoria Buckaroos, London Boxing Club, James Bay Athletic Association Gulls, Lake Cowichan Lakers and Chemainus Blues will compete in the intermedite "A" league when the season opens Oct. 1.

London Boxing Club, the only new team in the league, replaces Stockers North Americans.

An exhibition game between league-champion Lakers and an all-star squad has tentatively been scheduled for Sept. 27 at Cowichan Arena.

Boxers Face Edmonton XI

CALGARY — Victoria London Boxing Club and Edmonton Ital-Canadians will clash tonight in the semi-finals of the Canadian senior soccer championship.

Quebec and Newfoundland meet in the other semi-final on Saturday.

The championship final for the Dominion Challenge Cup and the consolation final will be staged Sunday.

Vikings Seek Rep's Ouster

MANKATO, Minn. (AP) — Minnesota Vikings players voted Thursday night to ask for the resignation of National Football League Players Association (NFLPA) executive director Ed Garvey.

Vikings player representative Ed White issued the following statement:

"We, the members of the Minnesota Vikings, have decided by near-unanimous vote to demand the resignation of Garvey.

"By this action, we will not pay dues to the association, nor will we be under the direction of the association until Garvey resigns.

"We feel that Mr. Garvey's objectives and our objectives are in direct conflict.

"We feel further that the association has been out of the hands of the players and we find that unacceptable.

"This is not to be construed as a rejection of the association, but rather as an attempt to bring the association back to the players."

The Vikings are believed to be the first National Football League team to publicly seek the resignation of Garvey.

Players in the NFL are entering their second season without a contract. A year ago, members of the NFLPA went on strike for several weeks but returned to their teams and played the 1974 season without a new contract agreement with club owners.

Easterner Trips Glen

OTTAWA — Bill Rennieof Cambridge, Ont., defeated Glen Bradshaw of Victoria 6-4, 6-5 in the quarter-finals of the under-18 singles competition in Canadian closed junior tennis championships here Thursday.

Rennie advanced to today's semi-finals with Steve Rogul of Toronto, Richard Nakon of Toronto and top-seeded John Picken of Burnaby.

Lise Senn of Toronto downed Sandy Sutherland of Vancouver 1-6, 7-6, 6-4 in a girls' under-18 singles semi-final match and advanced to Saturday's final against Marjorie Blackwood of Ottawa.

Soviet Naval Spending Said Aggressive Sign

LONDON (UPI) — A leading western naval expert says only one conclusion can be drawn from massive Soviet naval spending—the Kremlin has aggressive intentions.

Capt. John Moore, editor of Jane's Fighting Ships, warned against "emasculation of America's defence" by cuts in the outnumbered U.S. navy.

Moore made his comments in the 1975-76 edition of Jane's, the world's most authoritative guide to navies, warships and naval weaponry.

In the book, published Wednesday, he condemned "the very vocal and sometimes downright dishonest efforts of a number of influential people who see their mission in life as the emasculation of America's defence."

There is no answer to the question of which navy is number one, he said, but the Soviets have spent 50 per cent more than the United States on naval shipbuilding in the past 10 years and are now spending one-third more.

"The ever-growing Soviet navy has outrun the legitimate requirements of national defence and has no logical merchant defence role in time of war," he said.

The naval expert said the North Atlantic Treaty Organization nations "must abide by the lesson of history—unnecessarily large forces are intended for aggressive action."

Jane's said the Soviets outnumber the United States in every kind of naval vessel except aircraft carriers. America has 14 carriers to Russia's three.

The Soviet submarine fleet was put at 120 nuclear and 191 conventionally powered craft, with another 19 nuclear and 77—conventional subs either under construction or in reserve.

U.S. submarine strength was listed at 105 nuclear vessels, with another 28 being built or in reserve and 12 conventional craft, with three under construction or in reserve.

Jane's said the Soviets have 33 cruisers, 106 destroyers and 109 frigates compared with 27, 105 and 65 for the United States.

The French navy is becoming the largest in Western Europe, according to Jane's, and the British navy once the world's mightiest, would be "desperately stretched in the event of a crisis."

It said China has 58 submarines—seven more than a year ago — and has the world's largest fleet of small, fast attack craft. But it said the Chinese navy is primarily a defensive one.

THE HAPPY HOUR ISN'T GOOD FOR YOU: STUDY

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — People who like to wind down from a hard day's work with a cocktail or two might find more relaxation in physical exercise, a University of Maryland study shows.

Alcohol may appear to relieve physical tension but its effect is only mental, report associate health professors Dorothy and Daniel Girdano and graduate assistant Richard Yarian.

"The alcohol, a depressant drug, affects the central nervous system and, psychologically, the drinker feels better and more relaxed after a drink," Dorothy Girano said.

"In actuality, the body may be very tense," she said.

"If relaxation is the goal after a stressful day, it is better for the person to engage in physical exercise than to sit and drink."

20 Lots Sold In Saanich Development

The first 20 lots in Passmore Place, Dunhill Development Corporation's 259-unit development on Interurban at Marigold, have been sold.

Prices for the lots were $18,000 to $21,600, said a housing department spokesman in announcing the sale.

Names of the 20 purchasers were drawn by former Saanich Ald. Les Passmore earlier this month from more than 40 applications.

The lots, averaging 6,000 square feet, have been sold at below the market value with a 99-year lease, and are among 27 single family lots in the development.

Purchasers must build a house on them within 12 months.

Also part of the development will be 14 zero-lot-line houses, 93 townhouses, 45 maisonettes, and 80 back-to-back townhouses.

SCALPEL LOVER

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuter) — Charles Hill, 61, an Australian pensioner, claimed a world record in hospital Thursday after undergoing his 87th major operation. Most of his operations have been abdominal surgery.

Movies

The Abominable Snowman (xx), on 4 at 2. An interesting 1957 English-made adventure-fantasy about an expedition searching for the legendary Snowman of the Himalayas, starring Forrest Tucker and Peter Cushing.

Susannah of the Mounties (x), on 11 at 2. A 1939 drama featuring Shirley Temple as the darling of the Canadian Mounted Police.

The Littlest Hobo (xx), on 5 at 2:30. The kids will enjoy this entertaining 1958 drama bout the adventures of a German shepherd dog on the run.

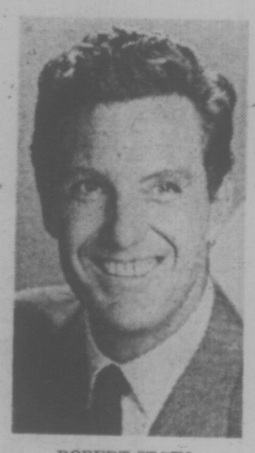
Tarzan and the Lost Safari (xx), on 7 at 6:30. Gordon Scott plays the title role in this routine 1957 jungle adventure.

Man in the Wilderness, on 8 at 9 and 6 at 11:15. No rating available on this 1971 outdoor story, set in the wilds of 1820 Northwest Territories, about a trapper's 600-mile quest for the man who left him to die in the snow. It's a bit grim and not recommended for children. Cast includes Richard Harris and John Houston.

Adventures of the Queen (xx), on 7 at 11. A good cast (Robert Stack, Bradford Dillman, Ralph Bellamy and David Hedison) highlights this 1975 made-for-TV suspense-drama about efforts to stop a psychotic who is threatening to blow up a passenger liner unless he is paid twenty million dollars. This movie was filmed aboard the Queen Mary.

The Lawless Nineties, on 11 a 11. No rating available on this 1936 John Wayne western, one of dozens he made during the thirties and early forties — all low-budget and most of them mediocre. This one co-stars Ann Rutherford and Harry Woods.

Lady in a Cage (xx), on 5 at 11:15. An overplayed and unpleasant 1964 melodrama about young toughs who keep a woman trapped in an elevator while they ransack her home, starring Olivia de Havilland, James Caan and Ann Southern.



ROBERT STACK
. . . on 7 at 11 p.m.

Man in the Wilderness, on 6 at 11:15. (See earlier this evening for details.)

Will Penny (xxx), on 12 at 11:30. A quiet but memorable 1968 western that relies on character development rather than action. Charlton Heston is excellent as a saddle-worn, middle-aged cowboy who tries to stay uninvolved and peaceful despite interfering circumstances, and his performance is well-supported by Joan Hackett as a young frontier widow trying to build a new life for herself and her son. Well-written and directed by Tom Gries.

CHARLTON HESTON
. . . on 12 at 11:30 p.m.

Bloody Mama (xxx), on 8 at midnight. A brutal, machine-gun paced 1970 account of the rise and fall of the Depression's infamous Barker brood. Shelley Winters' blatant vulgarity as the dominant Ma Barker is perfect, as is Don Stroud as her bad-tempered son Herman, and Pat Hingle as a kidnapped banker. The bloody finale is reminiscent of Bonnie and Clyde, and was virtually choreographed by director Roger Corman.

The Beguiled (xx), on 6 at 1:15 a.m. Clint Eastwood, Geraldine Page and Elizabeth Hartman star in this macabre 1971 melodrama set during the Civil War, about a wounded Union soldier who takes refuge at a girls' school run by a pair of sex-starved spinsters. Some of the sexy and brutal scenes have been cut for TV.

Perfect Friday (xxxx), on 8 at 1:55 a.m. Stanley Baker, Ursula Andress and David Warner star in this deft 1970 British-made comedy-thriller about an unlikely trio who stage a bank caper in London. If you can stay up this late, it's worth it.

CBC Radio Profiles Buchan On Centennial of His Birth

John Buchan was a crackerjack writer, the author of such adventure novels as The Thirty-Nine Steps, Greenmantle, Prester John, and The Three Hostages. As Lord Tweedsmuir, he was Governor General of Canada from 1935, during those perilous pre-war years, until 1940 when he died as a result of a fall.

Both sides of John Buchan, the archtypal "lad o' pairts" are reassessed on the 100th anniversary of his birth in a BBC production to be aired on CBC Tuesday Night, August 26 at 8:03 p.m. It will be rebroadcast on CBC-FM's Encore, Thursday, Aug. 28 at 8.03 p.m.

The program is compiled and introduced by a fellow Scot, Stuart Hood, and it includes the voices of Buchan himself; Prof. Gilbert Murray; his widow Susan, Lady Tweedsmuir; his sons, the present Lord Tweedsmuir and Alastair Buchan; his biographer Janet Adam Smith; Owen Dudley Edwards, Prof. Wallace Robson, The Very Rev. Prof. J. H. S. Burleigh, all of Edinburgh; Prof. F. M. Gibson of Queen's University, Kingston; Graham Spry, former editor of the Canadian Forum, and a name pre-eminent in Canadian broadcasting; and a Canadian pilot.

The narration and various readings from Buchan's writings are spoken by Tom Fleming and Paul Kermack. Producer is John Gray.

Buchan, professional journalist, publisher, lawyer, author, politician, was born in Perth, Scotland, on August 25, 1875, the son of a Free Church minister The Scottish countryside and Puritan ideology made a profound impression on the young Buchan, which were later to permeate his writings. He attended Oxford University, where he began to be accepted as a writer, after which he went to South Africa during the Boer War where he was more involved with administration than fighting.

Because of ill health, he was unable to enlist for action in the First World War, but he was appointed director of Intelligence at the Ministry of Information under Lord Beaverbrook. Buchan's first attempt to enter politics was unsuccessful, but in 1927 he finally became a Tory member of the House of Commons.

From 1922 to 1936 there was a new Buchan thriller every year in time for the summer holidays — often serialized before it appeared in hardback. This constant flow of writing enabled him to support his family by his pen. His heir, the present Lord Tweedsmuir, describes how he set about writing his books: "Many people wonder how my father actually laid out his novels, but he did it in a most fascinating way because he generally started at the end. He would get some totally irreconcilable people (put them together in a hut on the Welsh hills or something) an then prepared a perfectly clear, lucid explanation about how they came to get there. Perhaps an example of that was The Thirty-Nine Steps."

When he was appointed Canada's Governor-General, he already had a clear definition of Empire; he saw the dominions as fully autonomous, that Canada should retain its identity without losing its British and French connections. He travelled constantly about the country, mostly by train, and was the first Governor-General ever to fly over the Arctic Ocean.

He felt Canada's future lay in the North, with its rich, untapped resources. Lord Tweedsmuir believed that Canadians from different regions could be united in the development of this new frontier. He became a popular figure, on both sides of the border, to the sometime irritation of Prime Minister Mackenzie King who had suggested his appointment. Apparently King didn't like the thought of the Governor General becoming more popular than himself.

His autobiography, Memory Hold-the-Door, was published posthumously; his last novel, which some consider to be his best work of fiction, was Sick Heart River. It's set in the Mackenzie River area where the hero, Leithen, searches for his soul and the meaning of life.

Norton Fight On Wide World Sports

The Tournament Players Division of the Professional Golfers Association second annual long ball driving contest, the National Diving Championships, and the heavyweight fight between Ken Norton and Jose Luis Garcia will be broadcast on CBS Sports Spectacular Saturday August 23 (4:30-6:00 PM.) on the CBS Television Network.

Pat Summerall and former U.S. open champion Ken Venturi will be the commentators for the driving contest from Colonial Country Club in Fort Worth, Texas; Frank Glieber and Bob Webster will cover the Diving Championships from Woodlands, Texas; and Tom Brokshier and Angelo Dundee will be ringside for the commentary on the Norton-Garcia heavyweight bout.

Jim Dent is the defending TPD long ball driving champion, bombing a drive of 324 yards, eight inches last year in Atlanta. John Schroeder and Larry Ziegler, second-and-third-place finishers last year, respectively, are the chief threats to Dent's crown.

Norton, just recently named the second leading contender to the World Heavyweight title of Muhammed Ali by the World Boxing Council, through 1974, had recorded 32 wins in 35 fights. Twenty-five of those victories were by knockouts. He had lost but three. His major victory, perhaps, was a win recorded over now heavyweight champion Muhammed Ali in 12 rounds when the big, muscular and powerful heavyweight broke Ali's jaw.

Jose Luis Garcia, Venezuelan heavyweight, has won 28 fights, 16 by knockout, lost seven (5 by knockouts); and had one draw and one "no decision." Some top fighters Garcia has gone into the ring with include Joe Bugner, Ror Lyle and Ernie Terrell.

Today's Highlights

Dilemmas of Modern Man, on 2 at 2. First of three programs filmed at a symposium on world problems held during Winnipeg's centennial in 1974. Topics include the need for world leadership and adequate food supplies, and guest speakers include Aurelio Peccei, president of the Club of Rome. (30 mins.)

Big Eddie, on 7 at 5. Debut of a new comedy series starring producer-turned-actor Sheldon Leonard as Big Eddie Smith, a gambler who becomes the owner of a big sports arena. Sheree North plays Eddie's wife. (30 mins.)

High Behind the Walls, on 4 at 5:30. A documentary special on drug abuse inside Washington prisons. (30 mins.)

Conversations with Eric Sevareid, on 7 at 6 and 12 at 11:30. Host Eric Sevareid talks with novelist, economist and raconteur Leo Rosten. Their interview covers a wide range of subjects including education, psychiatry, New York City's budget crisis, politics, and what Rosten sees as the decline of newspapers. Rosten also reflects on his career as a Hollywood screenwriter and talks about contemporary movies today. (60 mins.)

Shape of the Nation, on 2 and 6 at 7. Participation, a fitness-awareness program, featuring simple exercises to improve physical well being. (30 mins.)

Kojak, on 7 at 8:30. A repeat telecast of The Night of the Piraeus, a fast-paced story of intrigue, double crosses and murder about a Greek passenger on a freighter who is killed moments after setting foot on the [illegible]. Telly Savalas stars. (60 mins.)

Creative Faculty, on 9 at 9:30. Part one of a two-part special that looks at the accomplishments of educators outside the classroom. This week's show profiles New York University medical professor Howard Rusk, who talks about some of his cases and patients, one of which was the late Joseph P. Kennedy. (Part 2 next week, same time and channel.) (60 mins.)

Jeanne Wolf With . . ., on 9 at 10:30. Hostess-interviewer Jeanne Wolf talks with actor Richard Chamberlain. He talks about his years at TV's Dr. Kildare and his current successful career as a serious stage and film actor. (30 mins.)

Movies

Against the Wind (xxx), on 5 at 2. An exciting, well-produced 1949 war drama about British agents who parachute into occupied France to aid the resistance movement in their fight against the Nazis. Excellent cast with Simone Signoret and Jack Warner.

The Curse of the Cat People (xxx), on 11 at 2. Despite the strange title, this is an interesting 1944 drama that offers a thoughtful and serious study of a child's fantasy world, starring Simone Simon and Kent Smith.

Let's Switch (x), on 6 at 2:30. Barbara Feldon, Barbara Eden and Richard Schaal star in this silly 1975 made-for-television comedy about a women's magazine editor and a suburban housewife who trades lives for a week.

High Treason (xxx), on 12 at 2:30. A thrilling, well-produced 1952 British spy drama about Scotland Yard investigating a mysterious explosion aboard a munitions ship. Liam Redmond stars.

I'd Climb the Highest Mountain (xx), on 7 at 3:30. Susan Hayward and William Lundigan star in this warm-hearted 1951 drama about a young minster and his bride setting up housekeeping in the backwoods of Georgia. Colorful cameo performances are turned in by Alexander Knox and Gene Lockhart.

Desert Train (x), on 11 at 3:30. A 1935 John Wayne western, one of dozens he made during the thirties and forties — all low-budget and most of them mediocre.

The Odd Couple (xxxx), on 4 at 8:30. Jack Lemmon and Walter Matthau are excellent in this entertaining 1968 film rendering of Neil Simon's Broadway hit comedy about two grumpy ex-marrieds who take up housekeeping together on New York City.

Mon Oncle Antoine (xxxx), on 2 and 6 at 9. An acclaimed 1971 Canadian-made drama, directed by Claude Jutra, about a boy coming of age during a 1940s Christmas in a small Quebec mining town.

Pride of the Yankees (xxx), on 12 at 9. Gary Cooper stars in this stirring 1942 biography of the life of baseball great Lou Gehrig, first baseman for the New York Yankees during the thirties. Teresa Wright is perfect in the role of Gehrig's wife and the supporting cast includes a cameo appearance by Babe Ruth.

SOPHIA LOREN
. . . on 2 at 11:40 p.m.

Eyes in the Night (xxx), on 4 at 11:30. An interesting, well-acted 1942 drama about a blind detective who tries to outwit Nazi spies and solve a murder, starring Edward Arnold, Donna Reed and Stephen McNally.

Onionhead (xx), on 12 at 11:30. A 1958 service comedy starring Andy Griffith as a ship's cook aboard a buoy tender. Not as funny as Griffith's No Time for Sergeants, but Walter Matthau in a supporting role helps keep the comedy together.

Arabesque (xxx), on 2 at 11:40. Gregory Peck and Sophia Loren are the main draws in this somewhat contrived 1966 chase drama, about a language professor who unwillingly becomes involved with secret documents and intrigue. Lavish international settings help the story over its rough spots.

Bloody Mama (xxx), on 6 at 11:45. A brutal, machine-gun paced 1970 account of the rise and fall of the Depression era's infamous Barker brood. Shelley Winters' blatant vulgarity as the dominant Ma Barker is perfect, as is the performance by Don Stroud as her bad-tempered son Herman, and Pat Hingle as a terrified kidnapped banker. The bloody finale is reminiscent of Bonnie and Clyde, and was virtually choreographed by director Roger Korman.

The Underworld Story (xxx), on 5 at midnight. A good cast (Dan Duryea, Herbert Marshall, Gale Storm and Howard Da Silva) and an excellent script highlights this 1950 crime-drama about a blacklisted big-city crime reporter, fighting small-town corruption.

The Beguiled (xx), on 8 at midnight. Clint Eastwood, Geraldine Page and Elizabeth Hartman star in this macabre 1971 melodrama set during the Civil War, about a wounded Union soldier who takes refuge at a girls' school run by a pair of sex-starved spinsters.

The Traveling Executioner, on 7 at 12:30. A 1970 black comedy about a con artist on the 1918 Southern prison circuit, starring Stacy Keach.

Perfect Friday (xxx), on 6 at 1:40 a.m. Stanley Baker, Ursula Andress and David Warner star in this entertaining 1970 British-made comedy-thriller about an unlikely trio who stage a bank caper in London.

The Four Poster (xxx), on 7 at 2:20. This 1952 movie rendering of the hit Broadway comedy serves as the perfect opportunity for the talents of Rex Harrison and Lilli Palmer as a couple who reflect, via flashback, on their married life over the years.

CBC Encores Acclaimed Film

Just about every critic who has seen the film has praised its many virtues. "It is one of the finest films released anywhere in the world in 1971," wrote the Toronto Star's Clyde Gilmore. New York Post reviewer Archer Winsten described it as "of such beauty, emotional power and restraint that it must be ranked with world masterpieces." Time Magazine hailed it as "the best chronicle of a coming of age since Truffaut's "The 400 Blows."'

On Sunday, August 24, at 9 p.m., the CBC-TV network will present the National Film Board's Mon Oncle Antoine.

This much honored film was directed by Claude Jutra and written by Clement Perron, who based the story on his own childhood memories. The film tells of a coming of age in a Quebec mining town during the 1940s.

The plot revolves around Uncle Antoine, undertaker and gin-drinking owner of a general store, and his nephew, Benoit, from whose viewpoint the story is unfolded.

The action takes place on Christmas Eve — the time of the year when the mine is closed. For a few hours the villagers forget their hardships and poverty and converge on the store for a night of entertainment, gossip and revelry. In the midst of it all Uncle Antoine receives a call to pick up the corpse of a young man who has died at a nearby lumber camp. For Benoit, who accompanies Antoine on the trip, the night brings sudden initiation into some of the harsh, cruel realities of life — even acquaintance with tragedy and death.

TENNIS SPECIAL—Well-known personalities from sports, politics and the entertainment world lob and volley for charity in the Robert F. Kennedy Pro-Celebrity Tennis Tournament to be telecast on Sunday at 3 p.m. on Channel 4. Players include Sen. Edward Kennedy, Elton John and Arthur Ashe.

Fitness Special Helps Fight The Battle of the Bulge

It has been said by some health experts that the average 60-year-old Swede is in better physical condition than the average 30-year-old Canadian. True or not, Canadians generally have a long way to go to reach physical fitness, and groups like Participaction are helping them get there.

On Sunday, August 24, at 7 p.m. CBC-TV will telecast a special half-hour feature to introduce the Participaction program to Canadians.

In the mind of Keith McKerracher, who started Participaction a number of years ago, the necessary exercises to achieve physical fitness were a bore. At least, he decided, that was the way most Canadians looked at them. So Keith developed a program that was both simple and entertaining. Even more amazing, it works.

In a special film entitled The Shape of the Nation, viewers will be introduced to the easy methods and happy results of Participaction.

The get to meet J. L. Peabody, a subject who is badly out of shape, and the component parts of his body — the heart, lungs, muscles, stomach, central nervous system and brain, all of them equally out of shape.

Through Peabody's experience, viewers can learn what may be done for their own physical well-being. It's surprisingly simple, starting with a little walking, a short run, or some other form of relaxed exercise.

As David Yorston, the Toronto actor who hosts the program, says, 'You simply have to start with some kind of self-disciplinary action, such as 'I'm going to walk around the block every day', and stick to it. You'll feel better! You'll work better! You'll definitely sleep better!"

The Participaction people are not great belivers in bulging muscles and iron physiques. They simply opt for being healthy. It leads, they say, to the good life.

The program is designed not to alarm but to educate and to entertain. And it does, in a straightforward easy-to-take approach.

Documentary Focuses On Vanishing Culture

In their attempts to capture on film what could possibly be the last generations of the Mekranoti and Cintas Largas Indians of Brazil, executive producer Francios Floquet travelled to Brazil on two different occasions and spent weeks trying to obtain permits to film Primitive Man: The Sky Warriors which airs Sunday, August 24, 10:00-11:00 p.m. on the CTV Television Network.

First "pacified" in 1958, the Mekranoti have come under the jurisdiction of the Indian Agency of the Brazilian government. The same efforts at pacification have been aimed at the Cintas Largas since 1968 and these two tribes were considered suitable subjects for the Canadian filmmakers.

Floquent and his team hired a plane to transport their goods inland, spending three weeks living in the villages of the Mekranoti. There they found friendly villagers curious about the gifts brought to them by outsiders. Enjoying the real human contact of these simple villagers, the filmmakers looked forward to their next adventure.

The friendliness of their first experience startled the men when it came time to film the Cintas Largas. Not having been so long pacified, they were still suspicious of white men.

"It was impossible to enter their village," says Floquet. "We could never find it and were totally lost in the jungles for about three days. We finally spent eight weeks in camp, which was only three huts, but had great difficulty filming the Cintas Largas who came there. We filmed through holes in the walls of the hut but when we brought out the camera they were afraid and grabbed for their bows and arrows."

The Brazilian government is working hard to dispel the hostility and are endeavouring to make Brazil a progressive modern nation.

EMMY WINNER VOTED FATHER OF THE YEAR

Ted Knight was named Television Father of the Year by the National Father's Day Committee at its 40th annual luncheon celebration in New York City.

In accepting the Award, Knight said that being named Father of the Year was "More meaningful than any other award I've ever earned."

Besides an Emmy Award for his role as the bumbling, egocentric news anchorman, Ted Baxter, on The Mary Tyler Moore Show on the CBS Television Network, Knight has five Bronze Stars, won while in the service in the Second World War.

The father of three children, Knight shared his new honor with such other Fathers of the Year as Sen. Edmund Muskie.

Movies

Carry on Cruising (xx), on 8 at 12:45. English humor in the "Carry On" tradition, filmed in 1962 with Sidney James, Kenneth Williams and Kenneth Connor.

Stranger on the Third Foor (xxx), on 11 at 1. A carefully produced 1940 suspense-thriller about a reporter convinced that a condemned murdered is innocent, and sets about to prove his theory. Cast includes Peter Lorre in an excellent portrayal of a homicidal maniac.

By the Light of the Silvery Moon (xx), on 5 at 3:30. Doris Day and Gordon MacRae star in this lightweight 1953 musical set in 1919 small-town Indiana.

The Legend of Lizzie Borden (xxx), on 4 at 9. One of crime history's most fascinating women is played by Elizabeth Montgomery in this 1975 made-for-television movie. In 1892, Lizzie Borden, a spinster from Fall River, Mass., was accused of the axe murders of her father and stepmother. She was tried and eventually acquitted, but many persons were convinced of her guilt and the case remains something of a mystery. This film, gory and violent in spots, blends facts with speculation, offering its own theory about how the murders may have been committed.

Claudelle Inglish (xx), on 11 at 9. A 1961 movie rendering of an Erskine Caldwell story about an ammoral sharecropper's daughter, starring Diane McBain, Arthur Kennedy, Will Hutchins and Claude Akins.

I'm the Girl He Wants to Kill, on 4 at 11:30. No rating available on this made-for-television mystery starring Julie Sommers as a secretary who becomes the target for a killer, when she links him to two murders.

Maroc 7 (xx), on 12 at 11:30. A slow-moving 1967 British-made chase melodrama about a secret agent on the trail of clever jewel thieves, starring Gene Barry, Cyd Charisse and Elsa Martinelli.

The Country Girl (xxxx), on 2 at midnight. Grace Kelly won an Oscar for her performance in this excellent 1954 film rendering of Clifford Odets dynamic play about the resolute wife of an alcoholic actor. In the role of Miss Kelly's husband, is Bing Crosby, who is equally effective as the self-pitying entertainer trying to pull himself together to make a stage comeback.

The Mouse on the Moon (xx), on 6 at midnight. A 1963 English-made comedy that picks up where The Mouse That Roared left off, in the mythical duchy of Grand Fenwick. Not nearly as satirical and funny as the original, with Margaret Rutherford and Terry-Thomas.

Niagara (xxx), on 7 at midnight. Marilyn Monroe and Joseph Cotten star in this heavy-handed, but suspenseful 1953 drama about an adulterous wife who drives her husband to madness and murder. The film boasts two scenic marvels — Niagara Falls and M.M.

Secret Ceremony (xx), on 8 at midnight. A macabre, muddled but interesting 1968 British-made melodrama about a strange and complex relationship between a warped young rich girl, a blowsy prostitute and the girl's stepfather, starring Mia Farrow, Elizabeth Taylor and Robert Mitchum.

The Hoodlum Priest (xxx), on 6 at 1:45 a.m. An excellent performance by Don Murray in the title role highlights this 1961 drama based on the work of Father Charles Dismas Clark, who helped rehabilitate ex-convicts.

The Long Gray Line (xxx), on 7 at 1:45 a.m. John Ford directed this sentimental 1955 tribute to Marty Maher and the 50 years he spent as cadet advisor at West Point, starring Tyrone Power and Maureen O'Hara.

The Mob (xxx), on 8 at 2:20 a.m. A well-produced 1951 gangland drama about a detective who goes undercover to clean up the waterfront, starring Broderick Crawford and Richard Kiley.

Today's Highlights

Mike Douglas Show, on 12 at noon and 7 at 6:30. Mike and this week's co-host Jimmie Walker (from Good Times) welcome among their guests actor Ernest Borgnine and consumer advocate Ralph Nader. (90 mins.)

ELTON JOHN
. . . on 7 at 8 p.m.

Cher, on 7 at 8. A repeat of Cher's first show which featured guests Elton John, Bette Midler and Flip Wilson. (60 mins.)

Thursday's Child, on 8 at 8. A BBC-produced drama about a 13-year-old girl who comes home on a school holiday, only to learn that her parents are separating—her father has fallen in love with another woman and is going to live with her. Cast includes Jane Hanley, Ian Hendry, Zena Walker and Anne Stallybrass. (60 mins.)

Beacon Hill, on 7 at 12 at 9. A special two-hour preview of a new CBS fall series which follows the continuing story of the Lassiter household, a nouveau riche family of Irish descent living in Boston during the 1920s. The opening story, set on the eve of Prohibition, introduces the large cast of characters. (2 hrs.)

Dreamland: A History of Canadian Movies, on 2 and 6 at 9:30. A repeat of the humorous and nostaglic documentary which uses vintage film footage, colorful narration and still photographs to trace the history of Canadian movies—and movies shot in Canada—from 1895 to 1939. The program also includes profiles of industry pioneers and notes on the conflicts over Hollywood filmmakers in Canada. (90 mins.)

Daniel Boone, on 11 at 11. It's the old series starring Fess Parker as the colonial frontier hero in coonskin cap; Albert Salmi as his sidekick Yadkin; Ed Ames as his Oxford-educated Indian friend Mingo; and Patricia Blair as his wife. (60 miss.)

Johnny Carson, on 5 at 11:30. Filling in as host for Johnny Carson is comedian-actor Bill Cosby, who welcomes among his guests opera singer Martina Arroya. (90 mins.)

BEACON HILL

CBS Previews New Fall Show

Beacon Hill, a new dramatic series depicting the intertwined lives of a rich, influential Boston Irish-American family and its staff of servants, will have its premiere in a two-hour special presentation on Monday, Aug. 25 (9:00-11:00 p.m.) on the CBS Television Network.

Following the season premiere of Beacon Hill, the regular hour-long weekly broadcasts will air Tuesdays (10:00 - 11:00 p.m.) starting Tuesday, Sept. 2.

Beacon Hill, inspired by the Emmy Award-winning PBS series Upstairs, Downstairs, focuses on the Benjamin Lassiter family, which includes his wife, their children and their spouses, as well as one Mr. Hacker, the Lassiter head butler, and all those on his domestic staff. The Lassiter family moves in that 1920 social circle which frequented Newport in the summer and Palm Beach in the winter, attended by their servants.

The large cast, drawn mainly from the New York theatre and American regional repertory theatres, includes, in part, Stephen Elliott, Nancy Marchand, Kathryn Walker, Kitty Winn, and David Dukes as members of the Lassiter family; and George Rose, Beatrice Straight, David Rounds, Paul Rudd, and Richard Ward as members of the servant staff.

In the premiere episode, Benjamin Lassiter and his wife, Mary, return a few days before the eve of prohibition, from six weeks in Europe, to their home on Beacon Hill. In the course of a few days' events, the particular characteristics of the Lassiter family and all its in-laws — and their respective flaws — are laid bare. The servants, in daily contact with the family and certain that they control the fate of their masters, weave their own stories into the robust life of the household.

Fielder Cook, an Emmy and a Directors Guild of America Award recipient, is the director of the premiere episode of Beacon Hill, a production of the Robert Stigwood Organization, Inc. Sidney Carroll, an Emmy Award-winner and co-author of the motion picture The Hustler, wrote the teleplay for the two-hour premiere.

Beacon Hill was taped at the CBS Television Network Broadcast Centre in New York City and on location in Boston. The art direction is by Tom H. John and costume design is by Joseph Aulisi. The music is by Academy Award-winning composer Marvin Hamlisch.

ELIZABETH MONTGOMERY stars as the infamous woman who may — or may not — have been responsible for the axe murders of her father and stepmother in The Legend of Lizzie Borden, to be telecast on Monday at 9 p.m. on Channel 4.

Mafia Interest Prompts TV Movie

ROME (AP) — The Roots of the Mafia has just been filmed in the scrubby hills and bleak villages of Sicily. The five, one-hour television dramas telling how it all began are aimed at a U.S. public fascinated by the Mafia.

The multinational enterprise employed such actors as Joseph Cotten, Lee J. Cobb, Katharine Ross, Edward Albert, Tony Musante, Trevor Howard, Tom Skerritt, James Mason and Mel Ferrer.

The project began in 1972, when Italian documentary maker Enzo Muzzi proposed to Italy's RAI Television a series of films on the origins of the Mafia.

Sir Lew Grade, the free-wheeling director of Britain's ITC network, joined forces, convincing the Italians to treat the subject dramatically, rather than in a documentary form.

ABC Television then entered The Roots of the Mafia, and David Rintels, who wrote Clarence Darrow for Henry Fonda, provided English-language versions of the scripts created by Italian experts in Mafia lore.

Producer-Director Enzo Muzzi says that although the scenes are dramatized, the characters and events are documented in the state archives at Palermo, Sicily.

As a documentarian he believes the truth is more interesting than the hyped-up Mafiosa movies of recent times.

The Roots of The Mafia is expected to reach U.S. television next year. The series may well run smack into NBC's celebration of the Mafia, recently announced.

The network has made a reported $15-million deal with Paramount by which Francis Ford Coppola will re-edit the two Godfather features, as well as hours of sequences cut from them for timing reasons. In nine or 10 hours, Coppola will retell in chronological order the saga of the Corleone family from Sicily to Las Vegas.

Movies

The 5,000 Fingers of Dr. T (xxx), on 8 at 12:45. A fascinating 1953 musical which takes an excursion into childhood fantasy, highlighted by marvellous special effects and a good cast that includes Hans Conreid, Peter Lind Hayes and Mary Healy.

Son of El Cid (x), on 11 at 1. Another in the unending line of Italian-made spectacles, this one filmed in 1956 about a rebel who leads the Spaniards against domination by the Moors.

Street Corner (xx), on 5 at 3:30. Peggy Cummins stars in this 1953 English-made drama about a London policewoman and the colorful cross-section of life she encounters in her work.

For Me and My Gal (xxx), on 12 at 7. An entertaining 1942 musical, set during the First World War, about the romance of two vaudeville entertainers, starring Judy Garland and Gene Kelly.

The Big Ripoff (xxx), on 5 at 8:30. Tony Curtis is perfectly cast in the role of a suave but unlucky gambler who uses a detective's deductive powers and a con-artist's guile to raise enough money to pay back his creditors. This 1975 comedy-drama is the pilot for an upcoming fall series to be shown in the Sunday Mystery Movie slot. Brenda Vaccaro in the role of Curtis' newspaperwoman-girlfriend and Rosco Lee Brown as his accomplice are excellent.

TONY CURTIS
. . . on 5 at 8:30 p.m.

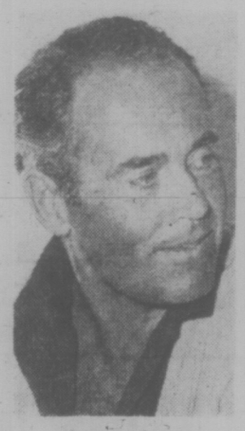
Man in the Wilderness, on 4 at 9. No rating available on this grim 1971 outdoor tale set in the 1820s, about a trapper's 600-mile quest for the man who left him to die in the wilds of the Northwest Territory.

Susan Slade (xx), on 11 at 9. A 1961 soap melodrama about a teen-age girl's first romance that produced the inevitable complications of pregnancy and family turmoil, starring Connie Stevens, Troy Donahue, Dorothy McGuire and Lloyd Nolan.

The Deadly Visitor, on 4 at 11:30. A recently made-for-television mystery starring Gwen Verdon as the operator of a boarding house haunted by an unwelcome tenant — the ghost of a vengeful woman.

Footsteps: Nice Guys Finish Last (xxx), on 12 at 11:30. An interesting 1972 football drama starring Richard Crenna as the hero-villian — a skilfull defence coach who cuts corners to win. Action footage, well-staged practise sessions and knowledgeable football talk enhance Crenna's character study.

The Empty Canvas (xx) on 2 at midnight. A heavy-handed 1964 Italian-made melodrama about a struggling artist who rebels against his wealthy and domineering mother, by having an affair with a young model. Cast includes Horst Bucholz, Bette Davis and Catherine Spaak



HENRY FONDA
. . . on 6 at midnight

12 Angry Men (xxxx), on 6 at midnight. Henry Fonda heads a fine cast in this superb 1957 drama about a man who tries to get his 11 fellow jurors to re-examine their guilty verdict in a murder trial. Production, direction and script are flawless as is the remainder of the cast which includes Lee J. Cobb, Eg Begley, Jack Klugman, Jack Warden, Robert Webber and Martin Balsam. Recommended.

Tiger By the Tail, on 7 at midnight. No rating available on this 1968 mystery about a war veteran searching for his brother's killer, starring Christopher George, Tippi Hedren and Dean Jagger.

The Disappearance of Flight 412, on 8 at midnight. No rating available on this 1974 drama starring Glenn Ford as an Air Force colonel investigating the mysterious disappearance of an airliner.

Counterattack (xx), on 7 at 1:45 a.m. Standard 1945 war melodrama about Russian paratroopers who land behind enemy lines to attack German headquarters, starring Paul Muni, Marguerite Chapman and Larry Parks.

Sarge: The Badge or the Cross (xxx), on 8 at 1:55. An absorbing 1971 made-for-television drama starring George Kennedy as a cop who turns priest and tries to solve his wife's murder. An excellent script keeps the plot believable.

Lonelyhearts (xx), on 6 at 2 a.m. Montgomery Clift stars in this 1959 melodrama about a newspaperman who writes an advice-to-the-lovelorn column, and begins to take his work seriously — with near-tragic results.

Today's Highlights

Merv Griffin, on 4 at 4. The theme today is couples and Merv's guests include Martin Landau and Barbara Bain; Betty White and Allen Ludden and Gisela and Arte Johnson. (90 mins.)

BARBARA BAIN
. . . on 4 at 4 p.m.

Mike Douglas Show, on 12 at noon and 7 at 6:30. Today's program includes a discussion of the CIA with journalist and broadcaster Shana Alexander, author Jimmy Breslin and former presidential press secretary Jerald terHorst. Actor Gene Hackman also appears in a prerecorded segment. (90 mins.)

Police Story, on 2 and 6 at 8:30 and 5 to 10. An excellent cast (Tony Lo Bianco, Patty Duke Astin, Dane Clark and Glenn Corbett) highlights tonight's episode about the search for a sniper who caused three deaths and numerous injuries among city motorists. (60 mins.)

Nova, on 9 at 9. The Plutonium Connection, a documentary describing how an atomic bomb that terrorists allegedly could build someday out of stolen nuclear materials, might be used as a blackmail weapon no government could afford to ignore. The documentary examines security precautions at nuclear-power plants in the U.S., and speculates on potential hazards. (60 mins.)

They're Playing Our Song, on 2 and 6 at 9:30. Jim McKenna hosts this three-part music series in which well-known Canadians place requests for their favorite songs, which will be performed by such guests as Jose Feliciano and Susan Jacks. This week requests come in from Nancy Greene Raine and Betty Kennedy. (30 mins.

V.I.P., on 2 and 6 at 10. Lorraine Thomson talks with writer Clifford Irving, whose The Autobiography of Howard Hughes was revealed as a fraud; and Marjorie Bowker, the first woman in the Alberta juvenile and family court. (30 mins.)

ON TO OTTAWA — the trek of the unemployed to Ottawa in 1935 to protest against inhuman conditions in government-run work camps, was probably the most organized and disciplined demonstration in Canadian history. On Tuesday at 10:30 p.m. on Channel 2 and 6, CBC-TV will show the third in a four-part series, Hard Times, about the Depression in Canada.

Jail Setting for New Comedy Show

By BOB THOMAS

LOS ANGELES (AP) — What's so funny about a prison? Plenty, says John Rich, who managed to wrest thousands of laughs from a bigot.

Rich, who directed the first 85 episodes of All in the Family, has branched out with his own company.

His first product: On The Rocks, will appear on ABC Television Thursday nights beginning Sept. 11.

The locale is a minimum-security prison. Rich is ready with arguments on how a slammer can produce laugh material for the home screen.

"There's nothing funny about war," he argues, "but M-A-S-H is one of the most amusing shows on television."

"Anyone who has had a mean boss, a rotten job or a bad marriage knows what it's like to be imprisoned. We all have our own traps. Archie Bunker is trapped by the society that surrounds him.

"His son-in-law is trapped by being forced to rely on the largesse of Archie for his existence.

"The humor in prison comes out of winning little victories against the system. And I mean little. One of our episodes will concern a stolen can of pineapple chunks. Things like that are terribly important in prison.

"The main thing for prisoners is how to cope and how to keep the system from crushing them. Our hero . . . not hero because none of the men are heroes . . . our lead, who is played by Jose Perez, will not be crushed.

"When he is entering prison and is being measured by the doctor, he bends his knees. When another prisoner asks why he did it, he says, 'I screwed the system out of two inches.' That's what matters: Beating the system."

On The Rocks follows the same pattern as All in the Family and Sanford and Son.

All are derived from hit shows of British television. But this time the creators of the series have been brought to Hollywood to convert their work to North American tastes.

They are two talented British writers, Dick Clement and Ian La Frenais, who are writing all of the 13 shows to be done before option time.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

By RUDY CERNKOVIC

(UPI) — Quick now, who are Issur Danielovitch, Tullice Ellice Finklea, Bernie Schwartz, Doris Kappelhoff and Aaron Chwatt?

They are, as many movie buffs know, Kirk Douglas, Cyd Charisse, Tony Curtis, Doris Day and Red Buttons.

It long has been a show business tradition to change the names of stars to add charisma, to say nothing of fitting them on theater marquees.

Frederick Austerlitz wouldn't be as light-footed if he hadn't manicured his name to Fred Astaire, Archibald Leach doesn't conjure up the romantic appeal of Cary Grant. It would have sounded funny for Frederic Bickel to play Dr. Jekyl, but not so Fredric March.

A one-time show girl in the movies who became a favorite teacher in a television series might have done well as Eunice Quedens, but her chosen name of Eve Arden carried a dramatic lilt.

The star of The Bridge Over the River Kwai showed business acumen when he signed for a percentage of the movie's profits instead of a flat salary, but he might never have had a crack at the part if he hadn't changed his name from William Beedle to William Holden.

As Frances Gumm she would have faced some difficulties, but the golden voiced singer took the advice of wily old showman George Jessel, chose the name Judy Garland and became a legend.

Sarah Jane Fulks became Jane Wyman, Zelma Hedrick was a talented soprano who won acclaim as Kathryn Grayson, Arthur Gelien became Tab Hunter.

Leonard Slye scarcely connotes a hard-riding cowboy remembered by two generations of kids as Roy Rogers.

Reginald Truscott-Jones sounds like a member of the British peerage, but as Ray Milland won an Academy Award winner for his performance in Lost Weekend. In Filly, Neb., a handsome boy won the hearts of the girls in high school. But when Spangler Arlington Brugh came to Hollywood he became known as Robert Taylor.

Could William Henry Pratt have sent shivers through a movie audience? As Boris Karloff he did. Joe Yule Jr., could recall a season of joy, but he won year-round audiences as Mickey Rooney.

Latin names have charm, but in some instances show business deemed otherwise. Dino Crecetti is billed as Dean Martin, Margarita Casino became Rita Hayworth, Margarita Italiano is Ann Bancroft, Anthony Benedetto sang the praises of San Francisco as Tony Bennett, Johnny Desmond started out as Giovanni de Simoe and Lolita Dolores Martinez is Dolores Del Rio.

No bad guys would tremble at the mention of Marion Morrison, not unless they knew he became John Wayne.

Not all the stars who changed their names started out with clinkers. What is wrong with Harriette Lake? You'll have to ask Ann Southern.

Ruby Stevens became Barbara Stanwyck, Peggy Middleton thought Yvonne de Carlo carried more mystique, Roy Fitzgerald prefers Rock Hudson, Norma Jean Baker chose Marilyn Monroe.

Boxers took cues from show business. Possibly Arnold Cream wouldn't scare any fighter, but as Jersey Joe Walcott he kayoed Ezzard Charles to with the heavyweight title. Joe Louis Barrow dropped the surname, and it was as Cassius Clay that Muhammad Ali won his first heavyweight championship. William Harrison Dempsey traded in his first two names to be known as Jack.

Today's Highlights

Mike Douglas, on 12 at noon and 6 at 7:30. Guests on today's show include comedian-actor Bill Cosby, and famed fashion designer Oleg Cassini. (90 mins.)

ISAAC HAYES
. . . on 5 at 11:30 p.m.

Book Beat, on 9 at 7:30. Host Bob Cromie talks with Juliet Benita Colman, daughter of actor Ronald Colman, and author of the book, Ronald Colman: A Very Private Person. Ms. Colman talks about the biography and her friends and colleagues. (30 mins.)

National Geographic, on 8 at 8. The Violent Earth, a documentary which follows an expedition led by Dr. Haroun Tazieff, a prominent authority on volcanology, to the lip of Italy's Mount Etna. Walking on lava crust as hot as 750 degrees, Dr. Tazieff and his party collect gas samples that may help to predict future eruptions. (60 mins.)

Feeling Good, on 9 at 8. In a program dealing with breast cancer, host Dick Cavett talks with "French Chef" Julia Child, who talks about her mastectomy. Also: a lesson on breast examination. (30 mins.)

Theatre in America, on 9 at 9. The Rimers of Eldritch, a drama about small-town desperation and injustice, written by Lanford Wilson. The action centers on a killing around which the personal stories of the townspeople ae revealed. Cast include Rue McClanahan (who plays Vivian on Maude). (90 mins.)

Wide World Special, on 4 at 11:30. Las Vegas Celebrity Secrets Party, hosted by Dick Clark, at which entertainers take turns guessing what little-known facts the audience has been told about their personal lives. Celebrities taking part include Peter Lawford, Wayne Newton, Della Reese, Richard Dawson, Lainie Kazan, Jack Carter and Jaye P. Morgan. (90 mins.)

Johnny Carson Show, on 5 at 11:30. Guest host Bill Cosby welcomes among his guest composer-singer Isaac "Shaft" Hayes. (90 mins.)

Movies

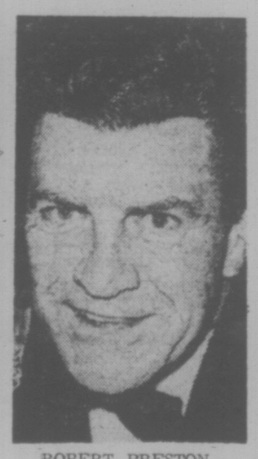
This Savage Land (xx), on 8 at 12:45. A 1968 western about homesteaders harassed by vigilante gangs, starring Barry Sullivan and George C. Scott.

Badman's Country (x), on 11 at 1. Routine 1958 western about Wyatt Earp, Pat Garrett and Buffalo Bill teaming together to get Butch Cassidy and his gang. Cast includes George Montgomery, Buster Crabbe and Neville Brand.

Island of Love (xxx), on 5 at 3:30. A bright and entertaining 1963 comedy about a fast-talking promoter who cons a gangster into financing a movie clunker, then promotes the Greek island location as a tourist resort. Good dialogue enhances the performances of Robert Preston, Tony Randall and Walter Matthau.

Locusts, on 4 at 8:30. No rating available on this 1974 made-for-television movie about a small town's entire harvest threatened by a swarm of locusts. Adding to the drama is a local boy who needs to prove he's not a coward. Cast includes Ron Howard (of Happy Days), Ben Johnson and Katherine Helmond.

RALPH BELLAMY
. . . on 11 at 9 p.m.



ROBERT PRESTON
. . . on 5 at 3:30 p.m.

Walkabout (xxx), on 8 at 9. A strange and exotic 1971 adventure about two youngsters struggling to survive after being abandoned in Australia's arid outback country. The children are beautifully portrayed by Jenny Agutter and Lucien John.

Sunrise at Campobello (xxxx), on 11 at 9. An excellent 1960 movie based on the inspiring play about young FDR, and his struggle to conquer the crippling disease of polio. Ralph Bellamy repeats his fine stage portrayal of Roosevelt with an equally effective performance by Greer Garson as his wife.

The Tiger Makes Out (xxx), on 12 at 11:30. The husband-and-wife acting team of Eli Wallach and Anne Jackson highlights this 1967 satire about a bachelor mailman who kidnaps a suburban housewife as a protest against social injustice. It's played mainly for laughs with the two becoming friends when they realize they have a lot in common.

The Alamo (xx), on 2 at midnight. (Part 1) A long, boring, expensive 1960 tribute to the Texans' bid for independence in 1836, directed by and starring John Wayne as Colonel Davey Crockett. The film is laden with historical inaccuracies and a cliche-ridden script, which wastes the time and talents of an excellent supporting cast that includes Richard Widmark, Laurence Harvey and Richard Boone. (Conclusion tomorrow, same time.)

Pop! (xxxx), on 6 at midnight. A brilliant performance by Alan Arkin as the New York Pureto Rican widower who wants a better life for his two sons, highlights this heart-warming 1969-comedy drama. He will win your heart as he comes up with an outrageous plan to create a secure future for his children.

The Best of Enemies (xxx), on 7 at midnight. An entertaining 1962 comedy-drama about the grudging respect that develops between a British and an Italian captain in North Africa during the Second World War, starring David Niven and Alberto Sordi.

Nobody's Perfect (xx), on 8 at midnight. Doug McClure, Nancy Kwan and James Whitmore star in this 1968 naval farce.

Hell and High Water (xx), on 7 at 2 a.m. Excellent underwater special effects highlight this 1954 adventure-drama about a submarine on an expedition to check on a Communist atomic arsenal, starring Richard Widmark and David Wayne.

To Die in Paris (xx), on 8 at 2:10 a.m. Louis Jourdan portrays a Second World War French underground leader hunted by a compatriot assassin in this 1968 drama.

The Night of the Hunter (xxx), on 6 at 2:25 a.m. A suspenseful 1955 drama about a psychotic backwood preacher plotting to murder a widow and her two children so he can get his hands on robbery loot left by the widow's husband. A good cast with Robert Mitchum, Shelley Winters and Lillian Gish.

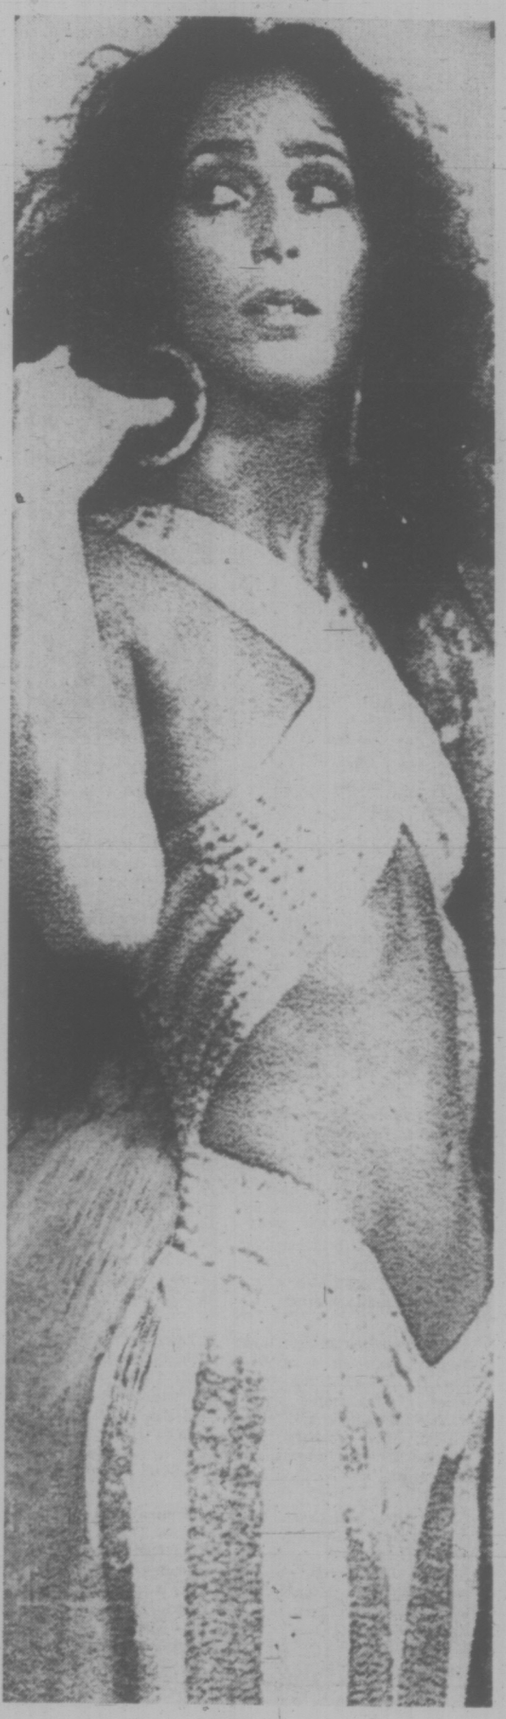
Cher Beats Family Viewing Ruling

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Cher's belly button has been preserved for posterity and her weekly viewing audience despite the crackdown on television's so-called "family hour."

Producer George Schlatter was adamant when CBS threatened to camouflage his star's navel.



CHER
. . . "navel neither sexy or violent"

Schlatter, the crusty, beefy individualist who produced Laugh-In, refuses to be intimidated by television's ukase that the hour between 8 and 9 p.m. will be a pristine Disney-like family get-together.

"The networks have been bullied into their stance by politicians," said Schlatter.

"They figure violence and sex are injurious to Americans. What is dull going to do to us? The family hour will bore the country to death.

"Viewers will be driven to committing more sex and violence. They'll be too bored to do anything but fight and fornicate.

"As for Cher's belly button, at her weight it's not sexy and there's no violence to it at all.

"I'm going to insure her navel against fire and theft. But collision insurance may be too expensive."

Schlatter grinned and stroked his Van Dyke beard malevolently. His humor is ever present, even when discussing elected officials.

"Politicians admit they don't watch the tube," he said. "They're out of touch with reality. Sex and violence are two distinct activities. The critics of both subjects haven't done enough research on either.

"It's easy for the guys in Washington to take cheap shots at TV. Let them take the same oath of truth, honesty and factual support that all TV commercials are required to provide.

"Politicians want to control television because they know it is the most powerful medium for reaching the people.

"They dare call anything on TV immoral. I think the gas tax the day before the July 4th holiday is more immoral than seeing Cher's legs."

Schlatter sipped a glass of noonday wine and grimaced. He is genuinely distressed by the threat to free expression inherent in family hour regulations.

"They keep making up new rules about the family hour as they go along," he explained. "The sex-violence umbrealla is being used to knock down anything which may be a problem to the networks.

"I don't think the new regulations will affect our show as much as television in general which will be sterilized when the concept of 'Family Hour' is extended to all time slots. I'm afraid that's exactly what will happen.

"They use the term 'family.' Whose family? There is more sex, violence and deception on the 6 o'clock news than any entertainment show. I'd like to meet the family the politicians have in mind.

"The real problem is the politicians are trying to be cops. The moral fiber of the country is being guarded by the most suspect group in the country this side of pickpockets — the guys in government.

"Television has a better reputation than they do. The credibility gap belongs to the politicians."

Schlatter said NBC has contacted him about resurrecting Laugh-In with new stars. The producer is reluctant to push the project.

"I'd be concerned about bringing Laugh-In back," he said. "Even if it were slotted outside the family hour the show would be subject to the whims of people who are making up the rules.

"Who can you trust? The Federal Communication Commission says is has 300,000 letters from viewers complaining about too much sex and violence on TV, but no one has ever seen those letters."

If Schlatter had his way there'd be a perpetual "family hour" for bureaucrats and congressmen.

While TV Producers Continue to Argue

By SANDER VANOCUR

WASHINGTON (WP) — In one of the early episodes of All in the Family on CBS this fall, Archie Bunker will be told that the woman to whom he has given mouth-to-mouth resuscitation is a transvestite.

It will be seen on a Monday night when NBC will be showing a movie and Howard Cosell will be on ABC, commenting on NFL football.

All in the Family has been moved to the 9 p.m. slot on CBS this year from the 8 p.m. Saturday night time period where it has reigned as the number-one rated show on television.

The half hour which it formerly occupied is now part of the so-called family hour which has been designated by the networks and the National Association of Broadcasters as a period for entertainment programming suitable for "a general family audience".

It comes on just as the family hour is ending. Is that why it has been moved to 9 p.m.? The answer to that question depends on whether you talk to Norman Lear, the creator of All in the Family, or Jack Schneider, president of CBS-Broadcast Group.

Lear says that he was told by another CBS official last April that All in the Family would be moved to Monday night because the show, as it had developed over the past five-and-a-half years, would be unsuitable for family hour unless Lear "toned down some of the Archie themes".

According to Lear, this CBS official told him that an examination of the 24 episodes made for the previous season indicated that if they were shown in the 1975-76 season, changes would be called for in 21 of the shows and two would have been killed even before they were filmed. Only one, according to Lear, would have "passed muster".

Schneider flatly contradicts Lear's account. He maintains that All in the Family was moved to Monday night at 9 p.m. strictly for competitive reasons. "We move lots of shows," said Schneider. "We move strength against strength. When Columbo was killing us on NBC on Sunday night, we moved Kojak from Wednesday to Sunday and we killed Columbo."

Lear does not buy Schneider's argument, pointing out that CBS was highly competitive last year against the same competition, movies on NBC and football on ABC, by using Rhoda, a Mary Tyler Moore production and Maude, which is made by his Tandem Productions. Both shows ranked in the top 10.

If there is a leader among the Hollywood television writers and producers in the fight against the family hour it is Norman Lear. Though George Schlatter, with Laugh In on NBC, was the first to break through a lot of taboos about what you could and could not say and do on a comedy show; Lear made the breakthrough on the half-hour comedy concept with All in the Family.

Since that breakthrough, he has been successful with other half-hour comedy shows that seem to develop comedie themes out of contemporary issues, shows like Good Times, Maude, Sanford and Son and The Jeffersons.

Lear is regarded as a man who seeks to deal with controversial issues. Grant Tinker, who heads MTM enterprises and is married to Mary Tyler Moore, does not have that image. Yet he too is troubled, though not to the same degree as Lear, by the implications of the family hour.

Tinker, whose productions include three hits, The Mary Tyler Moore Show, The Bob Newhart Show, Rhoda and three new shows this year, Phyllis, Doc and Three for the Road, does not share Lear's "fervor" about censorship, but he does admit to having fears about what the family hour may do to comedy shows in the future.

In commenting on the concept, Tinker said: "I don't think anyone sat back and really thought it out. I think there's an inconsistency in the networks' action in creating the family hour and their resisting governmental pressure in news and public affairs. They stood their ground on that issue and they got away with it."

Today's Highlights

A Third Testament, on 2 and 6 at 8. Host Malcolm Muggeridge examines the life of Leo Tolstoy (1828-1910), his fifth in a series of "six characters in search of God." Using newsreel footage, stills and location shots of the U.S.S.R., Muggeridge discusses the Russian novelist's ideas on life, and how those ideas are reflected in his writings. (60 mins.)

BILLIE JEAN KING
. . . on 4 at 10 p.m.

Hollywood Television Theatre, on 9 at 9. Wanda, a haunting portrait of desperation and defeat, directed by and starring Barbara Loden. Wanda is an uneducated, unmotivated loser-at-life who drifts into an unglamorous relationship with a petty thief, and together they begin an open-road odyssey, heading nowhere and doomed from the start. (90 mins.)

Treasure Seekers Beneath the Sea, on 11 at 9. Debut of a deep-sea adventure series about a group of youngsters who team with underwater experts. Tonight: treasure-hunting in the Bahamas, where a 300-year-old galleon is found. Also, a trip with producer Cornel Wilde to Australia. (60 mins.)

Towards Tomorrow, on 8 at 9:30. Habitat 2000: Human Scale Cities — a look at the importance of human privacy, and the psychological effects that high-rise apartment buildings have on their dwellers. (30 mins.)

Women's Sports Special, on 4 at 10. Tennis star Billie Jean King hosts this report on the women's sports boom. Among those seen in action are Chris Evert, Francie Larrieu, Sandra Palmer and free-style skier Genia Fuller. (60 mins.)

Wide World Special, on 4 at 11:30. Another edition of Geraldo Rivera's Good-Night America series. At press time, guests had not been announced. (90 mins.)

Movies

I Never Sang for My Father (xxx), on 8 at 12:45. An excellent 1970 film rendering of Robert Anderson's moving story of family relationships, beautifully acted by Melvyn Douglas, Gene Hackman and Estelle Parsons.

Lad: A Dog (xx), on 11 at 1. A teary 1962 drama about a crippled girl's love for a collie dog.

The View from Pompey's Head (xxx), on 5 at 3:30. Richard Egan, Dana Wynter and Cameron Mitchell star in this full-blown 1955 soap opera, played against the attractive trappings of the southern social set. Egan plays a lawyer who returns home to investigate embezzlement charges against a famous author's wife.

Who Is the Black Dahlia? (xx), on 5 at 9. Based on an unsolved murder case from the 1940s, this 1975 made-for-television crime-drama follows the investigation into the brutal slaying of a mysterious woman who always dressed in black. Cast includes Lucie Arnaz, Efrem Zimbalist Jr., Donna Mills and MacDonald Carey.

MELVYN DOUGLAS
. . . on 8 at 12:45 p.m.

WARREN BEATTY
. . . on 7 at midnight

Ride Beyond Vengeance (xx), on 7 at 9. Chuck Cosnors, Michael Rennie and Gloria Grahame star in this 1966 western about a buffalo hunter returning home with a grubstake, who is robbed and branded by a band of outlaws.

Flight to Tangier, on 12 at 9:30. No rating available on this 1953 drama about the search for two men who mysteriously disappear from an airplane in flight, starring Jack Palance, Joan Fontaine and Robert Douglas.

The Dunwich Horror (x), on 12 at 11:30. A 1970 supernatural thriller, a 11 about black masses and demonic rituals, starring Sandra Dee and Dean Stockwell.

The Alamo (xx), on 2 at midnight. (Part 2.) Conclusion of this 1960 western directed by and starring John Wayne. (See Wednesday evening for further details.)

Hornet's Nest (xx), on 6 at midnight. Standard heroics dominate this 1970 Second World War drama, about a paratrooper out to destroy a vital dam behind Nazi lines, starring Rock Hudson and an Italian supporting cast.

Mickey One (xxxx), on 7 at midnight. An absorbing, imaginative 1965 drama that was much underrated at the time of its original release. The film brings together director Arthur Penn and Warren Beatty (who collaborated on the successful Bonnie and Clyde) in a gripping story of a struggling nightclub comic who's in a jam with syndicate mobsters. For discerning viewers as it is not the straightforward typical Hollywood narrative. Canadian actress Alexandra Stewart co-stars.

My Sister Eileen (xx), on 8 at midnight. Janet Leigh, Betty Garrett and Jack Lemmon star in this 1955 musical about the adventures of two small-town girls seeking a career in New York.

Broken Lance (xxx), on 7 at 1:50 a.m. Spencer Tracy gives a fine performance in this entertaining 1954 western drama about a strong-willed head of a ranch empire and the eruptive conflicts in his family. Richard Widmark is excellent as the villain, and Robert Wagner and Jean Peters supply the romantic interest.

San Francisco International Airport (xx), on 8 at 2:15 a.m. A 1970 pilot for a TV series of the same name, about a kidnapping and multi-million dollar robbery plot, starring Parnell Roberts, Clu Gulager and Van Johnson.

Pork Chop Hill (xxx), on 6 at 2:20 a.m. Gregory Peck heads an excellent cast in this realistic 1959 drama about a courageous U.S. infantry unit in the last few hours of the Korean War.

Police Woman Survives Tough Lady Cop Show Competition

By LAWRENCE LAURENT

WASHINGTON (WP) — Before the start of another new television season some benefit may come from a backward look and from asking, "Just what happened to the great move to liberate TV heroines?". At the start of last season the possibility of a major trend was noted with the presence of three woman police officers. They ranged from Teresa Graves in Get Christie Love on ABC-TV right up to a division chief called Amy Prentiss. In between was a Police Woman.

By the end of the season, however, Amy Prentiss had consisted of precisely three episodes on NBC's Sunday Mystery Movie, hardly a fair test of popularity but the series was canceled. Jessica Walter, certainly one of the most competent actresses in TV, will never get to know what she might have done with this series.

Teresa Graves, a graduate of the Laugh In school of acting, had the title role on Christie Love and she got much better treatment. ABC-TV started the series at 10 p.m. Tuesdays, which put the show opposite two other police shows, The Manhunter and Petrocelli.

Christie Love ran third the ratings, but ABC-TV persevered and swapped the show with Baretta. The move meant that two women police officers were competing, since Christie landed opposite Police Woman, a bit of imitative programming that assured a quick, painful death for the Christie Love series.

ANGIE DICKINSON
. . . convincingly capable

And that left only one woman cop for the next season. The success of Police Woman can be attributed directly to a 44-year-old actress named Angie Dickinson, a weekly production budget of $250,000 and a place in the NBC Friday night schedule, which begins with Sanford and Son and continues with Chico and the Man and The Rockford Files before concluding with Police Woman. It helped, also, that CBS-TV ran out of good Friday night movies and once it got past re-runs of Bonnie and Clyde and The Graduate the schedule was full of such things as The Last Run, Adventures of the Queen, Golden Needles and Soylent Green.

A wise old football coach once explained the manufacture of all-America players as the result of "weak opposition and a poet in the press box." In a similar vein, the top TV shows are nearly always the result of the same weak competition, plus a vigorous, expensive campaign of audience promotion.

Police Woman was first, for example, the week of Jan. 27 when the competition was furnished by a CBS Reports (with a 5.1 rating and a share of 9 per cent of those watching TV while it was on the air) and the Baretta series, which was just beginning to attract an audience. As a result, Police Woman had a 37 per cent share of the viewers.

Another reason for the success of Police Woman was the uniformly excellent quality of the guest performers.

Then, too, there was the good regular cast that consisted of Earl Holliman as Lt. Bill Crowley, Ed Bernard as detective Joe Styles and dented-nosed Charles Dierkop as Officer Pete Royster.

But even with all those plusses the big reason that Police Woman succeeded is Angie Dickinson, the best-known native of Kulm, N.D., who won a TV beauty contest in Los Angeles and has been in the entertainment business ever since. She remains in the character of Sgt. Suzanne "Pepper" Anderson, a completely feminine enforcer of law and order. Yet, even at 5-feet-5 and 110 pounds, she is convincingly capable of taking care of herself with badmen. Very wisely, the producers never expected her to be the super-karate champion who stretched out bruisers with one chop.

She may not have pleased former Los Angeles policeman, now writer Joseph Wambaugh, the creator of Police Story, but she had enough realism to be cited by the International Conference of Police Associations for "giving the public greater understanding and insight into professional police work."

The major weakness of the series is the major weakness of most television series. The plots are often weary, the character creation is determinedly hackneyed and the quality of dialogue is ploddingly pedestrian. As Truman Capote is supposed to have told the late Jack Kerouac about On The Road — "That's not writing, it's typing."

These weaknesses probably will not be cured, since the TV audience, like the TV producers, are going to stand for only the tiniest bit of intellectual quality. However, the competition will be tougher this September than it was a year ago.

U.S. OLYMPIC BRONZE MEDALIST Cathy Schmidt is just one of the many women athletes featured in the Channel 4 special, The Lady Is a Champ, hosted by Billie Jean King, to be telecast on Thursday at 10 p.m.

Acclaimed Film Premieres On Hollywood TV Theatre

Wanda, a gaily disenchanted look at a Bonnie and Clyde couple, premieres on Hollywood Television Theatre August 28 at 9:00 p.m. (matinee rebroadcast August 31 at 1:00 p.m.) on KCTS-9.

Wanda stars Barbara Loden, who wrote and directed the film based on a newspaper story about an unknown girl who was sentenced to 20 years for her minor role in an unsuccessful bank robbery. Michael Higgins, who won an Obie Award for his role in Arthur Miller's Crucible, co-stars as Dennis, the man who leads Wanda into crime.

"I became interested in the psychology of the girl, then I made up the character," says Ms. Loden. The Antoinette Perry Award winning actress portrays Wanda as a young woman of little education and no inner resources. Unable to hold a job, she drifts into a series of casual relationships. She pairs off with the taciturn Dennis, who dominates, manipulates her. She becomes his unwilling accomplice in the robbery: he is killed, and she is arrested for her part in driving the getaway car.

This intense drama was filmed on location in the coal mining country around Scranton, Pennsylvania. Although it was Ms. Loden's first directing attempt, and was completed on a modest budget, it won the International Critics Prize at the 1970 Venice Film Festival. The London Observer calls the film "stunningly well-written and acted."

Wanda is a presentation of Hollywood Television Theater, which is produced by KCET-Los Angeles for the Public Broadcasting Service.

Movies

Tom Brown's School Days (xxxx), on 8 at 12:45. An excellent 1953 film version of the classic tale about 19th century life at Rugby School in England, starring Robert Newton and John Howard Davies.

The Man From Planet X (x), on 11 at 1. A 1951 low-budget science-fiction tale, with an unknown cast.

The Sheriff of Fractured Jaw (xx), on 5 at 3:30. Kenneth More, Jayne Mansfield and Robert Morley star in this 1958 English-made western spoof about a British gunsmith setting up business in the wild and wooly west.

Shell Game (xx), on 7 at 8. A 1975 made-for-television drama starring John Davidson as a con artist who puts on an elaborate show of wealth in order to trap an embezzler and clear the name of an innocent woman accused of the crime.

The Invisible Man (xxx), on 8 at 8:30. David McCallum plays a gifted scientist who discovers a way to make himself invisible — with frightening consequences — in this 1975 science-fiction pilot for a series that will be seen this fall.

JOHN DAVIDSON
. . . on 7 at 8 p.m.

Search for the Gods, on 4 at 9. No rating available on this 1975 made-for-TV drama about a struggle for possession of an ancient medallion that may confirm the existence of prehistoric extra-terrestrial astronauts. Cast includes Stephen McHattie, Kurt Russell and Ralph Bellamy.

Red Planet Mars (xx), on 11 at 9. A fanciful 1952 sci-fi drama about scientists' attempts to communicate with Mars, starring Peter Graves.

Grand Slam (xxx), on 12 at 9. Edward G. Robinson, Janet Leigh and Robert Hoffman star in this entertaining anl suspenseful 1967 crime-drama about a professor and a gangster who embark on a split-second scheme to steal a fortune in diamonds.

Kate McShane (xx), on 7 at 9:30. A 1975 pilot for an upcoming fall series, featuring comedienne Anne Meara) in the serious role of a warm-hearted Irish-American criminal lawyer. In this story, she enlists the aid of her close-knit family in an effort to reduce the charges against her client from murder to manslaughter.

Juliet of the Spirits (xxxx), on 12 at 11:30. For Federico Fellini fans only — a 1965 Italian-made fantasy offering a kaleidoscope of weird visions as seen by an imaginative but neurotic and neglected wife, well-played by Giulietta Masina (Fellini's wife in real life).

The Russians Are Coming, (xxx), on 2 at midnight. An entertaining 1966 cold-war spoof about a Soviet submarine that runs aground off the coast of a small town in New England. A witty script enhances the performances of Carl Reiner, Alan Arkin, Jonathan Winters and Eva Marie Saint.

ANNE MEARA
. . . on 7 at 9:30 p.m.

When Michael Calls (xx), on 6 at midnight. Ben Gazzara, Elizabeth Ashley and Michael Douglas star in this eerie 1972 made-for-TV thriller about a woman who receives strange phone calls from a boy believed to be dead.

Night Monster (xx), on 7 at midnight. A 1942 chiller about a series of strange murders at a gloomy old mansion, starring Bela Lugosi and Lionel Atwill.

Ritual of Evil (xxx), on 8 at midnight. Louis Jourdan and Anne Baxter head a competent cast in this slightly better-than-average 1970 mystery about a psychiatrist who becomes involved with the world of ESP and the supernatural while investigating the death of a wealthy patient.

The Screaming Skull (x), on 7 at 1:30 a.m. A predictable, low-budget 1958 thriller about a man trying to drive his wife insane during a night in a haunted house. The cast is unfamiliar.

Kiss Me Stupid, on 6 at 1:50 a.m. No rating available on this 1964 satire on martial infidelity, directed by comedy veteran Billy Wilder, and starring Dean Martin and Kim Novak.

A Countess from Hong Kong (xxx), on 8 at 2:05 a.m. Charlie Chaplin directed (and has a small cameo role) this 1967 romantic-comedy abut a shipboard romance between a diplomat and a Russian stowaway, starring Marlon Brando and Sophia Loren.
